[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 1.—[Special.]—The most extravagant fiscal year in the peace time history of the United States was officially closed today by the treasury department, but the big spending of the New Deal is still to come in the fiscal year which opens tomorrow.

Where the New Dealers spent 7 billion dollars of taxes and borrowed money during the 12 months just ended, they will pour out almost 11½ billions in the year beginning with the resumption of business tomorrow.

While they ran the government into debt 4 billion dollars in the old fiscal year, the new fiscal year will result in a record breaking deficit of almost 7½ billion dollars on the basis of existing taxes and appropriations.

Where 7 Billions Went.

According to an unofficial table made public by Secretary Morgenthau, here is where the unprecedented 7 billion 105 million dollars of United States expenditures went:

Departments:	Amount.
Agriculture	$ 349,000,000
Commerce	33,000,000
Interior	88,000,000
Justice	32,000,000
Labor	12,000,000
Navy	307,000,000
Postoffice [deficiency]	52,000,000
State	12,000,000
Treasury	204,000,000
War	409,000,000
Independent organizations:
Agricultural adjustment administration	289,000,000
Civil works administration	716,000,000
Emergency conservation work	332,000,000
Emergency administration of public works	156,000,000
Farm credit administration	150,000,000
Federal Deposit Insurance corporation	150,000,000
Federal emergency relief administration	334,000,000
Reconstruction Finance corporation	1,615,000,000
Veterans' administration	578,000,000
All other	106,000,000
Special items:
Refunds of receipts	64,000,000
Interest on the public debt	757,000,000
Retirement of public debt	380,000,000
Total	$7,105,000,000

34½ Billions Public Debt.

The public debt, according to the treasury's statement today, has already reached the unprecedented peak of 27 billion dollars. As the easy money gushes out in the new fiscal year, the debt will continue to mount to approximately 34½ billion dollars, placing a per capita debt load of $268 on every man, woman and child in the country.

In the new fiscal year, as in the one just ended, the New Dealers are planning to dole out huge helpings of cash for public works, relief, farm benefits, burocratic upkeep, and easy money loans. A summary of the government income and outgo in the last fiscal year and the estimated receipts and expenditures for the next shows:

Expenditures	$7,105,000,000
Receipts	3,116,000,000
Deficit	3,989,000,000
1934-'35.
Expenditures	$11,361,000,000
Receipts	3,975,000,000
Deficit	7,386,000,000

Near Test of Credit.

With the crucial test of the government's credit under the impact of the New Deal spending still to be met, the New Dealers have begun searching for new tax sources with which to prop up their top heavy budget. A brain trust of eight college professors has been hired by the treasury to map new tax legislation this summer, and three other brain trusters have been sent to England to study that country's heavy income tax.

"The treasury closed the fiscal year ended June 30, 1934, with a deficit of 3 billion 989 million dollars," Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. announced in a statement summing up the year. "Total receipts during the fiscal year 1934 were 3 billion 116 million dollars, or about 1 billion 38 million larger than in the preceding year. In part, the increase reflects collections in 1934 of 353 million dollars of processing taxes on farm products levied during the fiscal year under the provisions of the agricultural adjustment act.

"Total receipts were 144 million dol-

DILLINGER PALS FORCE DOCTOR'S HELP; SLUG HIM

The search for John Dillinger and his desperadoes centered yesterday in the lake resort country around Warsaw, Ind., and about Chicago, with indications that the outlaws had separated and gone in opposite directions after Saturday's raid on the Merchants' National bank of South Bend. In the Saturday raid the outlaws killed a policeman and escaped with $29,890 loot.

An attack by two members of the gang on a physician at North Webster, near Warsaw, Ind., early yesterday morning, after he had been forced to treat one of the bandits for gunshot wounds, led armed squads to the wooded lake country in Kosciusko county, Indiana, about 130 miles southeast of Chicago. Because the sedan in which the killers fled from South Bend was abandoned late Saturday at Goodland, Ind., 100 miles southwest of South Bend and about 100 miles southeast of Chicago, the authorities believed that Dillinger and some of his companions may have returned to their old hideouts in Chicago.

Special Squad on Duty.

All roads leading into Chicago from the south were patroled and known Dillinger haunts on the north side of the city were watched by the heavily armed special Dillinger force under Supervising Captain John Stege.

Ordinarily most of Capt. Stege's 40 picked men on the Dillinger detail take Sunday off, but they were on the job Saturday night and throughout yesterday in search of America's No. 1 public enemy.

The attack on the North Webster physician, Dr. Leslie A. Laird, occurred at about 2 o'clock yesterday morning, but the information was not communicated to the authorities until an hour later because the physician was left unconscious from blows on the head and his telephone wires had been cut.

Dr. Laird said he was asleep in his home on the main street of the small town when a man awoke him shouting for a doctor at the front door.

Narrative of Physician.

The doctor's story follows:

"I went to the door and the man said a friend of his was waiting at my office, a block down the street, and wanted me to dress a cut on his arm. He said they had been in an auto accident.

"I got dressed and went with the man. I saw that his companion had been shot twice in the left arm, below the elbow. They forced me to treat the wounds as a precaution against tetanus, and after I had dressed them the man who was not injured asked for some cocaine.

"I told him I didn't have any cocaine, and that is the last thing I remember until about an hour later, when I came to and found that I had a gash on the back of my head and a bruise on my forehead. Apparently they struck me with the butts of their guns.

"I tried to telephone the sheriff but couldn't get the operator. The phone was dead, so I went to the restaurant across the street."

Fails to Recognize Men.

The physician said he was certain that neither of the men was Dillinger, whom, he said, he would recognize from photographs.

"The larger fellow was about five feet nine inches, sandy haired, and of light complexion," said Dr. Laird. "The other, whose wounds I dressed, was nearly of the same height, but of slighter build and darker complexion. He weighed around 140.

"Both appeared to be 25 or 30 years old. Whether either one of these men was 'Baby Face' Nelson, who they say is with Dillinger, I couldn't say, for I wouldn't recognize his pictures, but I am sure that neither was Dillinger."

Nor was Dr. Laird able to identify his callers by means of available photographs of Dillinger gangsters.

Fine Place to Hide.

Dr. Laird notified Sheriff Harley Person of Kosciusko county, who went to the office and found that the bandits had ransacked it, apparently searching for narcotics, and had taken a supply of bandages and medical equipment with them. Finger print experts at South Bend were summoned by Sheriff Person.

The sheriff discounted the importance of the finger prints discovered.

No one could be found who had seen the bandits leave North Webster, but authorities pointed out that the territory would be an ideal hiding place. It would also be on a direct line to

Roosevelt Off for Vacation; Starts Cruise

Aboard the U. S. S. Gilmer, Accompanying President Roosevelt, July 1.—(AP)—The cruiser Houston, with President Roosevelt aboard, pointed down Chesapeake bay tonight on a history making 13,000 mile journey that will carry the President to the far-flung American possessions in the Atlantic and Pacific.

Smiling with boyish enthusiasm, Mr. Roosevelt went out to sea from Annapolis, Md., amid the farewells of the family gathered on the Naval academy pier and the applause of a crowd of well wishers who also assembled at the embarkation point to see him off.

The President went to the Houston, three miles out, on the destroyer Gilmer. Admiral William H. Stanley, chief of naval operations, greeted the President as his car rolled up to the foot of the Gilmer's gangplank.

Wish Party Bon Voyage.

Mrs. Roosevelt and others of the family gathered around to wish the President, Franklin Jr., and John bon voyage.

With Mr. Roosevelt beside his two youngest sons, Franklin Jr. and John, were Rudolph Forster, veteran White House executive clerk, and Commander Ross T. McIntire, naval physician. Gus Gennerich, personal bodyguard of the President; Richard Jervis, head of the White House secret service, and George Fox, a pharmacist's mate, completed the party.

Secret Service Men Trail.

Two secret service men trailed on one of the two destroyers accompanying the Houston, and three newspaper men, representing the press associations supplying news to all United States papers, were aboard the other.

A well equipped wireless will keep the President in constant contact with the White House, where his secretaries, Louis M. Howe, Marvin H. McIntyre, and Stephen T. Early, are on the job for such official business as needs the attention of the seagoing chief executive.

After visiting Porto Rico and the Virgin Islands this week-end Mr. Roosevelt will go to Cartagena, Colombia, South America. It will be the first time a President of the United States has visited this neighbor continent.

From there he will proceed through the Panama canal to Hawaii, which also will be visited for the first time by a president of the United States.

After four or five days in the Hawaiian Islands Mr. Roosevelt will depart for the American west coast, where he probably will land at Portland, Ore., about Aug. 2.

VON HINDENBURG WELL ENOUGH TO TAKE WALK THROUGH HIS PARK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 1.—The dramas enacted throughout Germany, with shots ringing out in Munich, Berlin and other towns, failed to affect the recovery of President Paul von Hindenburg, whom a TRIBUNE correspondent saw today march through his park at Neudeck, East Prussia, in a free, almost swinging gait enjoying the country.

Secretary of State Dr. Otto Meissner and chief of the press department, Walter Funk, who have spent the last few days with Hindenburg, returned to Berlin tonight declaring that the president is in excellent health and spirits.

Noise of Chaco War Drives Jungle Beasts to Argentina

BUENOS AIRES, July 1.—North Argentina is being invaded by jaguars, pumas, other wild beasts and poisonous snakes fleeing from the Chaco and swimming the Pilcomayo river after being alarmed by the heavy cannonading and large troop movements in the vicinity of Fort Ballivian. A female jaguar killed a man and seriously injured two others at El Choro. Farmers complain of widespread slaughter of calves and colts by jaguars and sheep and goats by pumas.

French Court Clears 5 Shot for Mutiny

PARIS, July 1.—(AP)—Five warweary soldiers, chosen by lot and shot for the mutiny of their company in 1915, were vindicated today and the widows of two of them awarded seven cents apiece.

A special military tribunal acquitted them of the mutinous offense to clear their names. For more than ten years the case of the 5th company has gone from court to court while the widows of Soldiers Prevost and Morange, aided by interested attorneys, sought vindication.

Company Cut to Pieces.

From musty, yellowing official records came the background for their suit. On April 19, 1915, the 63d infantry returned to the trenches after a bloody expedition into the German lines in the St. Mihiel sector. The 5th company, of which Sergt. Morange and Private Prevost were members, was almost cut to pieces.

But the fifth had the best fighting record in the regiment and the superior command needed them. The ranks were filled with recruits who were expected to be counter balanced by seasoned veterans. The 5th returned immediately to the front lines while other companies rested.

"At the moment when the 5th returned to the front line," says the official record, "the German machine gunners set up a terrific endless fire. The trenches were a living hell. The dead from the preceding attack were piled one upon the other, and there was not a foot of ground on which there was not a cadaver."

Men Refuse to Move.

The officers of the 5th gave the order to go over the top, but the men did not move.

The commanding officers met shortly afterward and decided the whole company should be taken before the council of war, which undoubtedly would order them executed en masse. They were chosen by lot, one man from each squad. Five men appeared before the council of war and were ordered executed by a firing squad.

When the present review court opened, one of the justices remarked that the war council never would have sentenced the men if it had known how they were chosen. But the company's officers did not explain.

'Kelly the Horse Cop' Dies; Children's Party Is Off

New York, July 1.—(AP)—The annual party "Kelly the horse cop" gave for 300 Rockaway beach children each year wasn't held today—instead the children mourned his death from pneumonia. Orders for 300 dishes of ice cream, 25 gallons of lemonade, and 30 cakes were canceled after his death last night. He had been giving the annual parties since 1928. James W. Kelly, 48, and his horse, Pedro, were known to almost every resident of the Rockaway beach region.

SON OF FORMER KAISER AND VON PAPEN ARRESTED

WORLD IS TOLD HOW HITLER FACED HIS FOES

BERLIN, July 1.—(AP)—Dr. Joseph Goebbels, German minister of propaganda and public enlightenment, in a speech broadcast to the world tonight explained the Nazi viewpoint of yesterday's events. He said, in part:

"Friday evening, June 29, the leader [Chancellor Hitler] and most of the assistant leaders were assembled at a party convention on the beautiful Godesburg on the Rhine. Only a few among the inner circle then knew about the sinister plot which was hatched by some of the party members.

"But as we were assembled the news came to Mr. Hitler that the revolt was about to break out the next day and that it was high time for us to strike if he wanted to prevent it.

Looks Seriously Into Dark Sky.

"The leader looked seriously into the dark sky. The leader is true to his own principles.

"The leader is full of determination regarding reactionary rebels who have cast the nation into an unlimited disturbance.

"After only a few minutes of conference the decision is made not to wait until the next morning. We start at two o'clock in the morning. At four we are in Munich.

"At the airdrome the leader receives reports. Hitler interviews the rebels. He throws his anger into their pale faces and tears off their identification labels. He then decides to go into the lion's den.

Hitler Confronts Foes.

"He rushed by car to Wiessee. Without resistance he managed to get into the house of Roehm [Ernst Roehm, late leader of the Storm Troopers and minister without portfolio].

"With incomparable courage Hitler carries out the arrests. Soon after the arrest of Roehm his staf arrived from Munich.

"Hitler confronts them, tells them in one sentence to go back to Munich. They obey.

"Our return trip to Munich is dramatic. We meet cars coming with Storm Troop leaders on their way to a rebel conference.

"Hitler awaits them personally. Then he speaks to the assembled leaders. It is an accusation against a small group of rebels who enter relations with a foreign power which they hoped would aid them to ride into power.

Nightmare Over Nation.

"They were about to cast the entire leadership into question. A nightmare hung over the whole nation.

"People had begun to confuse the patience of Hitler with weakness. But Hitler was watching silently. Only too often confidants had warned him in speeches.

"What could not be done with kindness had to be done with severity.

"Now the security of the party has been reconstructed. Millions of S. A. [storm troops] men and S. S. [Schutz Staffel] men welcome this purifying within the system.

"They see that punishment is all the more severe wit' the high rank of the guilty parties. From thousands of declarations of loyalty Hitler can see that he has got our friendship.

"Every hand which is against Hitler and his regime will be broken, if necessary, by force. Whoever wants to rise up will be knocked down.

"The second revolution has come, but differently. The rebels secured for themselves the aid of the foreign press which was hostile to Germany.

"Now the whole world may know that in all Germany there is calm and order. Never was the leader so much master of the situation as now. The reich stands and over us is the leader."

Hitler Chiefs Accuse French of Plot to Upset Rule.

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, July 1.—The total death toll during the last two days exceeds 200, according to unofficial reports tonight. In official quarters that figure is called "ridiculous."

Hundreds are under arrest in one form or other, including Prince August Wilhelm Hohenzollern, fourth son of the former kaiser, who is a storm troop leader. He is confined to his home in Potsdam. These prisoners are awaiting decisions that may cost some their political careers and others their heads.

BERLIN, July 1.—Chancellor Hitler today again struck at the enemies of the Nazi government. According to reliable information he had ten additional rebelling Storm Troop leaders executed by firing squads in his ruthless drive to purge—by death—the Nazi party.

How many persons high in the affairs of the nation have fallen victim to Hitler's famous slogan, "Heads shall roll in the dust" is a mystery. Some say eighteen have died in this manner. Others say many more.

Whatever the figure may be it does not take into account those individuals who committed suicide or were shot to death "resisting arrest."

Predict More Executions.

That Hitler and Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, premier of Prussia and the chancellor's "iron fisted" co-purger, intend to destroy rebellious elements within the party was indicated by a laconic statement issued tonight. It said:

"A few more executions will be announced soon."

Nazi headquarters in Munich announced that Karl Zehnter, an innkeeper, and Alexander G. Lase, a lawyer, were executed today at Stadelheim prison. They were accused of having "committed acts of treason."

Gregor Strasser, one of the founders of the Nazi party, was executed in Berlin early today. He was dismissed from the ranks of the Hitlerites in 1932 for "breach of confidence."

Herr von Tschirsky, personal adjutant of Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen, killed himself. Herbert von Bose, another of Von Papen's adjutants, was killed yesterday.

The death list in the suppressed mutiny is shrouded with mystery.

General Reported Slain.

It is widely rumored that Gen. Karl Litzmann, 84 year old follower of Hitler, has been killed, but authorities indignantly denied the report. Count Thun, prominent member of the Austrian nobility, was arrested and he, too, is reported to have been shot to death.

The furiousness with which Hitler is acting to wipe out all opponents of his dictatorship has left Germany gasping.

Many leaders of the Storm Troops, the chancellor's private political army which assisted him in his struggle to become the ruler of Germany, are quaking in their boots. Many are under arrest.

Promises Complete Probe.

"The public will be thoroughly advised of the results of the investigation," he said.

Meanwhile, Vice Chancellor Von Papen, the close friend of President Paul von Hindenburg and a monarchist at heart, was under arrest at his private residence. He has been forbidden to leave his quarters.

An army captain has been assigned to the Von Papen residence by President von Hindenburg to protect the vice chancellor from the wrath of Storm Troopers imbued with a desire to do bodily harm to the cabinet minister. Von Papen two weeks ago publicly criticized Nazi "excesses and arrogance."

It is said the vice chancellor was badly beaten up either by the police or members of the Schutz Staffel, Chancellor Hitler's Black Shirted bodyguards. According to reports, his teeth were smashed in.

Secretary Seized by Police.

munication with Von Papen in an effort to secure her release.

Early today the authorities threatened to divulge the vice chancellor's alleged relations with Dr. Heinrich Klausmer, leader of the Catholic Action society, who was killed yesterday "resisting arrest." They turned mute tonight, presumably on a warning from Von Hindenburg at his summer residence in Neudeck, East Prussia.

Calls Punitive Action Complete.

Hitler's government tonight announced that its punitive action against its opponents has been completed.

"National Socialism," said the communique, "is more firmly rooted in popular favor than ever."

Despite the announcement, many feel that Hitler's campaign to crush mutineers in the ranks of his brown shirted army and all dissatisfied elements has not been ended.

Gen. Werner von Blomberg, minister of defense, today pledged the absolute loyalty of the army of 100,000 men to Hitler.

He issued a proclamation in which he said that Hitler's action 'a purging the Nazi party was carried out with the support of the army and of President von Hindenburg.

As a gesture of its loyalty to the chancellor, a detachment of troops were reviewed by Hitler this afternoon. He watched the procession from a balcony in the chancellery.

Crowd Shouts, "Heil Hitler."

Nazi party officials today charged that French politicians conspired with dissatisfied elements in the Storm Troop army and with Gen. Kurt von Schleicher, former chancellor, to oust Hitler. Von Schleicher and his wife were killed yesterday.

Some of the Nazi leaders point to the mysterious activities of the Abbas Hilmi, former khedive of Egypt, who spent last month in Germany and is considered to have acted as an agent for France.

The former khedive, it is mentioned here, possibly will be rewarded for his efforts with the throne of Syria, now a French mandate under the league of nations. He is reported to have assisted French agents in getting into contact with storm troop leaders who were dissatisfied because they had been refused prominent positions in the regular army.

Entertained at Banquets.

The former khedive gave sumptuous banquets to the brown army leaders. The Nazis claim he had a yacht built in Germany in order to explain his presence. They also recall that Von Papen's wife christened the vessel.

Arnold Rechberg, powerful industrialist, who for years has been advocating a close Franco-German alliance, also has been named as having participated in the plot. He is reported to have been arrested. His relatives insist he is in southern Germany for his health.

The best informed circles declare that Hitler's punitive action was prepared for months. They declare the chancellor, while cruising on the battleship Deutschland with army leaders received detailed descriptions of the sexual orgies of the Storm Troop leaders. The officers are said to have told him of the conspiracy of the Brown Shirt leaders to win the support of the army officers in order to establish military rule last month.

When Hitler saw Mussolini in Venice last month, Il Duce repeated the warning. He urged the chancellor to get rid of "desperadoes who helped him to gain power, but who endangered the stability of the government with their restlessness and uncontrolable ambitions."

Mussolini sent his "wild Fascists" to northern Africa, but Hitler had to find other means of disposing of the rebel Storm Troops.

Reveal Roehm's Execution.

Meanwhile it was officially revealed that Capt. Ernst Roehm, cabinet minister without portfolio, commander of the Storm Troops and for 15 years a comrade of Hitler, was executed in Munich yesterday. The announcement set to rest reports that the world war veteran, who was arrested by Hitler himself, had committed suicide.

"He was given a chance to take the consequences for his traitorous acts, but failed to do so," said the communique. "He was shot by a firing squad."

Given Revolver by Hitler.

Soldiers, who once worshiped Roehm for his courage, were shocked today upon learning that he had not "taken the consequences."

Hitler, after placing the Storm Troop commander under arrest, pressed a revolver in his hand. Roehm's hand faltered. The bullet merely creased his head. The chancellor thereupon ordered Deputy Leader Hess to prepare the prisoner's execution.

Roehm and his associates, it is declared, brought about their own fate by flatly refusing to obey the order to disband the organization for one month. The mutiny tore the last shreds of Hitler's friendship for his lieutenant.

Needed Their Recklessness.

The chancellor for years had known of the homosexuality of Roehm and other Storm Troop leaders, but he needed their recklessness in the Nazi revolution.

The government today felt so secure in its position that Gen. von Blomberg lifted the official state of alarm.

At the same time the vast majority of the two and a half million Storm Troopers "started a month's vacation" on the order of Hitler and Goering. Most of them discarded their brown uniforms and laid aside the "daggers of honor" they cherish so much.

Their status as members of a political army is uncertain. Goering, it is said, wants to retain the "tried and true" troopers and dismiss the newcomers.

The aspect of German towns changed completely with the brown uniformed troopers swept away. Only an occasional high storm troop leader rushes by in an automobile, evidently bent on some official mission.

From all parts of Germany glowing protestations of the fidelity of the storm troop leaders and political chiefs are pouring into Hitler's office. Each vies with the other in an expression of what closely resembles adoration for the chancellor.

Fears had been expressed that radical Nuremberg might rebel at the execution of Roehm and his associates, but the Franconian leaders emphasized their "never failing faith in the leader."

Goering tonight issued new orders to the storm troopers in the Berlin-Brandenburg district. He confined all storm troop leaders to their quarters. He even went so far as to forbid storm troopers to wear uniforms or carry their daggers until further orders.

"All leaders of the Berlin staf of the storm troopers with a few exceptions remain under arrest," Goering said. "A thorough investigation will be carried out to establish which leaders were guilty of treason. The guilty must be punished. Should a few innocent leaders suffer and remain in prison a short while they owe this to the traitors who commanded them.

Issues Two Other Orders.

He issued two other orders. They are as follows:

1. Der Fuehrer [leader], despite the greatest indulgence he has used toward some misled storm troop leaders, and despite his inner connection with the storm troops, has commanded that any critics of the executions ordered by him, that any attempt at discussion of his orders and actions by leaders of the party and by state officials commissioned by him shall be relentlessly punished, and most severely.

2. Der Fuehrer has clearly pronounced what are to be the principles of the command and of the organization of the storm troops.

After yesterday's fast moving events, the whole of Germany today was whispering nervously about the wholesale deaths and arrests, despite the order issued by Goering forbidding criticism.

Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda, tonight announced that "peace and order" reign in Germany. He delivered his address to the nation over the government controled radio system.

Eye Witness Story.

Eye witness stories of yesterday's arrests and executions are being told.

Relatives of Carl Ernst, a Nazi leader who was shot yesterday, describe how he, his young wife and a staf of young men in their gayest uniforms were attempting to board a steamer at Bremerhaven in an effort to escape. Hitler's guards rushed up and arrested Ernst and his staf, leaving his wife alone. Relatives assert Ernst was bundled into a plane and flown to Munich where he faced a firing squad.

Storm troopers were particularly aggrieved by the "treachery of Hans Heyn."

This Hitler follower, they said, was executed yesterday "after Hitler had saved his life time and again." The authorities of the republic had threatened to execute Heyn for a murder at Potema. Hitler interceded in his behalf and, after assuming power made Heyn leader of the Silesian Storm Troopers, as well as commander of the Saxon section.

"He deserved death," said the men who were under him.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MUNICH, July 1. — The Brown Shirts of the Storm Troopers, the part time militia of the National Socialist party, have vanished overnight from the streets. But the raven black, silver trimmed uniforms of the Schutz Staffel, chosen from the most promising young men and trained as police of the storm troops and personal guards of Nazi leaders, today stand watch over Chancellor Hitler's third reich—the successor to the empire and the republic.

This is literally a picture of Munich on the day after and it is a graphic illustration of where the real power in Germany lies at the moment. The Schutz Staffel, or Hitler guard, is simply der Fuehrer's [the leader's] grim right hand, and its ascendancy means that Hitlerism is all Hitler.

Here and there you see traces of brown shirts tucked into ordinary trousers, or brown pants and boots topped with plain shirts, but this merely shows that the Germans are so accustomed to wearing uniforms that they forgot to replenish their wardrobes.

Disbanded for Month.

Chiefly this is due to the fact that the Storm Troop militia was sent home for a month's furlough today, but the original plans did not specify simultaneous leave for all Storm Troopers. Those who remain on duty are being kept out of sight, however.

The Schutz Staffel sentries, with rifles swung over their shoulders, have replaced the Storm Troopers in front of all buildings which fly the official swastika. The famous Brown house, citadel of Nazism, is heavily guarded by der Fuehrer's Black Knights. No attempt was made, though, to hold back the gaping crowd which filled the sidewalk across from the Brown house all afternoon.

The city is perfectly calm, and accepts the dramatic events of yesterday with Teutonic discipline, mingled with considerable quiet satisfaction and greater awe than ever for the mighty Fuehrer, who swooped down from the skies to smite the guilty.

News Kept Out of Print.

The general public still knows very little of what happened. Most people do not even know that Capt. Ernst Roehm, chief of the storm troopers, is dead. The morning papers published news of the executions of seven minor leaders, but without the details. All that is let out is that the leaders, allegedly caught red handed in a conspiracy, were shot within two hours of their apprehension in accordance with the Nazi code governing cases of flagrant treason.

As far as authorities are concerned, all that any one wants to know is that Hitler found the men guilty, and that they were shot in accordance with his orders.

The weirdest picture of the psychology of the new Germany was provided yesterday afternoon by some Schutz Staffel men guarding the streets leading to the Brown house, who thought they had merely been called out for some sort of practice maneuvers, and when informed that Capt. Roehm had been arrested, replied that it was just another one of those foreign atrocity stories.

No Praise for Roehm Dead.

Where Roehm is spoken of today, no adjectives violent enough can be found to describe him. Yet, there still are a lot of people in concentration camps for having passed on stories about the dead leader's morals and habits.

In Nuremberg, the headquarters of the Frankish Storm Troop organization, which used to be called the Ernst Roehm house, now officially has a new name. Orders were issued to Nuremberg storm troopers who, as a special honor for distinguished service, had Roehm's name engraved on the blades of their daggers, that they should buy new daggers or have the name effaced. They will get a new name engraved on their cutlery when they return from furlough.

Most storm troopers were delighted to get out of their uniforms, and even the girls, who are particularly uniform conscious in this country, are reconciled to the order by the hope of seeing more of their boy friends during their furloughs.

Storm Troopers Lose Out.

While storm troop men were in service, they had very little spare time and in any case they are too tired from constant drilling to feel any inclination for social activities. A number of storm troop men, however, are uneasy over their future as they anticipate a drastic reduction in the Brown Shirt ranks, which will further emphasize the preponderance of the Schutz Staffel.

On the whole, the bloody party purging carried out yesterday enhanced Hitler's prestige enormously. It also reassured the public, which was getting nervous over constant rumors of strife among the Brown Shirt leaders. They feel now that there is neither right nor left in the party, but only Hitler, and that all the minor chiefs have taken this lesson to heart.

BOARD OF HEALTH TO BE SCENE OF 'BLESSED EVENT'

Happily established on a city hall fire escape landing just outside the room from which the board of health mails advice to mothers on problems of infant welfare, two pigeons in a neat paper nest confidently await a "blessed event." They have one egg.

Although the nest and its egg first attracted notice only a few days ago, they have already become city hall celebrities. Hundreds of workers from all over the building make daily trips to vantage points on the seventh floor to observe the pigeon family, and there is already much speculation as to when the "setting" will hatch.

"If the parents need any advice on the care or feeding of babies," said Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, "I'll be glad to oblige them."

The couple, however, appears well informed. One is always warming the egg while the other hunts for dry bread and peanuts and other pigeon delicacies. Fanciers state authoritatively that the "event" is still two weeks off.

SHANGHAI JAPS MENACE ANOTHER BRITISH SUBJECT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, July 1.—Another Anglo-Japanese incident was threatened in the Hongkew section of the international settlement tonight when an altercation occurred between a Scotchman, J. Thomson, and a Japanese sailor. A Japanese mob gathered, and Thomson was taken to Japanese naval headquarters, where he was held for three hours and compelled to apologize.

The Japanese also seized a Polish youth, Adam Shisho, son of a local physician. He was taken to Japanese naval headquarters, but later was released.

The previous incident involving Anglo-Japanese relations took place early last Thursday morning when three local British police sergeants were disarmed by a mob.

ROME, July 1.—(AP)—Italian youths showing aptitude for leadership in Fascist affairs this week will start receiving training as "observers" of party leaders.

Under the plan, devised by Premier Mussolini, groups of youths will be assigned to follow and work with regional party secretaries and other officials. The groups will be changed periodically. The plan, the premier hopes, will develop future leaders and will bring the party and its officials closer to the people.

U. S. WOMAN ON SAAR COMMITTEE FLAYED BY NAZIS

[Copyright, 1934, By the New York Times.]

MUNICH, July 1.—In commenting on the appointment last month of Sarah Wambaugh, a United States citizen, to the plebiscite commission for the Saar, Der Stuermer, Julius Streicher's anti-Semitic weekly, describes Miss Wambaugh as a Jew.

"The Jewish people," says the paper, "hate the German people. A member of this Jewish race has now been chosen as a technical adviser on the Saar plebiscite commission by the league of nations, that product of international Free Masons, who are ruled by Jews."

Dr. Wilhelm Frick, the reich's minister of the interior, has prohibited the circulation of Opinion, a journal of Jewish life and letters, published in New York.

Classed as Protestant.

Cambridge, Mass., July 1.—[Special.]—Miss Sarah Wambaugh, daughter of Prof. Wambaugh of Harvard, is a Protestant. When she goes to church she attends the service in the Harvard University Memorial chapel. She has been employed in league of nations activities for a decade.

PARIS RIDICULES NAZI CHARGE IT WAS BEHIND PLOT

Visions Hitler at Mercy of German Army.

BY HAROLD ETTLINGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 1.—Charges in Germany that French agents were behind Gen. Kurt von Schleicher, former chancellor, in the coup d'état plot which cost him his life were met with vigorous unofficial denials here today. The foreign ministry, however, refused to discuss the subject for the present.

Informed quarters do not expect today's denial to end the matter for they believe that as soon as the situation in Germany is calmed down, Nazi government leaders will renew the accusation officially as part of an attempt to regain unity at home.

"There will be plenty of time then for a French denial if France actually is named," one observer exclaimed.

Fears "Rational Dictatorship."

If necessary the foreign ministry can point to recent authoritative commentaries in the French press. They declared that France has much more to fear from a rational dictatorship likely to restore British and American respect for the Nazi régime which, much to French satisfaction, has been alienated from Anglo-Saxon countries.

According to the French analysis of the world shaking events in Germany, Chancellor Hitler personally was attempting to gain the support of neither the right nor left extremists, but was trying to win back the middle class.

As a result of striking at Gen. von Schleicher and Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen as well as the extremists, Hitler is now pictured as fearing possible action by the military forces and being pinched between conservatives and extremists. Paris thinks he has put himself entirely at the mercy of the Reichswehr (regular army), which remains powerful and intact, while he has broken his own private army of Storm Troopers.

Thus, if it is true that it was a plot between Ernst Roehm, chief of the Storm Troopers, and Von Schleicher for the establishment of a military dictatorship, Hitler has paradoxically cleared the way for the same thing by the very fact that he has split the Storm Troops and has not touched the army.

Hindenburg Heeds Appeal.

The power of the army is seen again in the fact that it was on the appeal of Gen. Werner von Blomberg, minister of defense, that President Paul von Hindenburg did not resign the presidency and agreed to see Hitler. The latter, however, is said to be so uncertain of himself that he has not yet stated whether he will see the president. Former Crown Prince Frederick Wilhelm also is reported here to have pleaded with Von Hindenburg not to resign, but the question still is open.

The semi-official newspaper Temps devotes its leading editorial to yesterday's events which, it says, find absolutely no precedent in history. While refraining from too many predictions as to the future, the Temps makes one salient conclusion, that is, the National Socialist régime no longer is totalitarian.

"Suppression of political parties will have served in reality only to give birth to civil war groups, the Temps says.

"Violent Methods" Assailed.

VIENNA, July 1.—(AP)—Violent methods in government cannot achieve their objectives, Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss said in an address today in which he commented on developments in Germany.

"All we hear from the third reich now does not have a very pleasant sound," Dollfuss said, speaking to the Lower Austrian Peasants federation at Sonntagsberg, near Waidhofen.

"But what we hear does not surprise us. Does not the light at last dawn upon us that one cannot make a people happy with violent methods? Does it not now become apparent that when one leaves the path of Christian thought, the path of justice, one enters a path of error from which there is no turning back?"

See New Period of Turmoil.

With few exceptions Austrian newspapers interpreted Germany's bloody week-end as a prelude to a new period of turmoil.

Only one—the official Wiener Zeitung—discussed the probable effect on Austria of the ruthless suppression of rebellious subordinates.

"After the deadly outcome of this radical revolt, Austria naturally looks for a decided relaxation of the situation here," said this newspaper. "Now more than ever before National Socialism will be preoccupied with its own troubles and will have to abandon its offensive in foreign lands out of the sheer motive of self-preservation."

The same newspaper interpreted Chancellor Hitler's present position as extremely precarious, and the Tageblatt similarly suggested that there is more turmoil ahead.

Under a headline, "End of National Socialism," the Wiener Journal said that "national socialism, brown bolshevism, and the third reich are being liquidated and none other than Hitler himself is leading the mobilization."

The semi-official Reichspost suggested that Hitler's cleanup must include the party program and methods, "otherwise this day's developments will remain only a symptom of degeneration."

Russia's View of Situation.

MOSCOW, July 1.—(AP)—The soviet press today interpreted the developments in Germany as an indication of the desperation of the ruling class, which, hard pressed by the masses, is exterminating its opponents as the only means to prevent a proletarian revolution.

The killing of the Storm Troopers, says an article in the communist newspaper Pravda, indicates that Hitler in his alarm "probably forgot Von Papen's warning of danger from below."

"Heads have fallen but the Fascist dictatorship enters into a new period with incomparably worse prospects for the future," the article says. "The fate of the ruling class in Germany is in the balance."

ANTI-NAZI ENVOY SEEKS FRENCH AID TO OUST HITLER

Nationalists Behind Move for Military Rule.

BY HAROLD ETTLINGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, June 20.—Coincident with the Marburg speech by Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen criticising the Hitler régime, an envoy of the powerful German Nationalist group has visited Brussels and Paris in an effort to sound out foreign opinion on setting up a military dictatorship in Berlin to supercede the Nazi government.

THE TRIBUNE has learned details of the task of this envoy, who has the job of laying whatever foundation stones can be laid abroad. So far this consists mainly of spreading information which the Nationalists hope will discredit the Nazi régime and make its downfall easier. The Nationalist envoy is at present a government functionary.

Full plans for a dictatorship have been laid. They include the selection of a dictator—a high army officer whose name they do not reveal.

AN AIR OF MYSTERY HANGS OVER DOORN HOME OF EX-KAISER

LONDON, July 2.—[Monday.]—(AP)—The stirring developments in Germany are being watched with intense interest at Doorn, Holland, where former Emperor Wilhelm is in exile, according to a dispatch to the Daily Mail.

There were mysterious activities at the former emperor's estate yesterday, the Mail's correspondent said. Members of his staf were reported to be busy with many errands.

Contrary to his usual custom, Wilhelm did not take a walk about his estate yesterday. The Mail said he remained indoors, within reach of a telephone.

YOUTH BATTLES 5 SQUADS FROM BARRICADE; SHOT

A youth barricaded himself in his cottage home at 1407 West Marquette road last night, and kept police off for half an hour by firing at them with a shotgun and a revolver. The siege ended when police shot him in the abdomen and the left arm.

The wounded youth is Joseph Arlauski, 20 years old. Neighbors called the police when he appeared on the front porch of his home and fired the shotgun and the revolver at random. Patrolmen William Durkin and Walter Hanson, of the Englewood station, responded, and called for reënforcements when Arlauski fired on them. Five squads responded. Young Arlauski locked himself in the house.

Twice police advanced on the house, but were driven back by bullets. They finally shot Arlauski when he tried to escape through a rear basement door. He was taken to St. Bernard's hospital, in a critical condition. Police said he was drunk. His father, Ignatz, found in the house, was also seized.

VICTIM CATCHES PICKPOCKET, BUT THE WRONG ONE

Joseph Polick, 1520 Cullerton street, employé of a plumbing fixture company, started down town on a Blue Island avenue street car yesterday with $300 in his pocket. At Adams and Clark streets, two men jostled him, and a moment later he found his money was gone. He ran after the men and caught one of them at Clark and Jackson streets.

"Sure, I'm a pickpocket," admitted the man, "but my partner got your money. I'm going to meet him, and I'll see that you get your money back if you'll let us go. I'll take you to him."

Polick pretended to agree and went along with the man. At State and Jackson streets he saw two policemen and dragged the pickpocket over to them. They arrested the man and took him to the detective bureau. There he was identified as Rox Murray, a well known pickpocket. They tried to get him to reveal the name of his companion.

"Mr. Polick didn't carry out his part of the bargain," said Murray, "so I won't tell you who has the money."

5 KILLED, 24 HURT BY BOMB BLAST ON CHINESE TRAIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, July 1.—Five persons were killed and twenty-four wounded by a bomb which exploded tonight in a third class car of the first train to operate between Peiping and Mukden since the Sino-Japanese agreement was reached last week to resume direct rail communication between north China and Manchukuo.

The bombing occurred at Chiating station, about 50 miles east of Tientsin. The badly wrecked car was detached and the rest of the train proceeded toward Mukden. An unconfirmed report said one of those killed was an Englishman.

(A Tokio dispatch said Japanese investigators had learned the bomb was placed on the train by a student of Peiping university.)

Toledo, O., July 1.—(AP)—One thousand petitions seeking the recall of Solon T. Klotz, former Socialist who became mayor of Toledo Jan. 1, were placed in circulation today. The elderly mayor is accused in the petition under five charges of alleged "incompetency," and four of alleged "dishonesty."

AUSTRIA SENDS TWO BATTALIONS OF TROOPS TO GERMAN BORDER

LINZ, Austria, July 1.—(AP)—Two Heimwehr battalions left here today for the German border. Mounted men were patroling the roads leading from Germany.

It was understood that the entire Austro-German border is being closely watched from both sides.

The German government, it was asserted, wishes to prevent fugitives escaping into Austria and to prevent the entry of radical elements into Germany. Despite these measures it was reported, however, that a number of fugitives succeeded in entering Austria.

DARROW BOARD HITS ROOSEVELT BOYCOTT ORDER

Declares NRA Purchase Rule Hurts Small Firms.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 1.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt's own "government boycott" against firms not under the NRA was attacked today by the Darrow board in its final report.

The board declared that the President's executive order of March 14 denying government contracts to any concern not under the Blue Eagle is working unjust punishment on many small businesses trying as best they can to live up to code standards. This is the executive order through which the NRA stopped Henry Ford from bidding on federal contracts.

Winds Up Inquiry.

The NRA, regardless of its good intentions, is fostering a monopolistic control of industry which is "fraught with grave dangers to the republic," the board warned as it wound up its four month investigation of the recovery administration.

Appointed by President Roosevelt on March 7, the board under Clarence Darrow, known officially as the national recovery review board, has made three reports on the NRA and engaged in a running fire of arguments with Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA chief. The third and final report summing up the others and alleging new abuses under the NRA was released today after being sent to the White House.

Report Assails Abuses.

The report assailed a second time the NRA movie code and the steel code. Monopolistic abuses which the board pointed out in its first report have been allowed to continue, the board declared. It approved some of the changes which have been made in the steel code, but said that more should be done.

In addition the final report reviewed ten new codes, finding some monopolistic device in each one. The codes were those on shipbuilding, retail lumber, builders' supplies, graphic arts, feldspar, floor and wall clay tile, hosiery, saw and steel products, structural clay products, and wholesale confectioners.

The attack on President Roosevelt's "government boycott" was inserted at the end of the report's introductory section and was opened with the observation, "There is one form of oppression of small enterprises, inadvertent, but often grievous, the board feels it cannot overlook."

Hurts Small Industries.

The board then pointed to the President's order of March 14 and showed how it has weighed on small industries by withholding federal contracts from firms not under the NRA.

"However justifiable this provision may have seemed as a means to enforce the national recovery act," the board said, "its application has had most unfortunate consequences. Many small establishments honestly purpose to observe the code but find some of its provisions incompatible with continued business existence.

"We have been confronted with the case of small enterprises that adhere strictly to the code requirements concerning hours of labor, wages, conditions of employment, but cannot, without ceasing to exist, comply with the requirements that mean the surrender of their vital business secrets. Yet such establishments are by the form of government boycott excluded from every opportunity to do governmental work.

"We have found instances where this practice has resulted in heavy losses to the government as well as shrinkage of production and therefore employment among small enterprises."

South Hadley, Mass., July 1.—(AP)—Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins has been elected a trustee of Mount Holyoke college, it was announced today.

FORD'S NRA POSITION STILL IN DOUBT AFTER NOTE FROM DEALER

Washington, D. C., July 1.—(AP)—NRA looked today to Henry Ford for the next move toward code compliance.

If a "responsible" company official affixes his signature to the letter submitted yesterday to Hugh S. Johnson—and revised by him—officials said the concern's compliance with code provisions would be accepted without a formal certificate.

This would permit the company to apply for and obtain a Blue Eagle, to receive government contracts, if it was the lowest bidder, under department regulations.

A nearby Ford dealer, who several times has been denied a government contract because the parent company lacked the emblem, submitted a "trial draft" of a company letter to the administrator yesterday.

Arranged by Harry O. Woodring, assistant secretary of war, and Representative Kvale [Farmer-Labor, Minn.], a member of the house committee investigating war department purchases, the letter asserted the company's compliance with NRA code in the past and promised it for the future.

But the end of the long government campaign to induce the Ford company to comply with the recovery act still faced one obstacle.

Johnson read his changes in the letter to William Cameron, head of the company's publicity bureau, over the long distance telephone, and was told it was the company's letter.

In Detroit, however, Louis J. Colombo, a Ford attorney, said it was not from the company and that Ford acceptance of the code would await signature to the letter by an official.

NRA officials said they expected the dealer to forward the revised draft to the company.

lars less than the estimate included in the budget submitted to congress at the beginning of January. Aggregate revenue from income taxes, miscellaneous internal revenue, and customs receipts amounted to 2 billion 601 millions, as compared with the budget estimate of 2 billions 660 millions.

Expenditures Over 7 Billions.

"Total expenditures during the fiscal year were 7 billion 105 million, compared with a total of 5 billion 143 million dollars during the previous fiscal year.

"The fiscal year 1934 closed with the total gross public debt at 27 billion 53 million dollars, compared with 22 billion 539 million on June 30, 1933, increase of 4 billion 514 million. This increase was due to borrowing necessary to finance the emergency expenditures, a substantial part of which is represented by assets in the form of obligations evidencing loans, the proceeds of which, when repaid, may be used to reduce the public debt.

"In addition to the gross public debt there are contingent liabilities in the form of guaranties as to principal and interest on obligations of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, Federal Farm Mortgage corporation, and Home Owners' Loan corporation, aggregating as of June 30, 1934, about 1 billion dollars.

"On June 30, 1934, the average annual rate of interest on the outstanding interest bearing debt was 3.18 per cent, as compared with an average rate of 3.35 per cent on the preceding June 30. Total interest payments on the debt during the year were 757 millions as compared with 689 millions for the fiscal year 1933."

2 GRANDCHILDREN OF W. H. ERHART DIE IN FLAMES

San Mateo, Cal., July 1.—(AP)—Clasped in each other's arms, Henrietta, 8, and John Ruggles, 6, grandchildren of William H Erhart, New York multimillionaire, burned to death when fire swept the Ruggles mansion here today.

Two women servants barely escaped with their lives, while the children's mother, Mrs. Henrietta Erhart Ruggles, returning home at the height of the fire, was prostrated with grief.

The fire, believed due to defective wiring, started shortly after 1:30 a. m. and spread rapidly through the house.

'STRANGE TENETS' UNDER ATTACK BY LEGION CHIEF

Menominee, Ill., July 1.—(AP)—"Strange tenets that are destroying the principles of fredom and democracy" were attacked today by Edward A. Hayes, national commander of the American Legion, at a celebration of the 25th anniversary of the ordination of the Rev. Father Joseph Lonergan, former national chaplain of the American Legion.

Hillsides around the little church, where a solemn anniversary mass was celebrated, were covered with spectators today, unable to crowd into the small edifice.

Bishop Edward F. Hoban of the Rockford diocese celebrated the mass.

"I give warning now," Hayes said, "that the reaction to any tinkering with the fundamentals of human rights as guaranteed in the constitution will sweep into oblivion those who attempt it.

"We of the American Legion believe that it is time that the American people take a decided stand against some of the strange tenets that are finding foothold and like a disease are spreading to destroy the principles of freedom and democracy upon which our nation was founded."

NEWPORT AWAITS FLOW OF GOLD AS FLEET ARRIVES

Happy Days Come Back to Atlantic Coast.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Newport, R. I., July 1.—[Special.]—The "welcome U. S. navy" signs are out in this town. The merchants are smiling. Any sailor's credit is good. The fleet is in at Newport and happy days are here again.

Up and down the Atlantic coast, in those fortunate cities where the naval forces of the United States will stop in their maneuvers this summer, the business men are smacking their lips in similar gusto, anticipating the fat profits to come when the gray battleships and cruisers anchor off shore.

A flow of gold from the naval treasury annually drenches both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, but the greater portion of the spending is not done by the seamen themselves, contrary, perhaps, to popular conception. Purchases of supplies and money lavished on navy yards make up the bulk of the navy's expenditures, it was learned.

Spend 2½ Millions.

Not that the sailor's pay roll is despised. When the fleet was in New York recently there was considerable moaning by merchants that only one pay day occurred during the 18 day stay. That one was for $2,500,000, however, and most of it went into the tills of the saloons, restaurants, hotels, theaters, and dance halls along Broadway.

The next pay day comes this week with the battle force of the fleet stationed in Newport and approximately a million dollars will be available for the enrichment of those supplying drink, food, and recreation to the seamen ashore.

But the fleet pay roll was not all that New York collected from the navy, and money in sailors' pockets does not total what Newport and other navy towns plan to take as their share of navy pork.

First of all, there is the matter of food supplies. Thirty-five thousand men and five thousand officers run up a sizable food bill daily, and the supply officers of the ships are kept busy providing for them.

In one order alone in New York, 100,000 pounds of cured and 34,000 pounds of fresh meats were purchased, together with 103,000 pounds of white bread and vast quantities of vegetables, eggs, butter, pies, fish, ice cream, and fruit. The cost of feeding the navy is approximately $12,500 a day and the total food bill in New York for 18 days was $225,000.

To a comparatively small place like Newport, purchasing on this scale brings prosperity that would be undreamed of otherwise. Much of the food purchasing is done on a contract basis. But the town where the navy stops gets the main benefits.

Maintenance Costs High.

Food is only one of the items in the huge cost of maintaining an army of men afloat. Without going into too great detail, it may be pointed out that it costs approximately $1,900,000 to operate and maintain a battleship for one year and the yearly costs for the maintenance of other types of ships are as follows: Cruisers, $960,000; aircraft carriers, $410,000; destroyers, $270,000; large fleet submarines, $470,000.

Most of this money finds its way eventually into the places where the navy makes its bases.

Nor is that all. The navy budget provides annually a total of some ten millions of dollars for the "improvement" of the navy yards at Philadelphia, Boston, Portsmouth, Charleston, Norfolk, Hampton Roads, and the Pacific coast yards. These "improvements" include such items as "renovation of power equipment," et cetera.

Construction Is Big Item.

Of course, one of the biggest items of all is the actual construction work done on new ships under the naval building program. Employment booms in the vicinity of a navy yard. The program at present calls for the construction of 24 ships, including 14 destroyers, six submarines, and four cruisers, at a total cost of approximately $160,000,000.

The new aircraft carrier, the Ranger, is being built by the Newport News Shipbuilding company. In the Brooklyn navy yard alone there are under construction at present one cruiser, two destroyers, and one gunboat. Construction of one of the four $15,000,000 cruisers recently authorized begins there this month. In the other navy yards construction work is going apace with plenty of jobs for all.

All of which explains why the "welcome U. S. navy" signs are out in Newport and are being dusted off by gloating merchants up and down the coast.

Draw 25,000 in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 1.—[Special.]—More than 25,000 persons this afternoon converged on the waterfronts of Philadelphia and Camden, N. J., and swarmed aboard six United States naval vessels that tied up in the Delaware river yesterday for a week's visit. Several thousand more, unwilling to endure the long wait necessary before boarding the ships, contented themselves with standing ashore and staring at the big guns that covered the city.

U. S. CHAMBER PLANS TO STUDY RECOVERY PLAN, DECIDE COURSE

Washington, D. C., July 1.—(AP)—The Chamber of Commerce of the United States announced tonight it proposed to make an analysis of the administration's emergency and recovery legislation to decide what should be its attitude on permanent retention of features of the emergency program.

Henry I. Harriman, president of the chamber, said that "as recovery draws nearer the chamber has before it during the coming months the duty of examining the effects of legislation enacted and of making recommendations respecting continuance of, changes in, or abandonment of recent economic measures now in operation."

He listed as outstanding questions to be studied, "taxation, what protection from destructive forces and what aid for development should be given agriculture, to industry in all its forms, and to our commerce, domestic and foreign." Under the last heading the new reciprocal tarif agreements will be studied.

Worker Dies of Wounds in Dockmen's Strike Fight

Duke Endowment Says Plan Perils Company.

[Copyright: 1934: By the Associated Press.]

Washington, D. C., July 1.—(AP)—The Duke endowment tonight initiated a public campaign for revocation by the Public Works administration of a $2,767,000 loan and grant to Greenwood county, S. C., for a municipal power plant that would compete with the Duke Power company.

Anticipating a PWA hearing tomorrow Dr. W. S. Rankin made public a memorandum addressed to more than 300 beneficiaries of the organization founded in 1924 by the late tobacco multi-millionaire, James B. Duke.

Fears Harm to Company.

"The federal government," it said, "is pursuing policies which, unless abandoned, will seriously cripple, if not destroy, the Duke Power company."

The endowment largely relies on that company, Dr. Rankin explained, for funds distributed annually in North and South Carolina to various hospitals, orphanages, and churches as well as Duke university, Davidson, Johnson, Smith, and Furman colleges.

It was revealed that Senator Bailey and Representatives Doughton and Bulwinkle of North Carolina had interceded with the administration to get reconsideration of the loan. When the hearing was granted identity of the objecting organization was not made public here.

Allen to Be Witness.

Whether both sides are to be heard could not be ascertained tonight. One witness will be George G. Allen of New York and Warrenton, N. C., chairman of the endowment and president of the power company. He is author of the memorandum, which closed asking recipients to "take such action as you may feel you should."

It said the endowment has disbursed $19,113,000, almost 58 per cent of which was derived from the power company.

Attached were copies of letters to President Roosevelt and Secretaries Roper and Ickes asserting that application for the loan was granted without a hearing to interests adversely affected.

Three contentions against the loan were voiced:

1. That the project would cost more than estimated and "will not be self-liquidating."

2. That it would "be a government subsidy of one large textile manufacturer" [unnamed] by reason of giving him cheap power rates.

3. That it would compete with private utilities outside of Greenwood county at unfair advantage.

Under the contested allotment an earthern dam would be constructed across the Saluda river for a 15,000 kilowatt generating station with control equipment and 90 miles of high and low tension distributing lines.

FEDERAL EMPLOYES ARE GIVEN SECOND 5 PER CENT RAISE

Washington, D. C., July 1.—(AP)—Another 5 per cent of the federal employes' 15 per cent pay cut was restored today.

Under the terms of the independent offices bill, passed by congress over President Roosevelt's veto, experts figured it would cost about 125 million dollars more than budget estimates for the new fiscal year which began today.

The independent offices bill also provided for restoration of veterans' compensation which was cut by the economy act. The total cost of both restorations was figured at 228 million dollars more than budget estimates.

Government workers received the first 5 per cent restoration last February. The President is empowered to give back the third and final 5 per cent next Jan. 1 if he finds a rise in living costs warants it. Soldiers, sailors, and other members of the military are included.

SOCIALISTS NAME NORMAN THOMAS FOR SENATE POST

New York, July 1.—[Special.]—Norman Thomas, whose national control of the Socialist party had been challenged by a revolt of its New York leaders, received the nomination for United States senator from the Socialist state convention today, after one of the most bitterly contested sessions in the memory of delegates.

His victory—hailed as such by his supporters, but not conceded as a vindication of the Thomas "left wing" or "militant" policies by his opponents—followed several hours of acrimonious speechmaking that indicated the possibility of a party split if the nomination were refused him.

U. S. LAND BANKS OBTAIN 22,078 FARMS FOR DEBT

Many Former Owners Retain Lands.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 1.—[Special.]—Hidden within the wording of a statement issued today by the Federal Farm Credit administration is a startling example of the manner in which the federal government is vaulting into the methods of government ownership.

It is announced that the federal land banks now own outright 22,078 farms in the United States, valued at $82,939,000.

These farms were taken over by the government banks when the owners were unable to pay interest and principal on the mortgages which had been held by Uncle Sam. In most cases, however, the owners still are living on the farms, beneficiaries of a paternalistic government.

Only the Beginning.

The figures are but a mild forerunner, it is predicted, of the enormous amounts of property of all kinds which the government will be forced to take over when the millions of people and corporations which have borrowed the easy money of the New Deal government are unable to pay it back.

Government money has been put out to buy mortgages on homes. To date the Home Owners Loan corporation has foreclosed on only one home, but there are declared to be "about a dozen" foreclosures pending. It is admitted that the HOLC, and the Farm Credit administration as well, are extremely loath to proceed with foreclosures.

Even then the owners are not ejected. In the first foreclosure of a private home by the HOLC, it is claimed, the owner had abandoned his property.

Loans to Buy Stores.

The people of the Tennessee valley, subjects of the New Deal experiment to create a new society in the south, are receiving loans with which to buy electric stoves, irons, toasters, curlers and refrigerators. If they do not or cannot pay, will not the government then own thousands of these appliances?

The Reconstruction Finance corporation has loaned many millions to banks, mortgage and loan associations, and insurance companies, and now the RFC and the treasury have been authorized by congress to make loans to private industries. It seems inescapable that the government will be forced to take over and operate many defaulting industries and corporations.

Millions of public works money have been loaned to municipalities, with such security as, for example, bridge bonds. Will the government be taking possession of the bridges, collecting tolls when the municipalities default?

In the agricultural realms the government has not only been put in the position of acquiring farms from the defaulters, but has granted loans upon the security of cotton and corn and other crops.

Thus it is seen that the government, under the New Deal, is in a fair way to becoming the owner of countless items of property of every description.

Easy to Get Bad Loans.

Private lenders, holding farm and home mortgages on which the borrowers had been unable to pay, joyfully have turned them into the FCA and the HOLC, and now the government finds itself even less able to collect.

Obviously a great many of the loans shifted from private hands to the government previously had turned out to be dubious risks.

Also, the borrowers became aware that the government was a forgiving banker, and for several reasons would not foreclose on them. For one thing, it is admittedly bad politics to dispossess debtors, and for another, the debtors would only go on the federal dole anyway.

This reasoning is borne out by a frank statement made today by the governor of the Farm Credit administration, Prof. W. I. Myers, in discussing the number of farms acquired by his federal land banks.

"The policy of the Farm Credit administration," he stated, "has been not to foreclose upon any borrower who is doing his honest best to meet his obligations.

"Many of the farms acquired are deeded voluntarily to the banks by their owners, or are a result of foreclosure upon farms which have been abandoned by their owners."

Farm Burden Immense.

The immensity of the farm burden which the government—and the taxpayers—is carrying is shown by a report disclosing that on Jan. 31, 1934, the outstanding loans to farmers by federal land banks and the land bank commissioner aggregated $1,495,218,069.

The experience of the New Dealers, however, has not served to discourage them from seeking further doling out of public money. Prof. Arthur E. Morgan, chairman of the TVA, this week asked President Roosevelt to have the RFC advance loans for the establishment of new private industries in the Tennessee valley.

Other private industries are being encouraged by the government, through promises of federal easy money, to establish small plants in the vicinity of the subsistence homesteads which are being organized all over the country under the direction of Secretary Ickes.

Say Projects Will Fail.

Some observers hold it to be inevitable that in many instances these inducements will fail, and the subsistence homesteads will be all set up, ready to produce the "abundant life" for the homesteaders, but no employment will be available. Persons knowing the inclinations of the New Dealers are confident that once faced with such a failure the President will insist that congress permit the government to build, own, and operate its own factories at these sites, so as to provide employment for the wards of the government's experimentation.

MARIE DRESSLER AT 62 PUTS UP FIGHT FOR LIFE IN ILLNESS

Santa Barbara, Cal., July 1.—(AP)—Ill with a malady incurable in its advanced stages, Marie Dressler drew on her remarkable vitality and clung tenaciously to life tonight.

The 62 year old actress had revived from the coma into which she had lapsed for days and today spoke occasionally to attendants at her bedside.

A bulletin issued by her physician, Dr. Franklin R. Nuzum, said:

"Miss Dressler passed another quiet night. She has taken liquid nourishment in liberal amounts. She continued to recognize her attendants today, and occasionally spoke. Her pulse, respiration, and temperature remained as before, 100 degrees."

Despite her temporary improvement, physicians held no hope for her recovery from the illness.

GOLF BAGS HIDE GUNS OF FOUR WHO ROB CLUB

Golf bags were slung across the shoulders of four men wearing golf slacks who entered the side door of the Twin Orchard Golf club house at Bryn Mawr avenue and Wolf road yesterday at noon. When the cashier, Albert C. Schultz, asked them if they wished to register, one of them replied:

"Yes, we'll register with this," and out came a machine gun from his golf bag. "This," he announced, "is a holdup."

Another with pistol in hand vaulted a counter and reached the safe, which he demanded that Schultz open. Schultz said that only the manager had the combination, so the man with the revolver ran to the dining room nearby, where he asked which of the diners was O. W. Kissel, the manager. A panic was averted by a call from one of the bandits that Schultz had remembered the combination, so the bandit came back from the dining room.

The four men took $600 or $700 from the safe, said "thank you," and were gone before any of the golfers on the course knew of the robbery.

A frank statement by the world's largest producers of Cigars

What we mean by Grade A Vintage Tobacco

To millions of smokers, White Owl is known as the five-cent cigar that maintains a high standard of quality . . . that is always fragrant and mild.

Behind this reputation stands no secret formula . . . no carefully guarded process. It is due simply to the unwavering policy which this company maintains of buying tobacco under the strictest set of standards in the cigar business. It is due to the mellowing process which we give nature time to complete.

To make a cigar of the White Owl standard requires the best of American filler tobacco—a tobacco so fine in quality that even the best farms cannot produce it every year. Only when nature particularly favors the crops—when Vintage leaf is grown—is the tobacco considered suitable for White Owl.

But Vintage tobaccos alone are not enough. Even in Vintage years, we classify all filler tobacco into seven grades. And only tobacco of the quality of the top three grades passes White Owl's strict requirements for its Grade A filler tobacco. No other filler tobacco is ever used in White Owls. That's what we mean when we say Grade A Vintage tobacco.

At the present moment, we have sufficient Grade A Vintage filler tobacco mellowing in our warehouses to make nearly 1 billion White Owls—more than a two-year supply. With this tremendous reserve, we can assure every White Owl smoker of a continued supply of the mild, fragrant cigars which only Vintage tobaccos can yield.

MILLION IN RAIL SERVICES HAIL PENSION, RAISE

Pay Rolls Up 4 Millions a Month.

Cleveland, O., July 1.—(AP)—More than a million railroaders were jubilant today over a 4 million dollar monthly increase in their pay envelopes and executive approval of legislation which will retire at least 100,000 of their number on pensions this year.

The wage increase, affecting 1,080,000 men employed on the nation's carriers in every capacity except executive, constitutes a 2½ per cent salary restoration provided in an agreement reached between labor and management April 26.

Next Jan. 1, the railroaders will receive another 2½ per cent, and on April 1, 1935, the remaining 5 per cent of the original 10 per cent pay cut of two years ago will be restored.

Pension Insurance a Fact.

In addition, the last step in making a nation-wide pension insurance system effective was taken yesterday when President Roosevelt signed legislation enacted by congress at the recent session.

"The pension act is the finest piece of railroad legislation since the eight hour day was achieved in 1916," said Alexander F. Whitney of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, who retired yesterday as chairman of the Railway Labor Executives' association.

"Railroad men feel that they have obtained two very wonderful concessions in the wage restoration and the pension legislation. The first increases our purchasing power by 4 millions a month, and on the basis of May pay rolls, will mean an increase of 16 million dollars monthly by next April.

"The pension law, which becomes effective in 90 days, will permit the retirement of 100,000 men this year alone. Not only will this take care of the men who have broken down in railroad service, but it will help the unemployment problem by elevating the young man who is looking for the opportunity to work.

Worked 4 Years for It.

"The brotherhoods have worked earnestly for four years to get this legislation. Congress and the President cannot be commended too highly for coming to the front for the workers at this time."

Whitney said that at recent meetings of railroaders in Springfield, Mass., and in Buffalo, N. Y., which he attended he found "much wonderful comment" on the two concessions.

The pensions legislation provides for deduction of 2 per cent from workers' salaries and 4 per cent from carriers' pay rolls to set up a fund which is expected to total at least 90 million dollars a year.

This fund will be administered by a three man commission to be appointed by the President. One commissioner will be selected from railroad labor, one from management, and the third will represent the public.

Men will be eligible for retirement upon reaching the age of 65, completion of 30 years' service with a carrier, or for disability. The amount of their pension will depend upon their previous earnings, but is not to exceed $120 a month or more than two-thirds of their average salary.

Whitney explained that many of the carriers have had retirement pension systems of their own, but the new legislation creates a universal method taking in all carriers.

GARNER IS ASKED TO FALL PARLEY ON NEW DEAL BY ROOSEVELT

Washington, D. C., July 1.—(AP)—Vice President Garner has been invited by President Roosevelt to come to Washington in September to help chart the course to be followed by the New Deal.

Some important decisions about the administration's legislative program for the next congress are to be made at that time. Garner was told before he left that Mr. Roosevelt wanted the advantage of his political judgment and experience on these points.

Garner may make a nation-wide broadcast speech when the adminstration drive for election of a New Deal congress gets under way.

Garner has maintained a rôle of silence on public matters since he laid down the gavel of speaker and went to the senate to preside. By so doing, he has been in a position to aid the President without appearing publicly in the political picture.

GANGSTER SHOT; THROWN BEFORE HOSPITAL DOOR

Mathew [Irish] McNamara Jr., 22 years old, 709 Forquer street, a reputed member of the "42" gang, was shot and critically wounded yesterday, then thrown out of an automobile before the Mother Cabrini hospital. Shot once in the left shoulder, with the bullet lodging against the spine, he is expected to die.

Questioned by Detective Anthony Trifone of the Maxwell street station, McNamara said he did not know who shot him, or why, or who took him to the hospital. He was standing at May and Taylor streets when shot, he insisted. When McNamara's father, Mathew Sr., of 1028 Aberdeen street, pleaded with him to tell the facts McNamara cursed him, police said.

Officers described McNamara as a minor hoodlum who was arrested on a charge of rape 5 years ago, but never tried. He is married. His bride of nine months is an expectant mother.

2 PARK PENSION FUNDS FOUND IN GOOD CONDITION

Merger Act Will Change Board Selection.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Since the park consolidation act makes a big change in the method of selecting the personnel of the boards which administer them, President Robert J. Dunham and other commissioners of the Chicago park district have begun a close study of the two pension funds that will come more or less under their jurisdiction with the completion of unification.

Their examination will not be completed for a month, it is estimated, but it is said that what they have learned up to this time after conferences with trustees of both funds has convinced them that both pension systems are in excellent condition.

Jurisdiction Is Enlarged.

One is administered by the retirement board of the Park Policemen's Annuity and Benefit fund and the other by the retirement board of the Park Employés Annuity and Benefit fund. Heretofore the jurisdiction of each has covered the employés of the three major park districts—Lincoln park, West park, and South park—but with consolidation the employés of 19 small park districts will come within their territory.

The creation of these boards for all of the three major districts really constituted an anticipation of park consolidation. The park employés board for the three districts was established by the legislature in 1919 and the park policemens' fund was authorized in 1922.

Each board consists of seven members. The police board consisted of three representatives of the park boards, one from each of the big districts, three policemen members, one elected by the force of each district, and a seventh member chosen by the pensioners. The only difference in the park employés' board was that the seventh member was elected at large by all of the non-police employés of all three park systems.

How Boards Are Chosen.

Under the consolidation law—as terms of present members expire—the Chicago Park district will name three members of each board, and the united forces of police or employés, as the case may be, will elect three members. In each case the seventh member will be chosen as heretofore.

The fiscal year of the employés' pension fund ended last Saturday, June 30, and its books will not be closed for two or three months, but Stephen D. Forst, secretary of the board, pointed out that a comprehensive analysis of the status of its accounts was gratifying.

"Because of the long depression period, resulting in large delinquencies in tax collections by many municipalities," he said, "the board last December, upon recommendation of President Edward N. Heinz, requested five banking and investment institutions to make an analysis of its investment account in order that it might have up to date information on its holdings with a view to making such changes in the account as would eliminate undesirable holdings.

Holdings Called Satisfactory.

"The request was made of the Northern Trust company, the First National bank, Halsey, Stuart & Co., Blyth & Co., and Lawrence Stern & Co. The composite opinion of these institutions was that the investments were well diversified within the limits of the investment powers of the board and that the investment account would work out satisfactorily over a period of years."

The total assets of this board as of June 30 were placed at $9,340,000, of which $7,690,000 consisted of investments, the figure being based on book value. The income for the preceding year was $900,000, and the total payments to beneficiaries for the same period amounted to $345,000.

The annual report of the park policemen's pension fund board is now in the process of preparation for consideration at a meeting on July 10. It is to be based chiefly on an audit made by P. L. Crawford & Co., certified public accountants, as of last Dec. 31, the end of this board's fiscal year.

Assets Shown in Audit.

That audit placed the total assets of the police board at $6,728,649, of which $3,300,684 consisted of bonds at book value. The total income for 1933 was stated as $540,479 and the expenditures for the year as $262,352, showing an excess of income over expenditures of $278,126. The administrative expense was only $11,870.82.

The average rate of interest, exclusive of a relatively small number of items in default, was 4.5978 per cent. The average income rate on the investments of the park employés' fund was 4.48.

Last March Daniel A. Roberts was succeeded as president of the police fund board by William G. Donne as the representative of the South Park board. The other park representatives are J. Frank Lyman and Mr. Roberts. The three active police representatives are Barney R. Rosenberg, Samuel J. Henderson, and Joseph C. Granata. The pensioner representative is Henry Cummings, who is secretary of the board.

None of the members of either of the two boards receives compensation. Each employs an experienced actuary who has charge of the offices at 127 North Dearborn street. Abraham Weinberg occupies that position for the employés' board and Peter L. Basco for the police board.

JOB INSURANCE GOES IN EFFECT IN WISCONSIN

It Is Called Bulwark of Buying Power.

Madison, Wis., July 1.—[Special.]—An experiment in job insurance which is expected to involve between 1,500 and 2,000 employers in the state and nearly 400,000 employés begins officially today in Wisconsin. The plan was worked out under the Wisconsin unemployment compensation act, which was passed at a special session of the 1931 legislature.

The job insurance plan, which is the first to be tried on such a large scale anywhere in this country, has been studied and interpreted for more than a year by members of the state industrial commission, who are charged with administration of the compensation act. The plan is expected to be the basis of something similar for national application. It is based on the theory that a loss of buying power is the principal cause of periods of economic stress and continued unemployment.

Wide Scope of Act.

The legislature had provided that the plan would become effective yesterday unless 139,000 manual employés in the state were included under voluntary unemployment insurance systems by that date. With minor exceptions almost all employés, even those in the state, county, or local government services, are within its application.

Public school teachers and others employed on an annual salary basis are excluded. The statutory quota of 139,000 persons, which if it had been reached would not have necessitated the enforcement of the act, was not reached, apparently because some employers did not wish to set up voluntary systems of insurance while others were not doing it. The employer can still step out of the compulsory insurance group by submitting his own plan for job insurance and having it approved by the industrial commission.

Payment of premiums starts Aug. 1 and will be based on pay rolls for July. Virtually every employer in the state who has given work to at least ten persons for at least eighteen weeks [not necessarily successive] will be subject to the compulsory plan.

Payments by Employers.

The industrial commission has outlined the method of employers' payments as follows:

During the employer's first two years of contribution payments he shall put into the fund at the rate of 2 per cent of his pay roll. Thereafter contributions shall be determined as follows:

1. The rate shall be 2 per cent of the pay roll whenever the fund amounts to less than $55 reserve per employé.
2. The rate shall be 1 per cent of the pay roll when the fund amounts to $55 but less than $75 reserve per employé.
3. Contributions shall stop when the fund amounts to $75 or more reserve per employé.
4. The employer may contribute to the fund in larger amounts than specified at any time to set aside larger reserves in good times.

Harry McLogan, one of the members of the industrial commission, said that it would be advantageous to the employer to increase his contributions in prosperous times because it will then take a longer period for unemployment to deplete the fund to a point where contributions must again be made.

What's Done with Money.

The money paid in premiums goes to the industrial commission, which sends it to the state treasurer, who forwards it to the state annuity board for investment in bonds issued by the federal government or governments within the state boundaries. Interest from the investments will be prorated back to the funds set up by each employer. The interest may possibly swell the fund to a point where few, if any, additional contributions will be needed to maintain the minimum standard of $50 per employé.

No benefits will be paid from the funds until July 1, 1935. The benefits then will start two weeks after a person has become unemployed. The four classes of employés disqualified from receiving benefits are those who were discharged for misconduct, those who left their jobs voluntarily, those who are ordinarily self-employed and accepted only temporary work, and those who are attending school during most of the year.

No Benefits During Strikes.

An employé will not receive benefits while he is out of work because of a trade dispute still in active progress in the establishment, or if he is out of work because of an act of God, fire or other catastrophe, or civil or military act directly affecting his place of employment. Also, he will not receive benefits if he fails to register for work at free employment offices available in the locality as instructed by his employer, or if he does not report to the employer as frequently as the latter reasonably requires.

Benefit payments will cease when the person involved finds work in line with his usual employment or other work for which he is "reasonably fitted." If he refuses to accept work he is automatically disqualified from the benefits.

The unemployed person eligible under the plan will receive weekly benefits of 50 per cent of his full time wage, with restrictions of a maximum of $10 a week and a minimum of $5. The total sum in benefits an eligible person may receive is in the ratio of one week of unemployment benefit to each four weeks of employment, but no person is to receive more than ten weeks of benefit payment during any one calendar year.

How Liability Is Limited.

The employer's liability to pay the benefits is limited to the amount of the insurance fund set up by him. When the fund falls below $50 per employé, the amount of benefits drops $1 per week for each $5 the fund is below this figure. To prevent an employer reducing wages to obtain the required sum for the insurance fund or refuse to pay premiums, the compensation statute carries a penalty of $25 to $100 fine, or a maximum of 30 days' imprisonment for the offense. The same penalties are provided for those who make false statements in attempts to secure benefits. The statute intends that contributions by employers to the funds shall be deducted by them in computing income taxes.

One of several other compulsory plans employers may adopt in lieu of insurance is that in which employment is guaranteed for a specified period depending on the length of time an employé has worked for him. The standard arrangement is for a guarantee of at least 42 weeks of work per year or wages for at least two-thirds the full time weekly hours normally worked.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farm

By Bob Becker

Unwelcome Stall Mate.

July 1, 1934.

JACK, one of the workhorses here on the farm, may be christened "Paul Revere" before the summer is many more weeks old. He seems to be the best "alarm sounder" among the horses. Yesterday Jack sounded the alarm to Herman Guenther that something was wrong in the horse barn found a fox snake had appropriated an empty stall in order to coil up for a nap.

If these fox snakes [usually called spotted adders] on the farm don't look out they are going to make themselves a general nuisance. First they raided the poultry yard and gulped down three small ducklings, and then a good sized one wanted to move in with the horses.

Although all of the horses in the barn had seen this fox snake and were frightened by it, Jack was the one that made the biggest fuss. I was wondering why this particular horse kicked up such a big rumpus. Clarence Thurow, manager of the farm had the answer. He said that last summer Jack received the fright of his life when he stepped on a fox snake in the field. Apparently this horse hasn't forgotten the experience. Therefore, when this reptile crawled into the barn, slid past his hind legs and went into the vacant stall next to him, he wanted to tell the world that this new stall mate was a highly undesirable citizen.

The last corn to be planted here on the farm is now under the soil. This planting has been made just to produce fodder. If it comes through as the boys think it will the corn will be cut this fall and put into a silo for the stock. Seven acres of this fodder corn have been planted.

Clarence has a different schedule of work on terrifically hot days such as have prevailed in the Fox river valley and elsewhere in Illinois this season. This schedule is to make it easier both for the men and the horses which are worked in the fields. In the first place everybody turns out earlier in the morning so that the horses are hitched up at least an hour earlier than on cool mornings. For example, last week when the sun was a scorcher here on the farm, the horses were ready to go to the fields at 5:45 standard time which means that the men had to turn out considerably earlier than that.

Everybody worked in the fields until 11:15. By 11:30 the horses were in the barn to rest and cool off. Because of the heat the animals were not taken out for the afternoon work until they had had a two hour rest. Of course they are rested frequently when in the field and also are given water at intervals.

On the hot days the flies are a great annoyance. Every work horse has his neck and back covered with some kind of a net or light cotton blanket as a protection against insects. But this covering hasn't been enough because the biting, stinging insects get at the noses of the horses. Last week there were mornings when it was impossible to work the animals without putting a sort of "nose basket" on each horse, a contrivance that keeps insects out. Without these [comparable to a headnet that some of us fishermen have to use at times in order to fish with some degree of comfort] the horses are frantic due to the bites of insects. They rear up on their hind legs and sometimes practically refuse to work in harness.

FARMERS FEAR LACK OF WATER IN THE FUTURE

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Clinton, Ia., July 1.—[Special.]—A 1,200 mile tour through the heart of the corn belt has revealed that the first half of 1934 has been filled with surprises for farmers. In most cases live stock and grain producers are successfully meeting the emergencies growing out of the spring and early summer drouth and pest outbreaks.

Out of this year's experience farmers say they have learned valuable lessons toward reduction of acreage sown to oats, barley, rye, timothy, and other crops susceptible to drouth and pests. Probably more resistant crops, such as soybeans, cowpeas, alfalfa, sweet clover, and other legumes, great soil builders and producers of valuable feed, will be employed.

Water Supply Steadily Falls.

Farmers are becoming alarmed, especially in Missouri, over the shortage of a permanent water supply for their live stock and for their homes, due not only to a shortage of rainfall for years and the acute results of the drouth this year on lakes, ponds, and small streams. Many Illinois, Missouri, and Iowa farmers have been hauling water from springs, deep wells, and large streams fifteen to twenty miles away. Loss of many valuable trees is feared.

O. R. Johnson's report in the University of Missouri survey shows that in southeastern Missouri there has developed a shortage ranging from one-third to one-half a year's normal precipitation since 1930. In the Ozark uplands as well as in the northern part of the state there is a full year's shortage of rainfall.

Missouri farmers recall that following the dry season of 1901 thousands of farm families had short winter rations. Some ate fat side meat and bitter molasses made from frost bitten sugar cane, with corn bread as the sole ration for several months. Meanwhile thousands of farm animals starved. Such a situation is not expected this coming winter, if there is a reasonable amount of rain henceforth.

Hope for Corn Crop.

Experienced farmers say even with an accumulated shortage of rainfall they can produce a good corn crop this year, if they get an adequate supply of moisture in the critical growing period. The small grains, hay and pasture crops failed to get a sufficient amount of moisture during the critical growing period. As a result those crops are the shortest they have been in many years in Illinois, Missouri, and Iowa, with almost a complete failure in the worst drouth sections.

Iowa Farmers Handicapped.

Iowa farmers have been somewhat handicapped in planting soybeans as an emergency crop this year because of excessively high prices asked by dealers for seed. In most parts of Missouri and Illinois soybeans did not sell much above $2 a bushel, and in most cases they were less. In Iowa, however, the demand for soybeans was so great that the price was advanced to $5 a bushel in some sections. Tama county farmers, for example, refused to pay $5. They planted corn for silage and fodder instead. The result is that corn in that section varies greatly in height. Some is just tall enough to cultivate the first time, while corn in the early planted fields, that survived the drouth, is waist high. In a few fields the corn is tall enough to "hide a horse," and an occasional patch on rich ground is tasseling near Tama, Ia.

REVIVE MONOXIDE VICTIM.

Raymond Dewageneire, 26 years old, 1511 Bryn Mawr avenue, a janitor, was revived by a fire department rescue squad yesterday when overcome by carbon monoxide gas in working on his automobile in a garage at the rear of 5647 North Clark street.

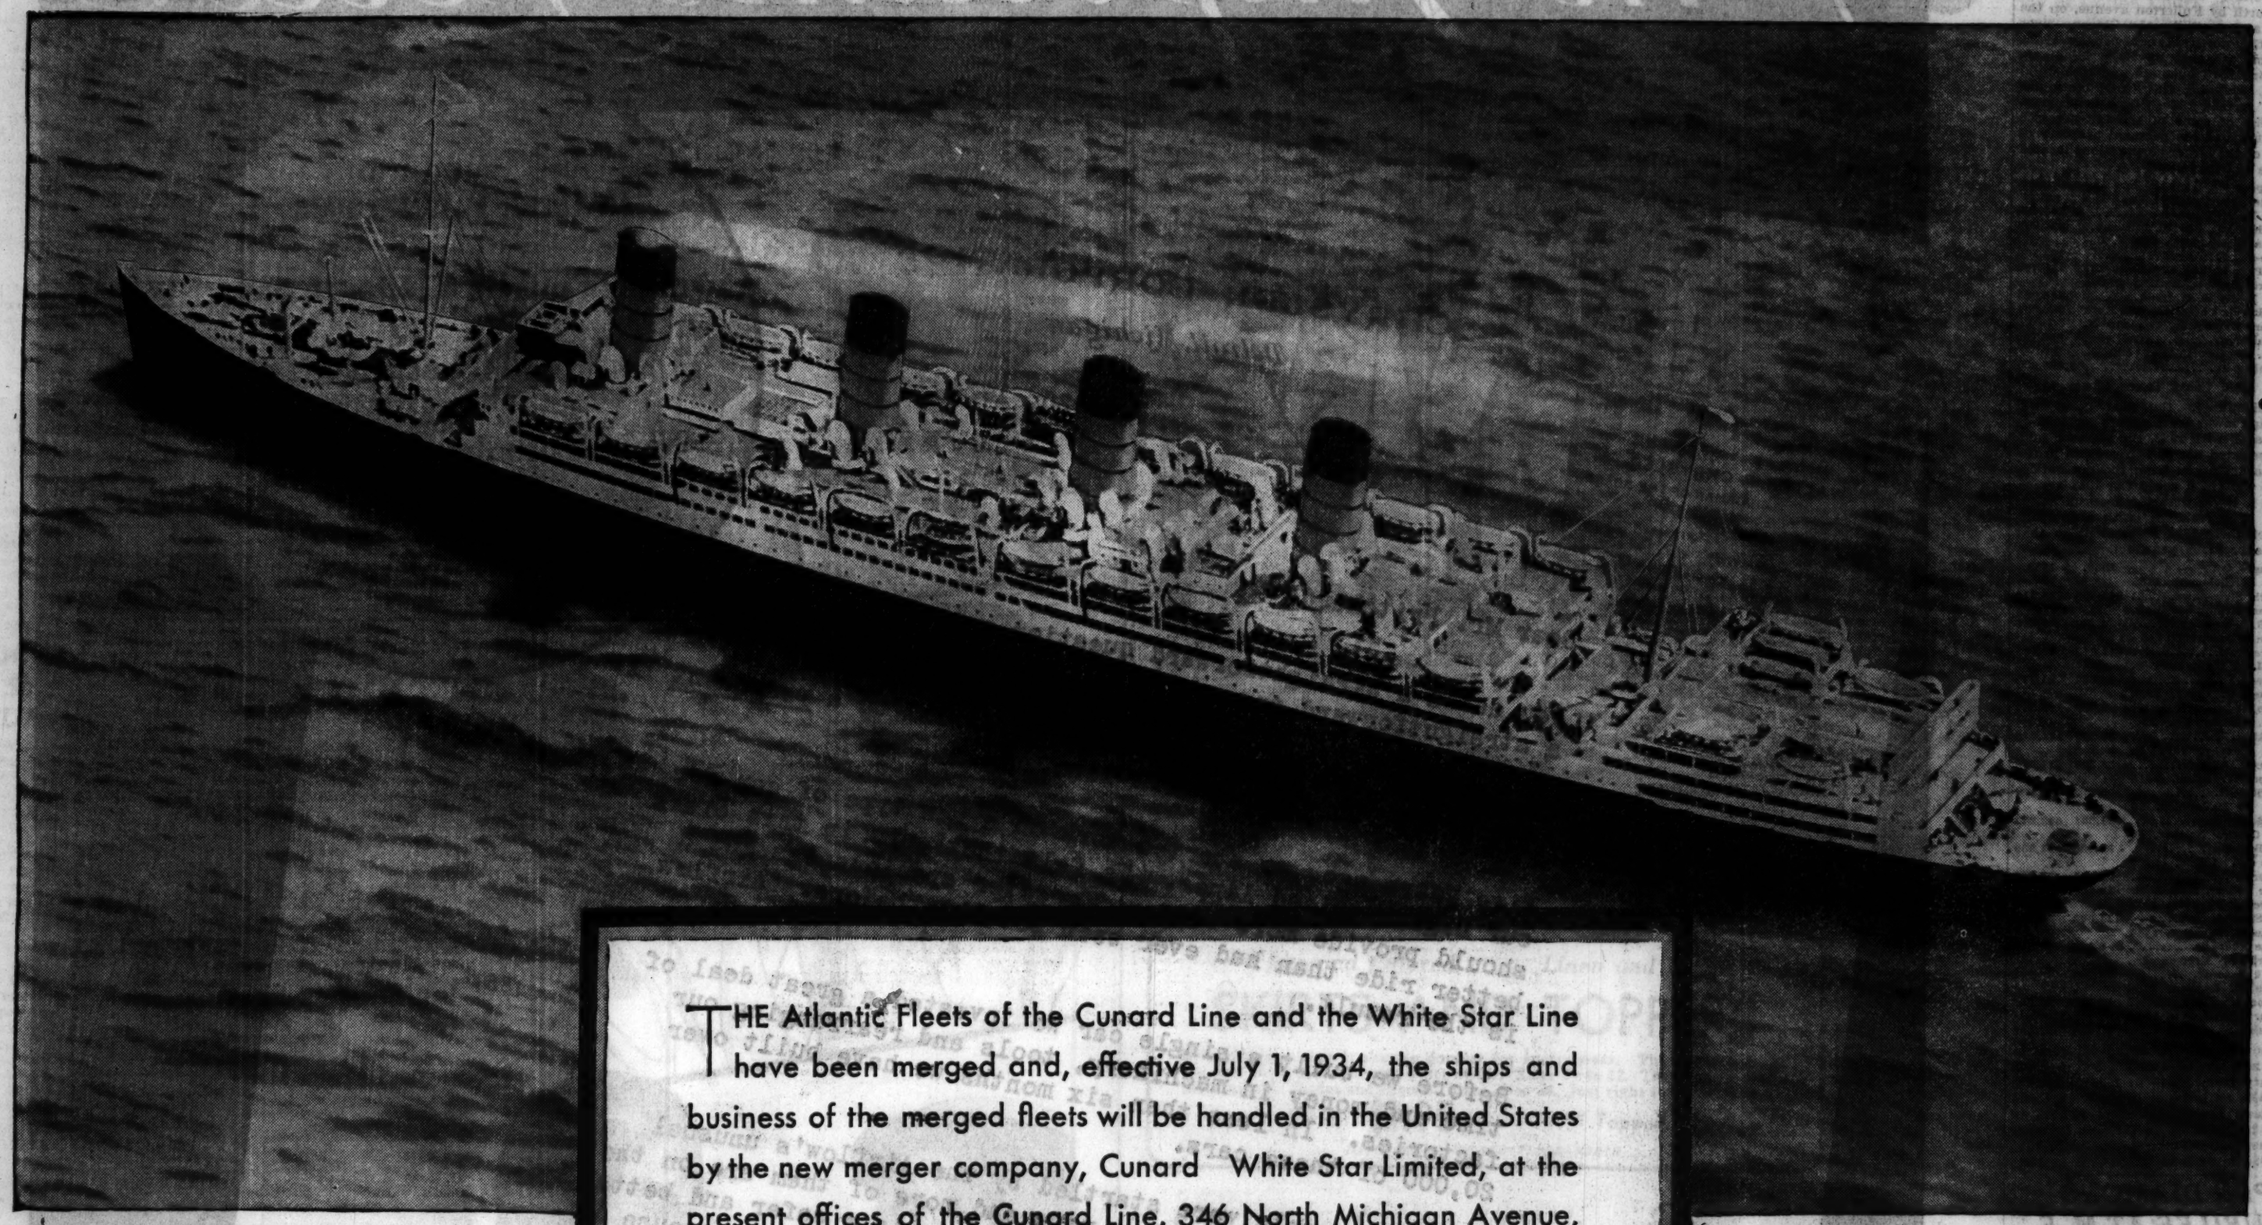
CUNARD WHITE STAR LIMITED



THE Atlantic Fleets of the Cunard Line and the White Star Line have been merged and, effective July 1, 1934, the ships and business of the merged fleets will be handled in the United States by the new merger company, Cunard White Star Limited, at the present offices of the Cunard Line, 346 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago, and branch offices in the principal cities of the United States: New York, Atlanta, Los Angeles, Philadelphia, San Francisco, Baltimore, Cleveland, Minneapolis, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Boston, Detroit, New Orleans, Portland, Me., Seattle, Washington, D. C. Your Local Travel Agent is ready to serve you.

CUNARD and WHITE STAR are now one, a story of the sea which is the history of Britain. For seamen founded this island kingdom. Ships were "The wooden walls of England" . . . far-flung boundaries which fostered industry and commerce to keep step with empire. Life was inextricably bound in with the needs of England's growth over the seven seas . . . the best of the land went into her ships, the best of her men to man them.

And throughout the last century almost the whole story of Britain on the seas is the history of the parallel development of Cunard and White Star. Together they have gone forward, participating alike in a tradition of ships and seamen which has become almost synonymous with the record of achievement in ocean transportation as we know it today. And now Cunard and White Star are one in fact. Their union brings into being what is by far the greatest fleet on the Atlantic—616,000 tons—with the world's two largest vessels as flagships. These vast resources under one management are immediately significant to the traveller and shipper. But there is another significance that lies behind the veil of statistics. The British tradition of seamanship lives in the hearts and minds of men, and there we believe lies the supreme good in the Cunard White Star union. It brings together a great body of officers and men . . . irreplaceable men without whom ships would be so much steel. It joins and vitalizes the traditions of seamen who made ocean transportation what it is today; who today are making it what it will be tomorrow.

NEW PROVISIONS RAISE PERSONAL PROPERTY TAXES

Gold Coast List Is Made Public.

Applying for the first time that part 7 of rule 11 of the Illinois tax commission which permits assessment of intangible assets of a corporation, Assessor J. L. Jacobs estimated yesterday that the value of personal property in Cook county for 1933 would exceed the assessment for 1932 despite a reduction of more than $33,000,000 in the assessment on bank stocks.

The value of personal property for 1932 as shown on the tax assessment books was $982,105,388. The exact figure for the 1933 assessment will not be known until some time in August when the assessment is expected to be completed, the assessor said.

Under rule 11, the assessor asserted, the "good will" of a corporation is subject to an assessed valuation in accordance with the earnings of the corporation.

North Town Figures Up.

In the North Town district, where the first of the personal tax notices have been mailed, the total assessed value is shown to be $75,678,965, as compared to the 1932 assessment of $73,598,198. This district, bounded on the north by Fullerton avenue, on the west and south by the Chicago river and the north branch of the river, and on the east by Lake Michigan, contains both business and residential areas, including the "gold coast district" in the Lake Shore drive area.

A list of some of the tax assessed valuations of the personal property of some of the larger corporations located in the district follow:

Company—	Assessed value.
Pepsodent Co., 919 N. Michigan..	222,079

F. W. Woolworth Co., 520 N. Michigan-av.	1,895,605

Gold Coast Taxes Lower.

Residents in the gold coast will average lower assessments for 1933 as compared with 1932, the assessor said.

A selected list of 17 residents in the gold coast taken from the tax notices show that in 9 cases the 1933 assessment is lower than the assessment for 1932. The residents, with a comparison of their 1933 assessment to that of the previous year, follows:

Arthur Farwell, 1448 Lake Shore-dr.	18,315	25,900

The assessor noted an increase in the number of automobiles in Cook county from 16,675 in 1930 to 180,909 in 1932; an increase in watercraft and airplane assessment from $11,625 in 1930 to $1,664,323 in 1932; an increase in merchandise assessment from $11,138,994 in 1930 to $87,924,000 in 1932.

OPEN DIAMOND JUBILEE AT M. E. CAMP MEETING

Diamond jubilee sessions of the famous Des Plaines Methodist camp meeting were formally opened yesterday. Sermons for the occasion were preached by Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf of the Chicago area, and Bishop William Fraser McDowell of Washington, D. C., former presiding bishop of American Methodism. The 75th anniversary of the meeting also was observed by the dedication of a sun dial in memory of former members of the meeting.

Last night Bishop Waldorf addressed 3,000 members of the Epworth league of Chicago. He told the young people that modern man has more facts at his disposal than had peoples of any other period, but that modern man has not yet learned their meaning.

Bishop McDowell recalled his former residence here as bishop of the Chicago area. He declared Chicago to be making steady improvement and added that the city could be transformed, morally and spiritually, if its citizens would apply their religious consciousness to Chicago's problems.

INDIANS' PONY FEUD BEGUN IN 1879 ENDS WITH 1934 FEASTING

Pawnee, Okla., July 1.—(AP)—The Pawnees and Osages are ready to break bread together again, even though the Pawnees stole an Osage pony in 1879 because it won so many races when bet against.

Maj. Gordon W. [Pawnee Bill] Lillie, one time partner of Buffalo Bill [William F. Cody] is bringing the tribes together again. Lillie for years has been counsellor to the Pawnees. He was invited by Fred Lookout, principal chief of the Osages, to attend a feast at Pawhuska today and be inducted as an honorary member of the Osage council.

REPORT SANITARY DISTRICT STATUS MUCH IMPROVED

Default Nearly Wiped Out; Construction Speeded.

The sanitary district has completed $1,235,870 of construction, launched $12,765,000 of new building operations, and reduced defaulted interest obligations by $6,242,846 during the last six months, according to a semi-annual report to be submitted today to the United States Supreme court.

The progress has been made despite nonpayment of $32,465,703, or 30.6 per cent of the $106,168,295 in taxes from 1928 to 1933.

The semi-annual statement of sanitary district affairs is required by a Supreme court decree handed down in April, 1930, ordering the district to carry out a program of sewage treatment to reduce Lake Michigan diversion to 1,500 cubic feet a second by 1939 and to report regularly on the progress of the work.

Loan Speeds Activity.

Of the entire $221,154,588 construction program planned to accomplish complete sewage treatment, $102,204,588 is completed, leaving $118,950,000 of work to be done. Most of the projects now finished were under way before the decree was entered, but construction was halted for two years by the inability of the district to collect taxes.

A federal loan of $42,000,000, granted in December, 1933, has made possible the resumption of large scale building operations, the report relates.

Construction now under way and that to be pushed to completion, at the rate of a million dollars a month, by the end of 1935, totals nearly $40,000,000, the report advises the court.

Estimates Amount Done.

This figure includes the $12,765,000 projects now in progress, largely sections of the west side intercepting sewer, five contracts totaling $3,412,000 in the process of letting, four totaling $1,984,000 to be let this summer, and the $21,000,000 west-southwest treatment project which will be under construction by fall.

The report lists the north side treatment works, costing $42,500,000 as 90 per cent complete, the west side works, costing $55,800,000, as one-third finished, and the Calumet project, costing $35,000,000 as more than 50 per cent done. Work in the immediate future will be concentrated on the west-southwest program, it says.

The report declares that $10,226,514 in sanitary district taxes has been collected during the last six months. This amount, it is pointed out, is only 10 per cent of the taxes levied and due.

Interest in Better Shape.

The money was to redeem tax warrants, pay current expenses, and reduce defaulted interest on bonds from $8,370,268 to $126,000. The total outstanding bonds are fixed at $16,238,125.

"While the report does not claim any improvement in the tax situation, it does show great improvement in the condition of defaulted interest on bonds and it sets forth very satisfactory progress in construction activities," said Horace P. Ramey, assistant chief engineer for the district, who drafted the statement.

"It further shows that we have now cleared the way to really speed up our building operations and to carry out the court's mandate. We will have real results in this field to show at the end of this year."

An Important Letter

WALTER P. CHRYSLER makes public a letter to one of his friends, because it answers a number of questions of interest to everyone

CHRYSLER CORPORATION
Detroit, Michigan

June 26, 1934

WALTER P. CHRYSLER
CHAIRMAN OF THE BOARD

Dear Mr. Pritchard:

You asked a straightforward question and I'll give you a straightforward answer.

The De Soto and Chrysler Airflow cars will be a permanent part of the Chrysler Motors line.

Five years ago, we started work on a new type of car for our higher priced lines. We felt that cars in this class should provide more comfort, greater spaciousness and a better ride than had ever been possible before. Airflow is the result.

Before we built a single car we invested a great deal of time and money in machinery, tools and rearranging our factories. In less than six months we have built over 20,000 of these cars.

At first people were startled by the Airflow's unusual appearance, but today as more and more of them are on the road, people are realizing that here is a safer and better way to travel. The Airflow car looks different because it is different.

I wish that I could get every person who is interested in cars to study and drive an Airflow. Neither talking, advertising nor pictures can bring out the real features of this new kind of car. You have to drive an Airflow to appreciate the improvement we have accomplished.

Each day finds the Airflow car becoming more popular.

So, Mr. Pritchard, go buy your Airflow. You'll be a lot happier because you bought a car that will stay modern a long time.

Very truly yours,
W. P. Chrysler
Chairman of the Board

GAS RUNS SHORT; WARSAW FLYERS LAND IN GERMANY

Plane Repaired at Paris Before Takeoff.

NEDLITZ-THEMENDORF, Germany, July 1.—(AP)—The Adamowicz brothers, flying from Paris on their way to Warsaw, landed at this village at 10 p. m. [4 p. m. Chicago daylight saving time], their trip halted by a shortage of gasoline.

The flying brothers, who crossed the ocean from New York, landed their monoplane in a potato field near this village, approximately 100 miles east of Berlin. The machine apparently was not damaged, and the brothers planned to stay here over night, leaving for Warsaw tomorrow after having their papers submitted to the customary examinations.

Make Short Stop at Paris.

Jumping out of the cockpit, the flyers found themselves immediately surrounded by a surprised and deeply interested crowd of villagers. The village sheriff was away on a Sunday outing, and the Adamowicz brothers found it difficult to inform the Polish legation at Berlin of their arrival. The brothers were invited to sleep at the home of the village constable, but they preferred to remain with their plane. Rural police were ordered to guard the machine, and to give the flyers all possible assistance at their take-off tomorrow.

The brothers, Benjamin and Joseph, flew to Paris from Chesnay this morning, remaining at Le Bourget field only two hours while minor repairs were made to their plane.

Joseph Adamowicz said he and his brother were "pretty much disappointed" and intend to try again next year to fly from New York to Warsaw. The present flight and the one in 1931 when they failed to make the trans-Atlantic journey were "equally bad" in their opinion, Joseph said.

Cans Tore Wings.

The Adamowicz brothers made a dare-devil take-off from the tall grass of the cow pasture at Chesnay, where they landed yesterday. The tiny monoplane cleared a clump of trees by a few inches as the flyers headed for Le Bourget.

They had had nine hours' sleep in a 17th century farmhouse and said that the admiration of the peasants had softened somewhat their disappointment over failing to complete the trip.

As the flyers came down at Chesnay they threw cans of oil out of the plane to lighten the shock of landing. The cans tore off strips of fuselage. The plane wobbled through a fence, snapping a fence post off at the ground. The tail of the craft bumped into a timothy covered hole, breaking off the rear landing wheel.

PATROLMAN IS SLAIN, 3 OTHERS WOUNDED BY VICTIM OF HEAT

Elizabeth, N. J., July 1.—[Special.]—Crazed by the heat after he had been drinking, a retired policeman's son opened fire without warning tonight on four patrolmen who had been sent to subdue him. He killed one and wounded the other three, one seriously, before he was overpowered.

The man's mother, Mrs. James F. Moran, called police after her son, James E. Moran Jr., 31, a railroad fireman, began acting queerly.

When he saw the callers the son opened fire with a pistol believed to be owned by his father. Patrolman Frank Carine, the first on the scene, fell dead with a bullet in the head.

Reduced Air Mail Rates Are Put Into Effect

Washington, D. C., July 1.—(AP)—A flat postage rate of 6 cents an ounce for air mail service went into effect today. The old rate was 8 cents for the first ounce and 13 cents for each additional ounce.

GENTRY IS SLAIN; FORMER AID OF KLAN OVERLORD

Jefferson, Wis., July 1.—[Special.]—Earl Gentry, 47 years old, former bodyguard for D. C. Stephenson, one-time grand dragon of the India a Ku Klux Klan who is now serving a life sentence for murder, was found shot and beaten to death in his car here today. The car was parked near the home of Mrs. Carrie Probst Gill, 59, wealthy widow, with whom Gentry had made his home for the last seven years.

Mrs. Gill discovered the murder and notified Sherif Joseph Lange. Gentry had been shot once in the head and beaten. Blood stained towels and rugs were wrapped around his head. Mrs. Gill identified these as coming from her house.

The widow told Sherif Lange that she last saw Gentry at 6:30 p. m. Saturday and that she spent the night at the home of her brother, Ferdinand Probst. Neighbors declared they saw Gentry's car parked in its fatal spot at 6 a. m. today. Sherif Lange also understood that Gentry was seen in Racine last midnight with Miss Josephine Probst of Fort Atkinson, 26 year old niece of Mrs. Probst.

Gentry was a co-defendant with former Dragon Stephenson in the trial which resulted in a life sentence for the latter. The two, with Earl Klinck, another bodyguard, were tried at Noblesville, Ind., in 1925 for the slaying of Madge Oberholtzer. Gentry and Klinck were acquitted. Since then Gentry had been living here at the Gill home as a house employe.

REPORT CABINET OF JAPAN WILL RESIGN TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, July 2 [Monday].—The Tokio Asahi, a leading newspaper, in an extra edition today, reports that the cabinet will resign tomorrow when Minister of Justice Matsukichi Koyama hands in his report.

All officers of the combined fleet above the rank of captain, numbering 60, handed a joint petition today to Prince Fushimi, chief of the naval general staf; Admiral Kanji Kato, chief of the supreme war council, and Mineo Osumi, minister of the navy, to scrap the Washington pact and establish a strong government in Tokio.

The petition declares that the Washington pact is expiring next year, and urges Japan to take steps for an early guarantee of national autonomy on the principle of equality.

The newspaper Nichi Nichi says the petition is an indication that the hands of higher officers were forced by the strong stand of their subordinates, and that unless they sent the petition there would be danger of "unhappy incidents."

New York, July 1.—[Special.]—Playing with an electric light plug dangling from a wall socket near his high chair, 17 months old Edward Gaffney was electrocuted tonight in the apartment of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Gaffney, in the Bronx.

MURRAY'S HAND SEEN AS FORCE IN OKLAHOMA VOTE

Oklahoma City, Okla., July 1.—(AP)—The figure of Gov. William H. [Alfalfa Bill] Murray casts its shadow over the Oklahoma primary election to be held Tuesday.

Murray has said he is not attempting to dictate Oklahoma's next governor, but his foes see it differently. They have flayed Tom Anglin, speaker of the house, as the administration choice who is ready to carry on Murray's program.

Fifteen aspirants seek the nomination, among them Representative E. W. Marland, the Democrat who made and lost a fortune in oil, and Jack Walton, one of the governors Oklahoma impeached.

Attorney General J. Berry King is seeking the office on an anti-Murray plea. Lieut. Gov. Robert Burns has trained his guns on both Murray and Anglin. The race has overshadowed those for other state offices.

MacDonald Starts Vacation by Forgetting Train Tickets

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 1.—Prime Minister MacDonald Smith, accompanied by his daughter, Ishbel, left London tonight for Lossiemouth, Scotland, on the first stage of the three month holiday ordered by his medical advisers. They made a bad start by forgetting to get their train tickets, but the omission did not affect their departure.

PROGRESS MADE IN SMOKE FIGHT, SURVEY SHOWS

In the first three months of this year, the city smoke abatement department, under the direction of Frank A. Chambers, according to a report made public yesterday, accomplished as much work as normally would be done in a year. The reason was that the regular city force of 16 was augmented by 168 Civil Works administration workers who were used in making a survey of smoke conditions.

The CWA men were stationed throughout the city, surveying boiler plants, observing all chimneys and stacks, and giving instruction in schools to janitors and firemen on proper methods of stoking furnaces. The expenditure of federal funds on this project was $84,028, but it had the effect, Mr. Chambers said, of instigating furnace reconstruction and new installations amounting to $418,960.

Some figures that show the amount of work done by the CWA force with comparison to the work of other years are as follows:

	1934, 3 months.	1933.	Five yrs., 1929-33.
Instruction visits	11,149	11,623	74,698
Violations reported	4,868	2,171	19,274

The survey showed that the average dust fall per square mile per month in the city now is 107.7 tons, as compared with 230.33 tons in 1932.

CUBA SEIZES 4 IN PLOT AGAINST MENDIETA'S RULE

HAVANA, Cuba, July 1.—(AP)—A former army officer and three civilians were arrested today in connection with a reported conspiracy against the government of President Carlos Mendieta which was discovered yesterday.

Dr. Cayetano Fraga, chief of technical police, announced that the asserted plot had been "nipped in the bud." Military authorities were actively rounding up additional suspects. Fourteen policemen, arrested yesterday and accused of complicity in the conspiracy, were confined incommunicado at Cabanas fortress.

The exact charges against the four arrested today were not made public.

A collection of art treasures which tell the story of Persian culture and social life for the last 3,500 years has just been placed on display on the seventh floor of Mandel Brothers store, it was announced yesterday. Rugs, tapestries, manuscripts of the 14th and 17th centuries, miniatures and similar objects of art comprise the collection.

Notable among the pieces is a copy of the Koran, 510 years old. The exhibition was brought here by Dr. Ali Kuli Khan, formerly Persia's charge d'affaires at Washington. The objects were collected by Dr. Khan, his family and friends.

JULY 4 HOLIDAY FILLS ROADS TO AND FROM CITY

Chicagoans Stream North; Rails Prosper.

With springlike weather making all forms of travel comfortable, there was an exodus of several hundred thousand Chicagoans over the week-end, with the prospect of an equally large outmovement of trafic starting tomorrow night.

Because July 4 falls in the middle of the week, city dwellers who felt they could take an extra two days off were linking the holiday with this week-end or next to create short vacations.

Chicago's vast transportation facilities were handling about as many incoming travelers as persons leaving the city, with the World's Fair drawing numerous large excursions. In fact, railroad passenger agents predicted that their July 4 holiday business for 1934 may be ahead of last year's record breaking figures.

Forecaster C. A. Donnel promised fair weather for most of today, but with increasing cloudiness that is likely to end in a thunderstorm at night. He expects tomorrow to be fair and cooler. Pleasant skies are forecast for the wanderers in Wisconsin and Michigan resorts.

Heat Oppresses New York.

The east appeared yesterday to be suffering under the heat wave which during part of last week blanketed the middle west outside Chicago.

In New York City the third day of excessive temperatures drove hundreds of thousands of persons to suburban beaches. City streets were virtually deserted, dispatches said, as the mercury reached 90 at 3 p. m., 18 degrees above the July 1 average.

Generally fair weather will prevail today in the north central states, Mr. Donnel said, except that scattered thundershowers may occur in some of the extreme northern areas. In the extreme northwest temperatures will drop today, but other regions will see only slight changes.

At the Automobile Club of Illinois and the Chicago Motor club it was said that thousands of motorists had telephoned or visited the offices for information, particularly on Friday and Saturday.

Railroad Short of Cars.

Most of these were contemplating trips of 300 to 400 miles, to Wisconsin and Michigan, which meant they would not return to Chicago until after the Fourth.

While responses were not uniform, most of the railroads reported heavy out going passenger trafic. The Chicago and North Western railway "couldn't get enough cars" for its passengers, most of whom were headed for northern Wisconsin, it was said. The Burlington, the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific, and the Michigan Central also were elated over holiday ticket sales.

At the Union station it was noticed that the number of passengers leaving the city was unusually heavy, exceeding last year's holiday business.

Boat Travel Picks Up.

Several ticket agents expressed the belief, however, that more people would have gone out of town if July 4 were on any other day than Wednesday. The last three days have produced a great amount of bus business, it was said at the Union Bus depot.

The best patronage in years was experienced by lake passenger boats, according to W. K. Greenebaum, manager of the Chicago Roosevelt Steamship company. Advance bookings show, according to Mr. Greenebaum, that thousands of persons are to have at least part of their outings on water, either en route to destinations or touring the lake during the holiday period.

Numerous special attractions will be held over July 4, pretentious plans being made for an aquatic carnival at Benton Harbor, including boat races and swimming events. Special entertainment is also planned for South Haven.

RKO-RADIO PRESIDENT ORDERS NO SMUT FOR COMPANY'S PICTURES

New York, July 1.—(AP)—Producers in RKO-Radio studios have been instructed by B. B. Kahane, president, to eliminate the possibility of offensive material in film plays made there.

In a letter of instructions to producers, made public today, Kahane calls attention to recent attacks against the motion picture industry because of objectionable elements in some productions.

"Many of the attacks are unwarranted," his letter says. "The attitude of some of the critics is unreasonable and unfair. On the other hand, the criticisms coming from certain religious groups, prominent educators, the motion picture researche council, parent-teacher associations and other highly respected persons and organizations are to a large extent justifiable.

"While our company has in good faith attempted to keep its productions free from legitimate criticism, a few of our pictures have been included in those criticized. It is imperative that henceforth still greater care be taken to avoid objectionable themes and offensive scenes and lines, and I expect all producers on our lot to give me their fullest coöperation."

WOMAN ROUTS INSULL IN TIFF TO SAVE SEAT

Samuel Insull, former utility magnate awaiting trial here on state and federal charges, lost a brief contest yesterday over a seat at the Chicago Symphony orchestra concert on the Swift bridge at A Century of Progress.

Insull, who was visiting the Fair alone, spied a single seat in the third row of the unreserved section of the open air auditorium. He attempted to take it, but a woman in the next seat said she was holding it for her husband. Insull called Alvin Prange, a guard, but the woman clung to the seat.

"So many people are already mad at me," said Insull finally, "that I can't afford to have any more feel that way." He smiled at the woman and retreated. He ultimately found another seat in the first row, directly in front of the players' shell.

DILLINGER PALS FORCE DOCTOR'S HELP; SLUG HIM

Two Outlaws Draw Hunt to Warsaw, Ind.

Ohio, where Dillinger and his outlaws are supposted to have remained in seclusion for more than a month before the ruthless raid in South Bend Saturday, in which they wounded four men besides killing the policeman.

Scene of Raid on Police.

Across the state line in Ohio is Lima, scene of one of the gang's most daring exploits, the murder of Sheriff Jess Sarber and freeing of Dillinger in return for his services in aiding 10 convicts to escape from the Indiana penitentiary on Sept. 26, 1933.

After Dillinger had been delivered from the Lima jail the gang swept down on the police station at Warsaw, bound two policemen, and escaped with machine guns and bulletproof vests, with which they have been carrying on their depredations throughout the middle west since.

Only four men, two of whom were said to be wounded, were seen to leave the bullet riddled car found at Goodland, which led authorities to believe t hat the gang had split up before reaching there.

It was considered possible that the two men who slugged Dr. Laird had separated from the others soon after leaving South Bend, since witnesses were not agreed as to the number who participated in the bank raid. Two machine gunners and the leader, identified as Dillinger, who carried an automatic pistol, were in the bank and either two or three men waited in the automobile outside.

Deny Doubt Over Leader.

The four men who left the car at Goodland seized another machine and headed west toward the Illinois line. It was believed probable that their destintaion was Chicago, where Dillinger has obtained sanctuary before in the flats of underworld women and friendly gangsters.

Detective Harry Henderson, who claimed to have wounded one of the bandits as they fled, and Charles Coen, vice president of the South Bend bank, identified the leader of the raiders as Dillinger.

No doubt remained in the minds of authorities yesterday that he really was Dillinger, because of the fashion in which the robbery was executed, the ruthless spraying of machine gun bullets, and the successful getaway, despite an immediate warning to state highway policemen throughout Indiana to guard all the roads.

The automobile in which the bandits made their escape bore Ohio license plates which were on the car used in the Fostoria, O., bank robbery in May when Chief of Police Frank Culp was killed.

REBELLIOUS SWARM OF BEES FLEES FROM FAIR MODEL APIARY

A free demonstration of apiarian skill was given to several thousand somewhat startled visitors at the World's Fair yesterday, when a swarm of bees escaped from the model apiary in the General Science building.

There was consternation among the Fair's police force when the swarm was reported on the loose, but an attendant from the model apiary was unexcited. He followed the swarm to a tree near the General Exhibits building, and while spectators watched at a respectful distance, cut off the limb with a saw, dumped the bees into a large waste basket, and unconcernedly draped a sack over the top. Then he returned the wanderers to their hive.

INSULL TO MAKE PLEA TODAY ON FRAUD CHARGES

Samuel Insull Sr. is scheduled for another federal court appearance this morning and will be called upon to make his formal plea to an indictment in which he and 16 others are accused of a gigantic mail fraud in connection with the collapse of Corporation Securities company.

Insull's formal arraignment will take place in Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson's court, after which the judge will hear arguments on motions for bills of particulars for both Insull and his co-defendants.

These arguments will require at least a day, according to United States Attorney Dwight H. Green. Judge Wilkerson may either take the matter under advisement or rule immediately and set a date for the trial.

One of the defendants who will not be present for the arguments is Samuel Insull Jr., who left last night for New York to meet his mother, who will arrive from Paris on the Majestic late tomorrow or early Wednesday.

SYMPHONY RULES FAIR AS CROWDS SET NEW RECORD

BY EARL MULLIN.

Cultural attractions dominated A Century of Progress yesterday as attendance established a new Sunday record. At midnight the visitors totaled 116,565, compared with the previous high mark of a week before, 115,724.

Outstanding drawing cards were the first free programs in the history of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, presented in the amphitheater on the Swift bridge. Ten thousand listened to the classical music.

For the afternoon concert, with no reserved seats, 4,000 enthusiasts packed the auditorium, crowded the nearby restaurants, and overflowed upon the bridge proper.

July 4 Vanguard Arrives.

The formal première concert, attended by ranking music lovers and social figures, took place in the evening.

Ten thousand more persons watched the aquatic circus on the Lagoon theater, where fancy diving and dizzy aerial acts were offered gratis under the cloudless summer sky.

The day saw, moreover, the arrival of thousands of Canadians and Americans of Canadian origin for the observance today of Fort William-Canada day. The vanguard of Fourth of July revelers also began pouring into the city and the Fair.

SYMPHONY NEVER GREATER

BY EDWARD MOORE.

It seems almost a foregone conclusion that yesterday started the Chicago Symphony orchestra in a new phase of influence on the public and thereby to newly effective popularity. Yesterday the orchestra began its series of concerts at the Swift Bridge of Service, and for the next ten weeks it will give two concerts a day, afternoon and evening, in that strikingly handsome theater. For ten weeks it will be in friendly rivalry with the Detroit Symphony orchestra, which is playing almost simultaneously with it at the Ford Gardens, farther south in the Exposition grounds.

As a matter of fact there is almost continuous music at the Swift bridge these days. Just before the orchestra programs yesterday there were two concerts by the Ezenezer Lutheran choir, directed by George A. Carlson—well sung programs of motets, chorales, and secular numbers.

Well Chosen Numbers.

And when neither choir nor orchestra appeared that highly popular organist, Jesse Crawford, came to the console for a program played in his own personal and inimitable manner.

But the top of all this was the Chicago Symphony. It is a great orchestra, and never greater than when it is playing a program aimed directly at the art of entertainment, the more melodious symphonies, lighter classics, dance numbers that quicken the pulse and stir the soul, the fine tunes of all time.

Here was Schubert's "Unfinished" Symphony in one spot, an elaborate group of Wagner in another, a merry overture here, a ballet suite there, and all to the loudly expressed approval of the thronging audience.

Enlist Guest Conductors.

Eric DeLamarter conducted, and never was a summertime program wafted toward an audience with defter baton or more sure fire sense of what is musically effective. An admirable musician at all times, he was here an admirable musical dramatist as well.

On the Wednesday and Thursday programs several works by Chicago composers are scheduled, and on Thursday Felix Borowski, Robert Sanders, and Leo Sowerby will appear as guest conductors in the direction of their own compositions.

CENTURY OF PROGRESS NOTES

MISS HENRIETTA M. PINNEKE of Guttenberg, Iowa, and Francis D. Sauerby of Edgewood, Iowa, met last year in the lounge of the Havoline thermometer. They will be married at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the same place in a public ceremony. The Rev. Walter Wietzke of the Grace Lutheran church, 61st street and Marshfield avenue, will perform the ceremony with officials of A Century of Progress as witnesses. Mordecai [Three Fingered] Brown, famous former Cub pitcher, who is superintendent of the exhibit, will act as best man.

"The Fair is very entertaining and instructive," was Miss Regina Herschmann's comment at the Exposition grounds yesterday, "but not half so exciting as Havana was during the recent revolutions." Miss Herschmann lives in Havana where her brother is an engineer with the Cuban Electric company. She is spending several days in Chicago, visiting friends and seeing the Fair.

W. R. [Bill] Bonthron, Princeton middle distance runner who set a new world's record Saturday by running 1,500 meters in 3 minutes 48.8 seconds in the National A. A. U. championship meet at Milwaukee, visited the Fair yesterday.

Judges in forty-eight states will start today selecting the photographs of the babies who will enter the finals of the Sears, Roebuck and company's $40,000 Century of Progress contest to find America's most beautiful baby. The state winners' photographs will be posted in the Sears building at the Fair on Aug. 1, and visitors will vote for their choice.

An exhibit showing by motion pictures the workings of the Inland Waterways has been opened in the Travel and Transport building.

The drum and bugle corps of the Bell post of the American Legion took part yesterday in memorial services in the Pantheon building for the fallen war heroes of the Chicago Telephone company. They also dedicated an exhibit of war relics collected by Daniel E. Moore, 1510 West 104th street, which was placed in the lobby of the building housing the giant World war painting.

The thirty girl swimmers and divers who perform twice daily on the Lagoon theatre will close their engagement Wednesday. The Three Diving Collegians, who have been performing as part of the water carnival, are to succeed the girls.

COUPLE MARRIED IN THE NUDE AT FAIR ARRESTED

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Wallace Jr., who got some publicity Friday when they were married in the nude at the World's Fair, were arrested yesterday morning on charges of participating in an indecent exhibition.

The charges were made by James Patterson, 26 years old, 230 East Ohio street, a divinity student, who declared he had witnessed the wedding. He signed warants issued Saturday afternoon by Judge Francis Borrelli after he had gone to Attorney Mary Belle Spencer for advice.

Early yesterday morning Attorney Spencer and Patterson waited in an automobile across the street from the Wallace home at 238 East Ohio street, followed them to a restaurant at 1537 North Clark street, and persuaded Hudson avenue police to make the arrest while the couple were at breakfast.

58,000 THRONG BROOKFIELD ZOO ON 1ST FREE DAY

Officials Are Pleased with Handling of Crowd.

The Chicago Zoological gardens at Brookfield were host to 58,302 persons yesterday, when the zoo was opened for its first free day. The gates were opened at 9 a. m. and before 10 o'clock 5,000 people were on the grounds. By noon 15,000 had come, and between 3 and 4 p. m. 13,000 persons crowded through the gates.

The crowds were there to get their first view at the $150,000 collection of animals housed on the 133 acres of zoo grounds, which were dedicated Saturday. In all directions the roads to the suburb of Brookfield in western Cook county were congested with traffic during the afternoon.

Zoo Officials Are Pleased.

The two officials, aside from the red uniformed gatekeepers, most in evidence were Edward H. Bean, director of the zoo, and Stanley Field, chairman of the building and organization committees. They had been on the grounds since 9 a. m., and both pronounced the opening day a rip-roaring success.

"We've been looking for wrinkles that need ironing out," Mr. Bean said, "and we've only been able to find a few. Everything is working like clockwork. Even the elephants, who were upset yesterday, are swinging with the crowd today."

"It's our first day under fire," Mr. Field said, "and I think we're going to stand up all right. Everything is orderly. The police force has had no trouble at all and all the animal houses have been packed since morning.

Visitors Climb Guard Rails.

"I've tried four times today to get to see the lion kittens and haven't been able to get anywhere near them. The pachyderm mountain was so crowded that the attendants wanted to close the doors. We told them to leave them open so the people could get out."

The only real "wrinkle" of the day, both officials decided, came from the visitors themselves, who "kept climbing over the guard rails to see what keeps the animals from coming out."

The star performers of the day were five black bear cubs, who tumbled around the whole day long. Chief attractions were the antics of "Judy," the $2,500 African elephant, the hippopotamus and her underwater breathing, the long legs of the heron, the reptiles, and the monkeys.

Admission to the zoo will be free on Thursdays, Saturdays, and Sundays, as well as on all legal holidays. A large crowd is anticipated for July 4. The zoo is free at all times to children under 15 years old. Adults are charged 25 cents on nonfree days.

Pana, Ill., July 1.—[Special.]—Walter Hill, chairman of the Christian county board of supervisors and of the board of review of assessments, resigned today and was checked in as postmaster of Pana, succeeding Charles Gaffner, Republican, whose term would not have expired until March 20 next year.

Slayer of Former Husband Claims He Threatened Her

Mrs. Elsie Jensen, 53 years old, who shot and killed her former husband, Ludwig, 52 years old, early in the day in their home at 6512 South Morgan street, was held by Englewood police yesterday pending a coroner's inquest today. Mrs. Jensen, who shared the same home with her former husband despite the annulment of their marriage eight years ago, told police she shot Jensen when he threatened to attack her with a knife.

"Newspapers are the sentinels of the liberties of our country."—Benjamin Rush.

A WARNING FROM GERMANY.

Enemies of Hitler will speak of the events of the week-end in Germany as murders and assassinations. Apologists for Hitler will reply that he has been obliged to take strong measures to preserve order. Students of political history will regard the argument as fruitless. They will recognize what has happened in Germany as the expectable consequence of any dictatorship and the inevitable consequence of a dictatorship which has disappointed or angered a considerable number of the people subjected to it. They will recognize, also, that the killing has only begun. Bloodshed begets bloodshed.

Hitler rose to power after an election in which he and his political allies obtained a bare majority of the popular vote. His government was by no means the unanimous choice of the German people. To consolidate his position he was forced to still all the active and latent opposition. He did so by taking over or suppressing all opposition newspapers as well as the radio. At the same time he proscribed all opposition parties. Freedom of the press, freedom of assembly, and the right of the German people to petition for the redress of grievances were ruthlessly denied. Religious tolerance ceased. Suspected opponents were jailed without being told why and in hundreds of instances without the barest formality of a trial.

Though its means of expression were gone, the opposition persisted, as it always will where men are not slaves. No two men see exactly eye to eye and, of course, no nation of 60 million people can be expected to do so. The opposition in Germany has been gathering strength of late through the failure of the Hitler dictatorship to fulfill its promise of a prompt solution of Germany's economic and financial difficulties. Under such circumstances, courageous men will conspire to overthrow the dictatorship and will be joined by ambitious men eager to succeed to positions of power.

The world does not yet know what the opponents of Hitler intended to do, if, indeed, their plans had matured to the point where overt action was contemplated. What is abundantly clear is that in the absence of any means of expressing their dissent they could resort only to inciting defection in the armed forces and to assassination. When the press is fettered, the machine gun and the bomb replace it as organs of opinion. Hitler knew that he had left his opponents no other course of conduct and, in the logic of absolutism, his decision to strike first was strictly correct. Mussolini may have counseled his action, but Hitler probably did not require the advice. He preserved his government in the only way that a dictatorship can be preserved.

If a nation wishes to avoid the horrors of civil uprising it must avoid dictatorship. Americans who have observed with growing alarm the spread of absolutism in many quarters of the globe read the news of the week-end in Germany with foreboding. Can we avoid the dictatorship which inevitably leads to ruthless killings? The answer is that we can if we will but recognize the trend toward dictatorship in time to repudiate it.

Fortunately, the trend is easily recognized. The most important of the means of expression is the press. It is, therefore, the touchstone. Governments which seek to restrict the freedom of the press are moving in the direction of dictatorship. No dictator has ever permitted free expression of opposition, and none ever will. A man with dictatorial ambitions will always strive to suppress the voices of his opponents and thus prevent them from rallying their forces. He will not fully achieve his program of suppression until he has engineered his coup d'état, but he will show the bent of his mind in his pronouncements to and about the opposition press.

In the light of events in Germany, the American people dare not defer a candid appraisal of our administration. The preservation of the republic demands an examination of official pronouncements and official acts to determine our government's attitude toward freedom of expression. Such an examination will show that the government has sought to prevent opponents from enjoying the use of the radio. The government, not content with its control of the radio, has just taken over the control of all other forms of electric communication, with all that that implies of control of opinion. The government did seek by every means in its power to keep out of the newspaper code a clause specifically reserving the constitutional freedom of the press. When this effort failed because of the foresight and determination of editors and publishers throughout the country, the President expressed his intense irritation in words scarcely less vehement than those of his subordinate, Gen. Johnson.

It should be unnecessary to add further items to the record. There is no lack of them. The evidences of trend are as unmistakable as they are ominous. The nation has received its warning. Will it apply the brakes in time to avoid the precipice?

THE THIRD PARTY.

Many Democrats can no longer recognize their own party. What was a familiar enough thing in the '32 campaign has crossed over to another range where formerly Norman Thomas and Comrade Zack Foster found a meager pasturage. Many Democrats have not followed the administration they helped to elect. Some Republicans have.

If Dr. Tugwell is to reveal the tablets with the new Democratic commandments then Thomas Jefferson has lost his party, although he may not have lost all his believers in the party. They cannot make a compromise between him and Tugwell. A government which governs best when it governs least cannot be merged with a government which will govern most whether worse or not.

Tugwellian Democrats may have a meeting of the mind with Dr. Thomas the Socialist and may not find Stalin a political alien, but they are done with principles which the party professed, with principles which Democrats and Republicans could hold in common. Upon many, if not all, ground doctrines the two parties have agreed since the civil war. Their differences did not include the fundamental law of the land. Neither party supported impairment of contract, repudiation of obligation, destruction of private property, confiscation of property or expropriation of private resources for redistribution of wealth. Neither took the position that the public treasury is charged with the well-being of every citizen, that every private enterprise must be controled by a federal commission backed by the department of justice and that no man may consider himself free, within law as heretofore known, to use his intelligence and his opportunities for himself.

Unless the new Democratic ideas are to seek their natural place with the Socialists or communists a third party will be in the minds of many citizens. In the fifties of the preceding century the precarious condition of the Union forced men who found existing parties hostile or futile to form the Republican party. That killed the Whigs, who were ready for the end, and brought the country, after the war, to the political balance it has maintained since.

When the Republican party organization became too Whiggish to suit some of its chiefs and followers Roosevelt tried the third party, which fought well once and then fizzled out. The old balance was restored, with the Republicans dominant until adversity and perversity threw them out.

It is said there is no longer a Republican party. There is more of it left than there is of the Democratic, of which officially not even the hide remains. Republicans may offer the old line, American idea Democrats something in their hour of need, just as the socialized Democratic party is offering socialistic Republicans something in their hour of opportunity. There could be a shifting in the ranks from one party to another, leaving at the end of the maneuver the two party system unchanged with a gulf between the parties and their followings readjusted on lines of conviction and desire.

It is to be seen whether the Republican party has in it the stuff that can attract the opposition to the Tugwell conceptions of society and government and put up a fight. If it can there need be no third party for that purpose. If it cannot the citizens who might have relied upon it will not be defeated in their whole purpose by its failure.

If a new party is formed, the name American party would denote a complete opposition to the political organization now in authority.

THE SOUTH POLE SITTER.

Admiral Byrd reports by radio from his cubicle near the south pole that ninety days of solitude have given him a touch of loneliness. Ordinary, gregarious people have been trying to keep the admiral out of their minds. Once he gets well into the imagination he becomes a disturbing figment. Loneliness is one of the human disorders which can become pathological. People dread the sense of it. There have been peculiar cusses who preferred it, but a crowd is home to the average fellow.

Solitude in a garden spot might be managed and endured by some, but solitude in ice, snow, and darkness is a bit too much for human nature. The admiral has his reasons and expects his reward. This expedition to the south pole had to have its variants. A mere repetition of what had been done before would not suffice. Byrd's profession is that of antarctic explorer. It is a tough profession and its possibilities can be exhausted. If a man cares to make a reputation and retire on it he can do so, but the reputation fades. No one follows an ex-Vice President very far down the block. It is the same with an ex-explorer. Prestige must be renewed from time to time and renewal requires endurance and resourcefulness.

A fellow cannot merely go to the pole any more. He must sit on it.

Editorial of the Day

THE PRESIDENT'S POWERS.

[The Commercial-Appeal.]

Congress went into such a whirlwind of legislating in the last few days that not even President Roosevelt knows yet just what powers were conferred on him. It will be several days before he is fully aware of what new laws allow him to do. His advisers are busy studying bills, and his own comment is reserved until the laws reach his desk. Congress did, however, give the President practically everything he asked to effectuate his New Deal policies and then go ahead to grant him some other powers for which he had not asked and which he may not want. The Kerr bill providing for the compulsory control of tobacco production is one instance of an unasked prerogative. Unofficially it is estimated, subject to correction, that Mr. Roosevelt now owns the right to perform 27 new functions. He will have to send out scouts to determine the boundaries of his kingdom.

Gratifying though it may be to Mr. Roosevelt to receive such wholesale coöperation from congress, he is doubtless not unmindful of the fact that the possession of almost unlimited power carries fully as much responsibility as it does privilege. Following such extraordinary acquiescence from congress, Mr. Roosevelt is the more fated to either make or break on a grand scale.

STRATEGY.

Ikey and Rachel took little Moses to the pictures. The attendant warned them that unless the child kept quiet they would have to leave and get their money back.

Half way through the principal film Ikey turned to Rachel and whispered, "Vell, vot do you tink of it?"

"Rotten," replied Rachel.

"Yes," answered Ikey. "Pinch de baby."—Border Cities Star.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

JULY! Vacation month. Named after Julius Cæsar, who took a vacation after Mr. Brutus, Mr. Cassius, and other gentlemen thought it would be a good thing for Rome if Julius took a nice long rest. He's resting yet and never did get back on the job. July is most noted in this country because of the memory of Bunker Hill, Bennington, Ticonderoga, Saratoga, Trenton, and Yorktown. And Great Britain says that since we have such good memories we can just remember the money she owes us. And keep right on remembering because she isn't going to pay it. It wasn't such a bloody war we fought with England during the Revolution. We have lost many times as many as were killed then in celebrating it. If the signers of the Declaration of Independence could have looked down the years they would probably have said to one another, "Let's don't do it, boys. Think of the people in 1934 who will insist on looking down a toy cannon to see why it doesn't go off or who will think that the only way to celebrate American independence will be to shoot off Chinese firecrackers. Skip it!" Or they might have signed the Declaration one at a time and only one sign a day. That would have spread the Fourth of July over so many months that the patriots in the years to come would have given up celebrating as a bad job. It would have been too long drawn out. And too expensive.

MOCKERY.

I knew a man on whom
Fate played a sorry trick
By twisting up his tongue and lips
Into a grotesque lisp and stutter
At which the kindest laughed unwillingly.
And under the ironic torture
This gentle, sensitive soul
Shrank in humiliation and failure.

I knew another man
Who, at long, secret pains,
Mimicked the other's odd impediment,
Exquisitely reproducing each pitiful spasm,
And on that mocking whimsey rose
To heights of comedy, and wealth.
And the queer thing about it is, this man

LORNA DOONE.

AND JUST AS AT common, everyday weddings the best man couldn't find the ring when it was needed at the Nudist wedding at the World's Fair. That seems strange because the best man didn't have a half dozen pockets to lose the ring in as the best man has at a conventional wedding. Still he managed to lose it somehow, thereby preserving one of our oldest and most cherished traditions.

AND THE FIRST nudist wedding having been held, will there in time with more nudist weddings come a nudist divorce? That won't be so easy unless there are real grounds for a divorce. The nudist judge will insist at a nudist divorce trial on the bare facts and the naked truth.

AND AGAIN it may be argued that peace is more horrible than war because when battles are going on the noncombatants can get away from all the noise, uproar, death, and destruction by going down into a bombproof cave. But here comes the Fourth of July with all its ear-splitting din and nerve-destroying uproar, and where is the noncombatant to go and get away from it all? Not an abri or a bombproof anywhere. But there ought to be, and if we're going to keep on celebrating the Fourth of July for the next two thousand years some philanthropist should build a bombproof cave in every block. Then when the terrible Fourth came around each year the noncombatants could take their books and their crossword puzzles, likewise a small army cot and a couple of blankets and a few groceries, and sneak down into the bombproof and stay there for a day or two while the firecracker fiends and the battalion that love to shoot revolvers off in the air and the torpedo throwing shock troops fought it out up above in the streets.

PLAGUE-RIDDEN.

His soul is ravaged by the plague;
Where disillusion spread,
The stricken dreams, the faiths that fell
Lie a promiscuous dead.

Is there no wind can lift the plague
By some miraculous grace?
No skill can save the living few
In that polluted place?

ADELAIDE LOVE.

AND WHILE LOZ ONGLAIZE reported a temperature of ninety-five at the end of last week, "the hottest day of the century," I'll just bet you a wooden nickel that if you mention the fact to a man or woman from Loz Onglaize he will smile at you pityingly and say, "It may have been. But you know that no matter how hot it may be in the daytime in Loz Onglaize, we always have to sleep under two blankets at night." And you can consider yourself spanked.

LITTLE STONE DOG.

Little stone dog by the garden gate,
What are you dreaming and whom do you wait?
Footsteps that left in the long ago?
Little stone dog, do you miss them so?
The voice of your master is long since dead,
But you have sat there while the years have sped;
Tenants have come and tenants have gone,
You were to them just a dog on a lawn;
To me you're a symbol of all that endures,
A frozen façade that a spirit immures;
Your patience my incredulity jogs . . .
Is there a heaven for little stone dogs?

INCREASING DEATH RATE OF APPENDICITIS.

APPENDICITIS is no respecter of persons, age, sex, or occupation. We may wonder at the increasing number of deaths from this disease when competent physicians and surgeons are rarely out of reach. Many small communities can boast a well trained surgeon. In spite of widespread education in the recognition of symptoms of appendicitis the annual death toll has risen steadily in the last twelve years from less than 12,000 to approximately 20,000.

The appendix is a part of the intestinal tract, but it is an offshoot. It is like a trouser pocket without a hole; there is no outlet at the bottom. This organ may accumulate substances that normally pass along the intestinal tract and be unable to expel them. Any irritation in the intestinal tract is likely to be communicated to the appendix. Inflammation and ulceration may result, an abscess may form, and if neglected, may rupture into the abdominal cavity. This latter event is attended with great danger, as inflammation of the peritoneum [peritonitis] nearly always follows.

While the appendix is located low in the right side of the abdomen, pain due to inflammation there may be felt in the stomach area. Because of this "stomach ache" patients are inclined to revert to a household remedy, namely, a strong laxative. This is about as effective as using gasoline as a fire extinguisher. The action of the laxative is to spread the inflammation, ofttimes driving it deeper into the appendix. Competent authorities have estimated that if the use of laxatives could be prevented a much higher percentage of recoveries would occur.

Pressure over the lower right abdomen in the presence of appendicitis usually elicits sharp pain. The patient generally lies with the knees drawn up in an effort to relieve the stretch on the abdominal muscles. The absence of temperature is not a safe guide. At first the inflammation is purely local and may not cause a rise in temperature. The pulse is usually normal or but slightly increased. The best guide of the physician is the presence of pain in the appendix area on pressure and an increase in the white cells of the blood. The latter information may be quickly obtained by a blood count.

Many more deaths follow removal of the appendix if the operation is delayed unduly. For example, if the appendix is removed by a competent surgeon within a few hours of the onset of the attack the death rate is low. The longer the delay the higher the death rate. Appendicitis is an alarm of fire. Gangrene may develop with great rapidity, and once the diagnosis is definite and positive, surgical removal should be instituted at once. If rupture of an abscessed appendix has occurred, the careful surgeon may delay operation in order to give the peritoneum an opportunity to localize the abscess.

In a recent Philadelphia campaign two thousand placards were displayed in drug stores in that city. The placards bore the legend, "Severe pains in the stomach are often dangerous. Do not take purgatives." The educational campaign included schools, hospitals, the druggists' association, the department of health, and the medical societies. As a result of this concerted effort definite data indicate that many lives have been saved.

For safety in suspected appendicitis: Keep the patient quiet, do not give laxatives, give no fluid by mouth, give no enemas, call your physician. In case of doubt secure skilled surgical counsel.

POISON IVY.

L. H. M. writes:

1. My 4 year old boy is subject to infections from poison ivy. Is there a successful serum as a preventive or which would immunize him in the future?
2. What is to be done with the first symptoms to prevent spreading?

REPLY:

1. Inoculation has been used successfully in some cases.
2. As soon as the symptoms appear wash thoroughly with hot, soapy water and then follow with a five per cent water solution of ferric chloride. Ferric chloride neutralizes the poison.

SUN BATHING.

J. L. D. writes:

1. What is the value of sun bathing?
2. What is the best method?

REPLY:

1. Sun bathing is of the greatest value in many conditions. It improves circulation.
2. Exposure should be gradual. Sunburn must be avoided. At the outset the body should not be exposed for over half a minute on each side. This may be increased by a quarter or half a minute each day. In this way gradual tanning will occur and with the optimum absorption of ultraviolet.

BUTTER FINGERS.

F. J. S. writes: What causes a person to drop almost everything handled? I cannot pick up a pencil without dropping it. I would like to know if this may be classified as some functional disorder or just plain "butter fingers."

REPLY.

It may be either. Some have so-called "butter fingers" because of poor coördination; others because of drugs, such as whisky, bromides, and barbiturates; others because they have some one of several diseases of the nervous system.

MASTER'S CERTIFICATE.

L. S.

Since the master's certificate may result in the collection of money on a redemption or in the receipt of a master's deed if there is no redemption, it involves such an element of uncertainty that you cannot expect to borrow on ordinary terms. The best way to find out what you can do with it is to try.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

CORRESPONDENCE COURSES.

Chicago, June 27.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My daughter signed up for a course by correspondence. I paid $55 for a course in filing and typist clerk in government work, with the understanding that in a year she would have the position. This course started April 1, 1933, and she has finished her lessons [which came by mail]. I wrote several letters since she finished in regard to the position which they promised and every time they give me a date about a month ahead, with no results. Would it pay to sue them for the money paid? What is the best course to take in this case? P. G. L.

It is almost invariably the case that the refunding agreement contains jokers or the company is financially irresponsible so that recovery is not possible. Prospective students should view with extreme suspicion the agreement of correspondence schools and similar institutions to secure jobs for their graduates.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

IMMIGRATION LAWS.

Chicago, June 27.—[Friend of the People.]—Will you please inform me regarding the latest immigration law with respect to aliens who entered the United States illegally prior to July 1, 1924, and who are of good character, and also as to whether such persons can now get their citizenship papers? W. W. F.

It is the understanding of this office that legislation on the matter of making it possible for aliens who entered the United States illegally prior to July 1, 1924, to be registered, failed of enactment during the last session of congress. It is, of course, possible that the proposed extension of the registry act to July 1, 1924, will receive consideration during the next session of congress. FRED J. SCHLOTFELDT,

FRIEND OF THE INSURED

ASSESSMENTS.

Wheaton, Ill., June 22.—[Friend of the Insured.]—I have a health and accident policy with an assessment company organized in Nebraska. My policy reads "Should the premium be insufficient to meet the requirements, the association may call for the difference as required." My agent, however, tells me that I can never be assessed more than the quarterly premium. Another agent tells me that difference means the difference and it could amount to more than a quarterly premium if the company had a bad experience. He also says that if I could not be assessed more than a quarterly premium it should be so stated in the policy. I would appreciate your comments on this before my renewal date July 1. A. A. V.

Unless a maximum amount of assessment is specifically provided for in your policy, the wording of the assessment clause as stated in your letter would indicate that you can be held liable for your proportionate share of the losses and expenses incurred. Some of the companies collect an advance premium at the commencement of the policy term, using these funds to pay losses and later assessing the policyholders if these funds are insufficient, and paying the surplus as a dividend to the policyholders if the business is profitable; or they may collect only a small premium which is sometimes called a membership fee and then make proportionate assessments to all policyholders to cover losses and expenses. Many policies stipulate the maximum amount of such assessments that may be charged to the policyholder in any one policy year, usually not to exceed one annual premium. If your policy contains no maximum, the difference can mean any amount.

LIFE INSURANCE BENEFIT PAYMENTS.

Chicago, June 25.—[Friend of the Insured.]—Mr. and Mrs. B are just married. In the event of Mr. B's death, even though the parents alone are named as beneficiaries and the policy has no dowry right clause, can the wife claim a share of the insurance? E. A.

When life insurance matures as a claim, the proceeds are payable to the beneficiaries named in the policy if living; if not surviving, then to the estate. If paid to the estate, then in its disposition a widow's dowry right would be considered and, if in strict accordance with legal requirements in such cases, the widow would be allotted her proportionate share of the estate. Insurance companies are not interested in or obligated to any other claimants, and cannot deviate from their contract in making settlement of life insurance benefits.

THE BRUTAL GAME OF CRICKET.

Chicago, June 25.—In a recent issue THE TRIBUNE, in commenting on the merits of the dispute between English and Australian cricket teams with respect to a certain type of bowling, objected to by the Australians, said that cricket is a brutal game devised for the entertainment of the English upper classes and that the colonials should be honored at the opportunity of being hit in the head and knocked unconscious by the bowling talent of the mother country. This, though not the exact wording of your editorial comment, is essentially the spirit and tenor of your remarks. I am not at all versed in the merits of cricket, but from the little I have seen of it, which possibly is no less than seen by THE TRIBUNE editorial writer, I can decisively and emphatically state that as a game it is no more brutal than baseball, to which it is somewhat similar, and I would ask THE TRIBUNE writer to explain in editorial comment wherein cricket is a more brutal or dangerous game than either baseball or football.

It has been said by a certain school of thought that all sport is a device utilized by the wealthy and ruling classes to divert the minds of the common people and so employ their leisure that they will have no time left for consideration or criticism of existing social, economic, and political conditions. Whatever may be the merits of this interpretation of sport, it would appear that THE TRIBUNE comment on cricket derives its insulting character either from an innate boorishness, a rankling inferiority complex of things American in comparison with things British, for which, by a well known psychological principle you endeavor to compensate by a spirit of hostility, antagonism, and blatant braggadocio, or else you are deliberately and consciously endeavoring to inflame and arouse international hatreds for some ulterior purpose.

It is indeed petty for a newspaper of THE TRIBUNE'S circulation [which is in no way justified by its editorial character and policies] to endeavor to stir up international ill will and discord and to inflame mob passions and prejudices between the English speaking peoples on the basis of the trivialities of a dispute concerning the rules of the game between two rival cricket teams, one English, one Australian. THE TRIBUNE blandly informs the British dominions that they are colonies, and therefore should, as good colonials, feel honored at being hit by British cricket balls. Would THE TRIBUNE kindly inform its readers what liberties the individual enjoys in the noncolonial free United States which he does not enjoy in any of the British dominions?

ARTHUR HAYES.

POLICE ESCORTS.

Chicago, June 27.—As a newcomer to Chicago this summer, I read with interest your editorial on police escorts. May I call to your attention an instance of an unnecessary use of such an escort when on my way up Michigan avenue Sunday morning, June 17? While I was inquiring the way from a trafic policeman a siren and a blast of horns was heard, and a motorcycle policeman, followed by three cars, advertising a certain make of automobile, sped past. The policeman to whom I was talking remarked vehemently on the ridiculousness of the act, and said they had been doing it all morning. After going a few more blocks the same escorted cars flew past in the other direction.

This kind of thing should be stopped at once as a nuisance and as dangerous to the safety of the city streets. As a visitor to Chicago, I certainly was not impressed by the above sight, but THE TRIBUNE'S editorial urging the elimination of such practice did strike me as needed. All praises to your paper!

R. S. TRENBATH.

LET'S SUPPOSE.

Stockton, Ill., June 27.—Let's suppose that I enter a manufacturer's office and say, "I've the greatest idea yet. Every evening I will arrange for a representative to enter each home in your sales territory and tell the children exciting, terrifying stories that will scare them to death, and make them fall out of bed during the night from nervous reaction. Each salesman will mention your name, and the parents will buy your products through gratitude."

The man would phone for the cops to take care of a crazy guy, and yet they are authorizing nightly wild adventures over the radio worse than the old dime novels. These "bedtime hours," of the melodramatic type, are bad for the children and resented by the parents. How can this be good for business?

CHARLES SUGHROE.

JAMAICA.

Maywood, Ill., June 28.—On June 27 THE TRIBUNE published an extract from the Lafayette, Ind., Journal-Courier concerning the British ownership of Jamaica. This article alleged that Jamaica was occupied by Britain five days after the Clayton-Bulwer treaty was signed in 1851. Such assertions reveal ignorance of the fact that Jamaica has been a crown colony of Britain since 1655, more than one hundred years before the American colonists declared independence.

There is little excuse for fantastic statements of an obscure Hoosier editor, and none at all for THE TRIBUNE, which deliberately affords these misstatements far wider circulation. B. NENDICK.

NEW PODERJAY INVESTIGATOR TO PUSH QUIZ ALONG

Finds Three Clews in Vienna Reports.

New York, July 1.—[Special.]—Acting Captain John G. Stein, new head of the missing persons bureau, announced today that he will continue investigation of the mysterious disappearance of Agnes C. Tufverson, 43 year old attorney, "relentlessly."

He has spent considerable time poring over the voluminous reports in the case filed by detectives here and abroad who are trying to determine what happened to the woman who vanished on Dec. 20, 1933, 16 days after her marriage to Ivan Poderjay, Jugo-Slav adventurer.

Not Sure She's Dead.

"I am by no means convinced that the woman is dead," Capt. Stein said, "but I might say at the same time that I have formed no definit conclusions on the case. I have come across three things in the correspondence that seem to offer possibilities for leads, and I will assign men to work on them.

Capt. Stein is to confer tomorrow morning with Detectives William Copeland and Jacob von Weisenstein of the missing persons bureau and with Acting Lieutenant Hugh Sheridan, who have worked on the case. He has already gone over the matter thoroughly with Capt. John Ayers, his predecessor.

The new chief revealed that the office has virtually been swamped with letters from persons interested in the case, many of them of the "crank" variety and worthless, others from citizens who believe they have seen Miss Tufverson alive.

Some Hope in Boston.

Lieut. Sheridan, who was in Boston last week checking the story of a Mrs. Hall, who seemed positive that Miss Tufverson had appeared as a customer in her cleaning and dyeing store as late as June 10, said there still is some basis for hope in that lead.

"The Hall angle has had to much publicity," he pointed out, "that the woman referred to by Miss Hall must know about it. You'd think, if she were not Miss Tufverson, she might come forward and tell who she is. So far she hasnt' done it."

PREMIER BROWNLEE FACES OUSTER AFTER GIRL WINS DAMAGES

EDMONTON, Alta., July 1.—(AP)—Premier J. E. Brownlee of Alberta tonight refused to comment on reports he will resign following the verdict of a supreme court jury which awarded $10,000 in damages to Vivian MacMillan, 22 year old stenographer who charged he seduced her.

It was reported that members of the government will meet in an emergency caucus Tuesday to consider problems arising out of the verdict. The premier's resignation would carry with it resignations of all members of his cabinet. Lieut. Gov. W. L. Walsh also refused to comment.

The Edmonton Journal stated positively that Brownlee had offered his resignation to Lieut. Gov. Walsh. Brownlee has been head of the Alberta government since 1925.

The jury of six men upheld Miss MacMillan's claim for damages in a verdict reached late last night after almost five hours of deliberation. The young woman was awarded $10,000 and her father, Alan MacMillan, $5,000.

Justice W. C. Ives, presiding, said he disagreed sharply with the verdict and reserved his decision. Counsel for the defense have asked for dismissal of the verdict alleging that no damage to the plaintif had been proved.

Miss MacMillan was elated with the verdict.

"I wondered many times whether I could make my charges public," she said. "I do not know if I have damaged my own personal reputation, but I feel satisfaction in the belief I have saved hundreds of other girls."

MEXICO ELECTS GEN. CARDENAS 45TH PRESIDENT

Victory by a Landslide; Voting Is Quiet.

MEXICO CITY, July 1.—(AP)—Gen. Lazaro Cardenas, 39 year old revolutionary veteran, today was chosen as the forty-fifth constitutional president of Mexico in an election which reports from the principal cities indicated was the quietest in the history of the country.

Aided by the powerful political machine of the National Revolutionary party, Cardenas on the basis of the first returns tonight appeared assured of at least 80 per cent of the total vote.

Gen. Antonio Villareal, candidate of the Independent Democratic parties, was running second. Col. Adalberto Tejeda, left Socialist candidate, trailed.

Cardenas an Old Campaigner.

Gen. Cardenas, a tall, strapping, black haired man of mixed Spanish and Tarascan Indian descent, will bring to the presidency experience gained during 18 years of military campaigning interspersed with brief periods of office holding.

The general will be the youngest of all the nation's 45 chief executives with the exception of Francisco I. Madero. Madero was 38 when he assumed office in 1911 after heading the uprising which ousted Porfirio Diaz.

Cardenas was born in the village of Jiquilpan, Michoacan, May 30, 1895. He attended school until he was 11 and then went to work in the tax collector's office to support his widowed mother and seven brothers and sisters. Later he became a printer and the town jailer, and then a soldier.

Fought Zapata and Villa.

He fought against Zapata and against Villa and with Generals Carranza, Obregon, and Calles, all three of whom subsequently were presidents of the republic.

Gen. Cardenas dresses simply, shuns publicity and social life, seldom drinks, and never smokes. He lives in Mexico City with his wife, Señora Amalia S. De Cardenas. Their son, born May 1 of this year, was named Cuahutemoc, for the last of the Aztec emperors.

FIND BALLOON'S GONDOLA READY FOR HIGH FLIGHT

Rapid City, S. D., July 1.—(AP)—Shaving cream determined today that the thin metal gondola for the stratosphere adventure of Maj. William E. Kepner and Capt. A. W. Stevens is ready.

During last night tests were made to ascertain if the gondola were sufficiently airtight to retain enough oxygen within its walls to keep the pair alive in the rarefied atmosphere and stratosphere.

For the test the big army liquid oxygen generating truck pumped air into the sealed gondola to a pressure of 29 pounds, 14½ pounds above the average pressure here. The air was left in overnight and this morning the gage still showed 12½ pounds. Shavin. cream lathered on joints and over corked holes drilled to connect wires with scientific instruments revealed a few small leaks, but Capt. Stevens said even with the minute leakage disclosed the pair could go aloft and stay 24 hours with safety.

SECOND GUNMAN DIES FOLLOWING DUEL IN SALOON

The second of two gun battlers died yesterday after killing his rival in a duel early in the day in a saloon at 4501 South Paulina street. The two gun fighters were Edward Stodolny, 30 years old, 1856 West 45th street, a police character, and William Martishas, 24, of 4538 South Hermitage avenue. In the exchange of shots, Stodolny was killed instantly and his rival died eight hours later in the Evangelical hospital.

Saloon employés said the two quarreled, apparently over a girl, earlier in the night, and later encountered each other in the saloon. Both drew pistols and started firing.

When the police arrived they found the place deserted except for the dead and dying rivals and Curley Jackson, a piano player, who had been shot in the foot during the battle. Stodolny's record, police said, included attempted kidnaping and robbery.

MERCHANT SHOT FIGHTING BANDITS DIES OF WOUNDS

Henry Mandelbaum, 45 years old, 2031 Pierce avenue, owner of a delicatessen store at 1649 North Damen avenue, died in St. Elizabeth's hospital yesterday of bullet wounds inflicted by two bandits. He resisted the men as he was returning to his home from his store with his wife, Della, shortly after midnight.

SHERIF, THREE GUESTS SLAIN AT HOUSE PARTY

Father-in-Law Says Noise Disturbed Sleep.

East Tawas, Mich., July 1.—(AP)—Enraged because the noise of a group of merrymakers interfered with his sleep, Arthur A. Woods, 52, early today turned an automatic shotgun on the guests at a house party given by his son-in-law here and killed three of them and fatally wounded Sherif Charles C. Miller, 38, who had been summoned to the scene.

The shooting occurred at 3 a. m. at the home of Arthur Janson, where Woods had made his home.

Physician Slain.

In addition to Sherif Miller, the dead included Dr. Stanley Somers, 31, prominent physician here; Lloyd Hayes, 35, of East Tawas, and his wife, 31. Roy Hickey, also a guest, was slightly wounded.

Sherif Miller, called by neighbors, encountered Woods at the back door of the home. The two exchanged shots and, although the sherif emptied his revolver at him, Woods escaped unscathed. Shots from Woods' gun struck the sherif in the abdomen and he died shortly afterward in a hospital.

Slayer Surrenders.

After shooting the sherif and Dr. Somers Woods paused to take his two grandchildren to a neighbor's home for safekeeping. Then he returned and resumed his shooting, killing Mr. and Mrs. Hayes and wounding Hickey. After the shooting he walked to the county jail at Tawas City and surrendered to Margaret Densted, a maid in the sherif's home.

News of the slayings spread quickly and deputy sherifs and state troopers mobilized to guard against threats of violence toward Woods, who was locked in the jail.

The party was being given by the Jansons for friends who stopped here Saturday night while en route by yacht from Detroit to Georgian bay.

Gunfire Sprays Room.

The shooting started as the guests were leaving. Woods encountered Dr. Somers on the front porch and killed him instantly. Neighbors then called the sherif, who was shot down on his arrival. Rushing into the living room after he returned from removing the children Woods sprayed the interior with shots, the volley wounding Mr. and Mrs. Hayes, who died later in a hospital.

The guests fled through doors and windows. Hickey darted into a bathroom and slammed the door. Woods followed him and poured a volley through the door, wounding Hickey in the arm.

Running outside, Woods riddled the front of the house with gunfire and blasted out the lights. One shot killed a dog.

When he arrived at the jail, Woods still carried his weapon and ammunition, which he gave to the maid, who was alone there. Then he sat down to await arrest.

SPECIAL SESSION DRIVERS' LICENSE MEASURE URGED

Safety Council Seeks Horner's Support.

An appeal to Gov. Horner to incorporate in the call for a possible special session of the legislature enactment of a drivers' license law was made yesterday by George M. Trevor, manager of the Chicago Safety council. Mr. Trevor urged prompt action on the measure as a means of curbing mounting motor fatalities and accidents.

Gov. Horner is considering summoning a special session of the legislature late this summer or early in the fall to consider tax legislation. The governor, who was in Chicago yesterday, said he has not yet decided on issuance of a call.

In a letter to Gov. Horner, Mr. Trevor wrote. "The loss of nearly 1,000 lives and the injury of many thousands each year is too serious a menace to the welfare of the people of Chicago to be ignored any longer.

"Anyone who has the price of an automobile and a state and city vehicle license can operate a car, regardless of ability or of his physical or nervous condition. There should be at least an examination to weed out incompetents."

A drivers' license law has been drafted by the Illinois Highway Safety conference for presentation at the next regular session of the legislature in January.

The conference has also prepared a draft of a financial responsibility law for motorists.

LIVINGSTON, SON OF N. K. FAIRBANK, DIES IN THE EAST

Livingston Fairbank, member of a socially prominent Chicago family, died in the hospital at Huntington, Long Island, N. Y., yesterday after an illness of two days. He was about 63 years old.

Mr. Fairbank was a son of N. K. Fairbank, early Chicago capitalist and associate of Marshall Field, George Pullman and others. He was a graduate of Harvard university. News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Cab Calloway, the former Crane college boy who left his technical studies to become "the Dusky Duke of Hi-De-Ho," will headline the Chicago Theater of the Air program over W-G-N at 9:30 tomorrow evening. It was this same Calloway who had the London music critics in a stitch last spring endeavoring to set forth what "scat singing," as interpreted by Cab and his Cotton club boys, is all about.

With Calloway will be heard Elma Turner, "the bronze belle of the blues." Arthur Tracy, the Street Singer; Rowena Williams and Chernlavsky's orchestra will contribute to the show.

Now that Columbia's marble tournament broadcast is history listeners may get ready for NBC's horned toad race to be aired from the Fair at 11:15 a. m., July 4. Arizona toads will compete with Texas representatives in the Court of the Hall of States. The race will be broadcast hop by hop—and the winning toad will be accorded the distinction of blowing his own horn over the radio.

While the toads are warming up, George Watson, NBC announcer, will interview Willie Vocalite, the 350 pound mechanical man, in his lair at the Electrical building, at the Fair. Willie talks, smokes cigarets, cools his metal brow with a breeze from a fan he turns on himself. On his Fourth of July radio première, set for 10:45 over WENR, he will fire a cannon. If he is not overcome by this herculean effort he may be induced to croon a little, too.

The minute Wayne King got off the train from California Saturday morning he rushed right out to the golf links to get the kinks out of his legs—and possibly to evade a battery of song pluggers. . . . Wayne's silken waltzes will be back on W-G-N tomorrow night. Reed Myers, W-G-N salesman and long well known in the amusement world, and Rue Tomlinson were married Saturday evening. . . . Patsy Montana, WLS singer of range ballads, won the milking contest put on by Golden State Guernsey Breeders' association at South Bend the other day. Patsy defeated all the male experts.

Sisters of the Skillet, Eddie East and Ralph Dumke, a quarter ton of humor on the hoof, will be back on the air with their hilarious comments on the air at 11:15 this morning. No local outlet today—try WEAF [660 kilos], New York. The boys will dramatize incidents in the lives of people that make the news in their own quaint way.

Eight page boys from the Merchandise Mart studios will present "Views of the Studios," a dramatic sketch on the National Farm and Home hour on July 4. Alice Joy and the Bobolinks, a male trio from the south, will be guests on this one hour show.

June May Pass, but Romance Holds Its Sway

Announce Troth of Four Chicago Girls.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THOUGH the romantic month of June has passed, romance is not languishing in its wake for this morning we are reporting no less than four engagements. These latest bulletins find, however, that Chicago is trading three brides for one because the three young women whose engagements are announced here will move away after their marriages, while the one young woman whose engagement to a Chicago man was announced out of town will make her future home here.

The first names to add to the ever increasing list of prospective brides and grooms are those of Miss Patricia Calkins and J. Fred Schoellkopf IV., whose engagement was announced yesterday by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Burnham Calkins, at a small tea in their Hubbard Woods home. Mr. Schoellkopf is a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Fred Schoellkopf Jr. of Lake View and Buffalo, N. Y. All of Miss Collins' friends, excepting her most intimate ones, will be surprised to learn of the engagement although they may have been speculating on it because the young man has been visiting her for the last week. The popular "Patty," as Miss Calkins is informally called, has seen Mr. Schoellkopf mostly in the east. She was graduated from Sarah Lawrence college last month and spent a few days with his family after graduation and then the two came to Chicago together, flying in Mr. Schoellkopf's plane, and giving the entire Calkins family quite a thrill. Mr. Schoellkopf was just graduated from the United States Army Air Corps Training school and is an able flyer, so no one was worried about the trip. He will fly back to Buffalo today.

Miss Calkins, who was presented to society at a tea at home on Sept. 10 last year, prepared at North Shore Country Day school and began her two year college course in her debut year. Before attending aviation school, Mr. Schoellkopf attended Cornell university. While no date has been set for the wedding, it will take place in Winnetka, and Buffalo will be Miss Calkins' future home.

Miss Ruth Seanor To Wed Easterner.

The second interesting engagement was revealed yesterday, also at an afternoon party, when Mr. and Mrs. Harry Eugene Seanor of 741 Forest avenue, Evanston, announced the engagement of their daughter, Ruth, to John W. Hubbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Hubbell of Bronxville, N. Y. This announcement likewise was a surprise to all but the young lady's closest friends, for Mr. Hubbell lives in New York where he will take his future bride to live. He is visiting here for three weeks, and will not be in Chicago again until September. The wedding will take place late that month.

Miss Seanor, who is one of the prettiest and most popular girls along the north shore, is especially well known for her singing in the Service club revues, and she is an active member of the Service club. She attended Roycemore school in Evanston and is a graduate of Connecticut college. Mr. Hubbell is a graduate of Dartmouth.

The third engagement was announced Saturday night in Oconomowoc at a dinner given by Dr. and Mrs. Gilbert E. Seaman of Milwaukee, who made known the engagement of their daughter, Claribel, to Daniel Merrick Schuyler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel J. Schuyler Jr. of 1500 Lake Shore drive. The Seamans have a summer home in Oconomowoc, where the Schuyler family is visiting until after the 4th.

Will Study Law at Northwestern.

Mr. Schuyler was graduated from Dartmouth college with highest honors in the recent commencement and he plans to study law at Northwestern in the fall. He prepared at the Latin School for Boys. His older brother, William M. Schuyler, is engaged to Miss Katherine Groman, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Herman C. Groman of Hammond.

A third Chicago girl who will live out of town after her marriage is Miss Ruth Bishop of Hinsdale, whose engagement to James Holbrook Kimberly of Neenah, Wis., is being announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick William Bishop. Mr. Kimberly is a son of Mr. and Mrs.

Front Views and Profiles

By June Provines

THE service the telegraph companies give has been commented on before, and probably the nicest story of all time in that connection was the birthday greeting received by Mrs. Howard Linn.

Service—
Concern—
Undergrads—

[Printed in this space first, before another newspaper and Time magazine picked it up, if you don't mind.] That was when the operators sang "Happy Birthday to You" over the wire, as dictated by Mrs. Robert Maynard Hutchins.

The other day a gentleman active in politics and with many friends in Chicago reached his sixtieth year, and a banquet was planned for him by his friends in honor of the day. An old friend who was unable to attend stopped in at a telegraph station to wire his respects. After one or two attempts he turned to the young lady attendant for inspiration and she obligingly rattled off several appropriate messages by way of suggestion. He made his choice, and he gave the name and address of the receivee.

"I am sorry, sir, but the gentleman already has received one wire like that this evening," she astonished him by saying. He thanked her and they picked out another message.

A BROKER left the wheat pit in the Board of Trade building Friday and walked into a brokerage office, to find a friend reading on the broad tape the account of a leap made by an unidentified man from the twenty-second floor of the Board of Trade building.

"Who was your friend who jumped from the twenty-second floor of the Board of Trade?" the reader inquired as he entered.

"Gosh, what a thing to do!" exclaimed the other, who had been unaware of the tragedy. "He might have hit somebody."

A LOT of young men have a right to be envious of the summer program Joseph T. Ryerson Jr. and Garfield King are following. They landed in Europe a couple of weeks ago and paddled themselves up the Moselle to the Rhine, and went up the Rhine to Mainz. A stop at Munich was on their schedule, and, beginning today, they are on a week's bicycling trip in the Austrian Tyrol. They will go to London and to Henley for the races to cheer the 150 pound Yale crew that is being managed by Robert Hall McCormick Jr. The last of July will see them back in the States.

We like the comment one of them made in a letter home, written on the way over on their student class trip.

A Good Cast Does Its Best with This One

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

This new Richard Dix picture is an odd affair. It starts out with fair promise of being interestingly different, grows peculiar instead of odd and ends leaving you asking why, where, and HOW.

WHY should a mother WANT her daughter to be an invalid?

Where did Mr. Dix—after his escape from prison—get the money with which to buy clothes, transportation, etc., AND finance his daughter's honeymoon with a poor young newspaper man?

True, when arrested for murder, the unfortunate victim of circumstances had just won a fortune at the roulette table. BUT—a man who has broken jail and is wanted by the police of several countries wouldn't be likely to go to a bank and draw out funds—would he? And the police had come upon him suddenly, so he COULDN'T have had time to cache his board. . . . It is all vurr' puzzling.

The story opens with the situation of a father running away with his small daughter. The child's mother, from whom he has been divorced, has married another man and the little girl is unhappy and wants her daddy. So daddy, a happy-go-lucky soldier of fortune, spirits her away from London.

They go to the Riviera, where Alice is checked while Philip wins and loses at the wheel of fortune.

On the night when you meet the two he's lost all. But he's blithe and so is she, and he carries the funny little thing home. She says she's hungry. He puts water on to boil for tea—this boiling water is what gets HIM into hot water—and starts to prepare a supper of leftovers. . . .

She declares she's told his wife where he and the child are. . . . He gags her and ties her to her chair with her evening wrap. And flees with Alice.

The water boils over and extinguishes the gas flame . . . !

The rest is a long, unconvincing yarn, neither brightly dialoged nor directed—and blessed with players that are far too good for it.

Mr. Dix delivers the sincere, workmanlike performance you know he would and the others do their dead level best to put the piece over. Edith Fellows, who plays Alice as a child, is the quaintest little witch! She has a marvelous voice and will probably be a fine emotional actress some day. Looks a bit as Aline MacMahon must have looked when a youngster.

See you tomorrow!

Unusual New War Movie Introduces a Potential Star

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., July 1.—[Special.]—They were making a scene from "Have a Heart" on "the New York street" at M-G-M when Ad Schaumer, assistant director, found it necessary to instruct fifty kid actors how to play hop-scotch. The children were all Californians and knew how to play tennis, high jump, box, ride horseback, swim—and some of them even played bridge. A few confessed they knew how to play "jacks" or shoot marbles. But hop-scotch! A guy from an older generation and a different clime had to demonstrate that. Schaumer, by the way, is a former national handball champion.

Personal mention for some of the most affecting scenes, also some of the most exciting war shots—unlike the war shots that had been done 400 times since "The Big Parade"—and for one of the most interesting new personalities to register on the American screen in Fox's new "The World Moves On." The new personality is the English girl, Madelaine Carroll; see if you don't like her.

Gary Cooper and the new Mrs. Gary, Sandra Shaw, left for New York yesterday to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Shields, and join them on a cruise on the Shields' yacht.

Ida Lupino, an infantile paralysis victim, sat up several hours yesterday and today. The doctors say she has remarkable vitality and is getting well fast.

Black Berets Cause Style Stir as First Hats for Fall Arrive

BY RHEA SEEGER.

New hats make new faces—or make over what is left of the face! These new shockers do everything they can to complete the illusion that smart women have only one good eye. That is, as far as the berets do their stuff. Other hats rest lightly, and in most instances, surprisingly becomingly on any head they decorate.

The Latin Quarter tams or berets will cause a lot of excitement. They are typical versions of what you think they sound like. Big black satin numbers are full and shirred through the top section to make them even more sloppy and full. A tiny ribbon bow, set rakishly over the right brow, is all the trimming there is. Black velvet chef tams are classically simple and easy to wear.

We hate to tell it, especially as many have been gasping for a cool breeze, but the first felts are in, and if for no other reason, you should see them, merely to satisfy your curiosity as to what you will wear when the mercury drops. For once, you'll see hats with kind brims—hats that are not large or contrarily skimpy and futile looking.

Chanel's newest pet, a glorified feminine version of a masculine derby, is just about the last gasp. It is deftly upturned like your dad's pet brown creation [or maybe he doesn't think that way politically], and then goes feminine with three bands of ribbon, each ending in a bow at the back. Different and definitly new, but it takes a good sharp profile to wear it with the proper chic.

Another sprightly hatter waggishly designed a sloping new black velvet beret cut like a big heart. The point is in front, and the bow at the backline accents the cleft in the heart. You'll see it in the fashion photograph, and find it in a Chicago shop that is showing the new hat sensations.

Here's List of Do's and Don'ts for Safe Independence Day

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

There are communities which have banned fireworks on the Fourth of July to save their children from injury. They have other things going on to mark the holiday—parades and picnics and field days and perhaps at night a big display of the more spectacular fireworks set off by those experienced in handling them.

This is what used to be called the "safe and sane Fourth," when the great number of accidents from fireworks had aroused the public to institute a drive against their use in celebrating Independence day.

Children love fireworks so that it is hard to stamp out their use. If yours are to have them here are some suggestions:

1. Buy, first, the best quality.
2. Then choose the ones that are least tricky to ignite.
3. Next show your child, if he or she is old enough, how to set them off.
4. Have the firing done near your own house under your own eye.
5. Don't let a lot of children cluster around with their heads close together bent over a fuse that one child is trying to light.

THE WRONG MAN

BY MAY EDGINTON

SYNOPSIS.

Cara Follette, only daughter of a Canadian business man, anticipates becoming her father's partner. While traveling in Europe she meets Jerry Flint, a poor young singer. She stakes him to Toronto, where she can get him auditions impossible for him to gain abroad. Benjamin Follette and his wife, Anny, had grown apart in the years he was busy becoming successful. Now Follette is about to lose his business to his rival, Redman Harmer. Harmer recently returned from Europe, where he saw and fell in love with Cara. He asks Follette for an opportunity of meeting his daughter. When Cara returns home her father tells her of his failure and urges her to meet Harmer. It would mean much to him and he likes Harmer. Cara decides to go up northwest to Mulligan's camp for a month to think it over. Meanwhile no one is to get an inkling of their business troubles. Anny will find friends for Jerry Flint, whom Cara has decided she loves. Cara sells her car for expense money and gives half to Jerry. He follows and joins her on the way. Harmer hears of Cara's plans from her father. He flies to Mulligan's ahead of her and hires the place from Dan Mulligan for a month and the use of his name. He meets Cara and Jerry as Mulligan. He and Jerry are antagonistic. After three days Jerry is fed up with camp life. He tricks Cara into leaving with him. They become lost in the wilds. Jerry's true character is revealed to Cara when she confesses her father's failure.

INSTALMENT XXXVII.

MISCARRIED PLANS.

Jerry Flint listened. He ran to the stream's edge and stared across the dimming plains beyond. Cara kept silent, herself piling more wood, browse, anything, on the fire, so that it glazed up like a beacon.

She knew at once that the shots were a signal, and wondered if he would recognize it. He would be incalculably angry and humiliated if . . .

"If Mulligan comes," she thought. And her heart was crying in spite of herself: "There's a man! There's a man!" Yes, she was used to big men doing big things, if only in business, bent at their desks, toiling in offices, so that finally, far from their nervous fingers which pressed the button, signed the contracts, touched the wires, the forces of the earth should be all to their order, harnessed at their dictation.

She knew now too well that she could never play woman to a little man. The three shots again answered the fire signal.

Now Jerry knew.

"Rescue party?" he called back to her, savagely.

She kept silent still. She was learning so quickly to be so much of a woman. Every instant she was learning a fresh thing. A little flame in her mind continued to light that one revelation now. She could never be woman to Jerry's man. It wouldn't have worked, ever. This adventure and realization apart, it wouldn't have worked. Her father had shown her things too big to allow her to walk satisfied in lesser ways. Wrongly he had shown her, perhaps, but his monuments still stood.

Faint, still distant, came the baying of dogs. A few minutes and the

Cara stayed feeding the fire while Jerry Flint stood on the edge of the river bank. His thoughts steadied down, and he guessed shrewdly what he had to face, and what he had probably lost forever. No hold on Cara now, either as daughter of a rich man and wife to himself, or as penniless wife of a rich man with a dangerous secret behind her, held by Jerry Flint.

Blackmail seemed to him as to almost all blackmailers, a civilized weapon, the use of which was natural.

It involved bargaining—that was all. All life was a species of blackmail. Chances were chances. In those few instants besides the stream he had gathered all these things in his head, lightning flashes, unmarshaled but clear, one on top of the other. A swift survey of the immediate future, very fast thinking. And then two horses, one ridden, one led, with a mule galloping behind them, came out of the twilight and were pulled upon the opposite bank, two dogs, now silent, running after.

Mulligan, on Bill, held Jessie's reins. Otis, on the better of the two camp mules, sat impassive in his saddle, well slung with bags and pack rolls.

"Ubiquitous!" said Jerry scoffingly over his shoulder to Cara.

The hunter did not trouble to raise his voice in greeting, but rode up and down the bank, scanning the rushing stream, only fifty yards across in places, but rocky and treacherous. He rode off downstream. Otis and the dogs following seemed to choose a crossing some way from the crossing Jerry had picked on, but then rode back upstream and stopped.

"Come across," Jerry Flint called. "We did!"

"Come across yourself," the hunter ordered. "We're not going to carry you over as well as Miss Follette."

"Jerry . . . I couldn't."

He wheeled round: "What! Cara!"

She was half lying on the ground, propped on an elbow. Her face showed pale under the nimbus of her hair.

"I can't," she cried, faintly, "I'm done."

"Come across, Flint!"

"And leave Miss Follette?" Jerry shouted back. "Certainly not."

"We'll look after her. You'll swim. If you don't start now, I'll come across and chuck you in."

Jerry laughed contemptuously.

But though he laughed, he walked down into the water. He was feeling by now both hunger and fatigue, and the stream seemed rougher, stronger, more inimical than it had felt the first time. He was obliged to fight it desperately, and his courage went. But he reached the opposite bank some way down, and climbed out. The hunter made no motion to meet him, but sat, his horse quite still.

Jerry had to go to him.

"We don't want any of your wild west melodramatics," he said, haughtily. "Just fetch Miss Follette, since you have followed us."

But the hunter had no word for him at all.

"Otis."

The red man, standing beside his mule, listened.

"Give Mr. Flint a blanket; he seems to need clothes. Put him on the mare, and take him to Coppertown, and see you come back to camp without him. You'll be back in three days."

"Yes, master," said the Indian, untroubled.

"Leave me one saddle bag and the sleeping bag."

Otis unstrapped these. His movements seemed deliberate, yet were made with speed.

"Now, Flint," said the hunter gently, "you wanted to go to Coppertown. Go."

"You don't bully me, Mulligan. I go to Coppertown when I wish, and not in your company."

"Not mine, indeed, Otis' company," Harmer said, smiling, and dismounted. He drew from under his saddle flap the cutting whip which he carried for the horse, Bill.

The Indian moved up, took the reins, and led the horse a few paces aside.

"We'll run you the first hundred yards toward your destination," said Harmer, smiling, and running the whip through his hands.

Still panting, his ribs heaving from his swim, Jerry Flint considered him. And he knew that this great smiling man was ready to thrash his wet naked body till he would scream. But he couldn't go quite like this without final gesture.

He looked across the stream, cupped his hands, and shouted: "Cara! Do you feel safe with this man if I let him come over?"

His voice reached hers. Hers was too small and weak with fatigue to carry back. She was crying: "Safe? . . . safe?" and laughing. Only her gesture reached them. She fell flat to the earth and lay there.

"Quick!"

Jerry jumped at the sound of that one word, reached for the blanket Otis held for him, reached for Jessie, felt his leg suddenly seized as he was literally thrown up into the saddle by Harmer, and Otis on the mule came alongside.

Harmer was speaking: "How much money of yours did Buck run away with?"

"About," sulkily, derisively, "six hundred dollars."

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

The popular young Shakespearean players of the Globe theater, in the English village at the Fair, added "As You Like It" to their répertory, which now contains six condensed versions of dramatic classics, with marked success last night. This romantic comedy, containing Shakespeare's most charming heroine, should win immediate recognition as one of the Globe's best bills.

The text has been cut so adroitly into forty minutes of acting time that the complete structure of the play and all of the famous speeches have been preserved.

The character of Rosalind, favorite vehicle of Shakespearean comediennes for three centuries, stands at almost full length in this version, and is effectively played by Miss Jackson Perkins, who in the doublet and hose of boy's masquerade is an jaunty and comely as any of her famous predecessors. She happily recalls the great Shakespearean era of thirty years ago.

Touchstone, the clown, is assigned to Carl Benton Reid, one of the company's best actors, and is given a full flow of dialog. The result is fast moving gayety and romance.

The plays at the Globe are being acted to capacity audiences seven times a day, and therefore about 20,000 Fair visitors are getting a taste of Shakespeare every week. The next production will vary the Shakespearean program with the "Doctor Faustus" of his brilliant forerunner, Christophere Marlowe.

June May Pass, but Romance Holds Its Sway

Junior League's New Play Opens Tomorrow.

To Miss Veronese Beatty go the honors for the scenery and costumes for the Junior league's new play, "Little Red Riding Hood," which opens tomorrow at the Children's theater at Enchanted Island, for she has designed both, single handed. The show will last through July with the new schedule of performances in effect Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays, leaving the week-ends free for the hard working troupers.

"Little Red Riding Hood" is an ideal play for this hot midsummer month, for not only is it crammed with action, a certain drawing card, during the course of the 30 minute period needed for the performance, but also it can be produced with a delightful economy of artists, a necessary factor, for it is difficult to garner a large cast in this month of departures for mountains and seashores.

There are six in the cast and would have been only five excepting that every one wanted to play the part of the wolf. The rôle was divided, finally, between two members, Miss Helen Pope, who plays the part when he is big and bad, and Miss Elizabeth Bunting, who portrays the wolf in his quieter moments.

Mrs. Robert M. Hoffman Jr. is in the title rôle, and Mrs. James M. Carry as Riding Hood's mother and Miss Virginia Hobart as the woodcutter complete the cast. Mrs. Stephen Harrington is the stage manager.

The league has not decided yet what play it will give to conclude the series of summer entertainment. Some members are in favor of repeating "Aladdin," which closed last week, while others are in favor of a revival of "Peter Pan."

Begin "Merry-Go-Round" Preparations Today.

Initial plans for the "Christmas Merry-Go-Round" to be held throughout the first week of December as a benefit for the Chicago Lying-In hospital and the Mothers' Aid will be made this afternoon at the Hotel Sherman. Mrs. Charles King Corsant, who has come in town from Highland Park to work on the affair during the summer, and Mrs. James W. Rogers are meeting with a committee which is to devote the next five months to intensive preparation for the gala occasion. Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, who is at Lake Geneva at present, will start work on the decorations for the show in the fall.

After a month of gay parties with old and new friends, and sightseeing in the Fair villages, Mr. and Mrs. Eliot P. Goss have returned to their home in Connecticut. They have been visiting Mrs. Goss' parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Sheppard Stone. In spite of that very warm weather last Thursday, a host of friends dropped in for an informal tea and to bid farewell to the young easterners. The pride of the occasion was the huge salmon which Mr. Goss' father had sent down as a surprise gift from the St. Marguerite Fishing club in Canada. It had been specially baked, and its 23 pounds of delicious pinkness added a novel touch to the party.

Miss Sykes Becomes Bride in Vermont.

A wedding that took place Saturday afternoon in Dorset, Vt., that is of interest to Chicagoans is the marriage of Miss Marian Chandler Sykes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Greenleaf Sykes of Evanston, to Andrew Longacre of Exeter, N. H., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Van Duzer Longacre of Yonkers, N. Y., and Dorset. The ceremony was performed in the Congregational church by the Rev. Harry W. Foot, assisted by the Rev. Benjamin T. Marshall of Worcester, Mass., an uncle of the bride. A reception followed at the Sykes' home.

Miss Charlotte Sykes was her sister's maid of honor, and Dr. Alfred Barnes Longacre served as his brother's best man. Miss Elizabeth Walker and Miss Frances King of Evanston; Miss Nancy Carr of Brookline, Mass., and Miss Dorothy Paine, the bride's cousin, of New York, where the bridesmaids, and ushering were Gilbert Greenleaf Sykes, the bride's brother; Frederick Longacre Jr., and Walter Bennet Longacre of Schenectady, N. Y., and James Barton Longacre of New York, brothers of the groom.

Miss Georgiana Fowler, daughter of the Robert Lambert Fowlers of Winnetka, has set the date and the hour for her wedding to Robert Henry Taylor of Kent, O., for July 21 at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The wedding will take place in Christ church, Winnetka, with the Rev. E. Ashley Gerhard officiating.

Mrs. John Rice Reilly of Winnetka, with her younger children, has joined the Lake Geneva colony for the summer. The family has taken summer quarters at the Harvard club, while the two older sons are spending the summer elsewhere. John Jr. will leave shortly for military training camp, and Dunham, the second son, is already touring the west with John Elliott, son of the William S. Elliotts of Winnetka. The daughter of the family, Miss Hester Reilly, who will be a senior at North Shore Country Day school next fall, will divide her summer vacation between Lake Geneva, northern Wisconsin, and down east with friends.

Cool Capes for Warm Days

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

One of the latest ideas from across the water is the cool, cape-shouldered frock shown today. The lines of the dress flatter the youthful figure and slenderize the matronly one. Voiles, batistes, pastel silks, and printed lawns are lovely materials to use.

The pattern, No. 2987, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years, and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46 inches bust measure.

Bodily Condition Is Basic Factor in Health of Hair

BY ANTOINETE DONNELLY.

Is your hair misbehaving? If the gloss is gone, if it is falling excessively, or if it is too dry, you want to look a little further into corrective treatments than the ordinary local helps to which we usually resort. I keep on repeating that the condition of your hair depends primarily on your own general condition.

Loss of hair, especially, is traced to internal disorders. I do believe that our present better understanding of food elements and food values is eliminating hair loss appreciably. Sufferers from excessively oily hair are well aware that corrected diet must be part of their cure.

Women have come to think of beauty recapturing as more a matter of local application than of getting right down to fundamentals. We'll take the time to investigate hair lotions and believe sufficiently in their efficiency to try them out. They're helpful, to be sure. But we must also look to the inner needs, a better blood supply, better circulation, daily evacuations. With all internal disorders corrected there wouldn't be any hair ills.

The hair of those suffering from anemia—exhausted, nervestrung individuals—reflects the actual physical handicap under which they are suffering. It's the good old blood supply that does the hair beautifying trick every time. Add to good blood the stimulus of such local attention as cleanliness, brushing, and massage, and your hair will respond with greater loveliness.

"Let's Have a Picnic," a booklet of picnic plans, menus, and recipes, is on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, Tribune Tower, and Hall of Science, A Century of Progress, for 3 cents. By mail, 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

Fourth of July (Hip Hurray!) is in the well known offing, which strikes us as a prime moment to bring up the subject of picnics. For what's an Independence day if it means a lot of overcooked ladies and hours of extra labor in kitchens, preparing feasts and foolishness. So here and now we propose that all meal-getters, upon this coming Wednesday, gather their family and their lunch hampers, declare their independence from the kitchen, and hie to the highlands, the lowlands, or the meandering creeks, but at any rate hie! And who touches a jet or a switch of yon hot stove turns traitor to the holiday code!

In keeping with this spirit of emancipation let's change the order of our going and make the sandwiches when and where we picnic, not stew over them at home.

So make it a buy-it-as-you-go picnic and do it buffet style. Stop at the grocer's and supply yourself with butter, sliced bread or buns, cheese, jams, peanut butter, assorted cold meats, a jar of salad dressing, and a head of lettuce. A good delicatessen will furnish the salad or a few ingredients in the way of fresh vegetables or fruits may be poked into a bag and the salad made "on location."

Let's just assume, then, that you've decided upon out of doors preparations. Two sandwiches which ask for honorable mention follow:

Tuna Fish Sandwiches.
Jar of mayonnaise
Cans of tuna fish
Bottle of horseradish
Loaf of sandwich bread

Egg and Olive Sandwiches.
Jar of mayonnaise
Hard cooked eggs, from home
Bottle of stuffed olives
Loaf of sandwich bread
Small head of lettuce

The makings for one of these, plus the in'ards of a sweet sandwich, with cheese and crackers for munchers, will handle the "bread and butter" situation.

The salad problem resolves itself into a lot of fun if we take the ingredients along in cans. A shrimp and grapefruit salad calls simply for that jar of salad dressing, a can of shrimps, a can of grapefruit sections, and a head of lettuce.

Or a "quicky" turns up from mayonnaise, a can of pear halves, packages of cream cheese, and lettuce. Poke the cream cheese, whipped up with a little of the salad dressing, into the hearts of the pears, and you know the rest.

But maybe your heart pines for something hot. Might have snow by Wednesday, you know. Then how would this sound to you?

Kabobs Baked Potatoes
Toasted Rolls
Radishes Pickles
Tomato and Lettuce Salad
Fresh Fruit Crackers and Cheese
Coffee

The kabobs are a tradition among campers. One-fourth pound of round steak and half an onion will be needed for each picnicker. Have the butcher cut the slices of meat into 1½ inch squares. Cut a green stick and sharpen it at one end. With it pierce one of the pieces of meat, then a slice of onion, then a slice of meat. Continue in this way until all are on the stick. Broil the meat by holding the stick over hot coals. And if you bring along a package of bacon cut the slices in squares and alternate these with the onion and meat sections.

Then potatoes. The best stunt for baking them in the open is to wrap them in wet leaves, mud, or in wet grocery paper and bury them under the burned-down coals. Allow about an hour for baking medium sized potatoes.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

When the responding hand contains reserve values in excess of those needed for the jump take-out, the slam is very near and it is probable that the opening bidder will not have the material for responding otherwise than in minimum terms. The important thing is to discover the ace situation; if there are two aces against you, all the kings and queens in the deck do not justify a slam, though occasionally slam is made under these conditions, when there are long suits to work with and both aces are not cashed while the enemy is in the lead.

Bidding Reserve Values.

If your responding hand was a minimum of its type, and the reply is three no trumps, a sign off, you must pass unless you have a so far unbid slam factor in your hand. If you have a second ace, bid four no trumps if the suit containing that ace is not biddable. Your partner is at liberty to pass this if knowledge of your second ace does not make the slam appear likely to him. If your second ace is in a biddable suit, and that suit is headed by ace-queen or ace-jack-ten, bid five in that suit even if it is only of four cards. If it is of lower rank than the suit you bid first, your partner will not know that it is a four-card suit. He will undoubtedly assume it to be of five cards, but that should not matter seriously. This indicates (1) a second ace; (2) a second suit in which there will presumably be at most one loser, with a finesse to lose no trick in it; (3) a desire for slam even if opener has only one ace, provided he has high fillers for the second suit and king-queen combinations in the unbid suits.

Bidding the Second Ace.

For instance, if the responding partner held

Sp. K Q x x x	Di. A x x
Hs. A x x	Cl. x x

and the bidding went: One no trump, three spades, three no trumps—he should bid four no trumps, though having nothing in reserve. He is showing a second ace and confirming three clear primary tricks. Slam, however, is not tempting from the responder's point of view. Partner, informed of the second ace, must now pass or rebid in view of the fresh information. If he goes five spades he is telling the responding hand that he has, as expected, at least three spades to a top honor, a sound no trumper, and two aces, but that the slam depends on whether the responding hand has in reserve a half primary trick, such as queen alongside her ace, or a king in another suit. Lacking this, as in the hand given above, the five-spade bid should be passed. Such rebidding by the opener would be made on a hand of this kind:

Sp. A J x (or A x x x)	Di. Q J x
Hs. K Q x x (or K Q x)	Cl. A J x

Though all the aces are located, a trick may be lost in each minor suit. If the responding hand holds a minor king, he should accept the invitation to slam, and the slam will then be a certainty, with a finesse or two for seven, but requiring no winning finesse for six. Had the opening hand's diamond holding been KQx, he would have had more than a primary trick in reserve, and after the responder had shown a second ace, should bid six no trumps without further ado. Thereupon the responder could bid seven if he had a king in reserve—it would be the club king in this case. He supplies a five-card suit to work with, and his partner has contracted for six, while believing the club king to be held by the enemy.

Sp. A x x x	Di. K Q x
Hs. K Q x	Cl. Q J 10

he should pass the four no trump, knowing an ace is against the hand, and with a bare minimum no trumper, unable to win the first or second round of clubs.

Responding with Three Aces.

If ever a responding hand holds three aces in conjunction with a jump take-out, he must show it by bidding immediately five no trumps over opener's rebid of three. Slam must be a virtual certainty, it remains only to select the nature of the slam declaration.

Sally Plans Big Fair Party for 100 Youngsters

Best Letters Will Decide Who Goes Along.

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Who's coming to the Fair with me? That's where we're going for our second party of the season, as you know if you saw yesterday's TRIBUNE. I'm going to the great Exposition on Wednesday, July 11, and I want to take 50 boys and 50 girls. So if you're anxious to go along and will follow instructions, you may win an invitation.

We've been invited to all kinds of delightful exhibits. The Black Forest Village is one of them—it's been built exactly like one of the little towns of Germany, and it even has a snow capped mountain, icicles, and a toboggan we can all slide down.

The Midget Village extended a similar invitation to us, and sent me a copy of their little newspaper, which tells about all the activities of the tiny people.

At the Colonial Village we'll see a house that is an exact copy of the birthplace of George Washington and a number of other famous American buildings.

At the Swiss Village there are 2 brown bears, named Goggi and Gritli, who were sent over here all the way from Berne, Switzerland, to dance and do funny tricks for Fair visitors.

After we've seen all these delightful things and a lot more at the villages, we'll mount our trusty steeds, which will be two Greyhound buses and off we'll go to the Enchanted Island. There are so many things there that I'll have to wait till tomorrow to tell you all about them.

But in the meantime, get busy with your letters, and tell me why you want to come along, and don't forget these rules:

1. You must write your own letters.
2. Include your name, address, and age.
3. All letters must be on my desk by Thursday morning, July 5.

We'll read every single letter, and choose 50 boys and 50 girls whom we think will most enjoy the party. It's going to be lots of fun, so put your very best efforts into your letters, and maybe you'll be a winner. Address your letter to: Sally Joy Brown, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago.

Fashionable Folk Turn Out for Symphony

The cool, tastefully appointed Century club at the Fair was the scene of many a gay gathering last evening as prominent Chicagoans and their families prepared to join in the applause hailing the opening of the Chicago Symphony orchestra programs on the Swift bridge.

Soft pastels and chiffons were the favorite attire of the majority of society women. Once in the boxes, however, many a light wrap was brought into use.

One of the largest supper parties preceding the concert was that given by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hamill. Their guests included the Charles Swifts, the Walter Brewsters, Mr. and Mrs. William Nitze, Mr. and Mrs. Tiffany Blake, Mr. and Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, Mrs. Hugh J. McBirney, the Arthur G. Cables, Miss Harriet Monroe, Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg Fairbanks, the Silas Strawns, Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Adams, the Chauncey McCormicks, Henry Patten, Russell Tyson, and Eli Edson from Washington, D. C.

President and Mrs. Maynard Hutchins of the University of Chicago joined the party later in the Hamill box.

Among the other hosts and hostesses who were later to take their guests over to the concert were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Veeder, whose guests included the Charles Faulkners, Mr. and Mrs. George Blossom, and the Frank Barbours; the Gustavus F. Swifts, Miss Agnes Foreman, Newton Farr, Russell Gleason, and Mrs. Walter Engle.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Here and there:

As one who fancies suicide when the thermometer toys with ninety and who all but pulls the trigger when faced with the prospect of sitting under a dryer on a beastly hot day, we hereby given rousing cheers for a downtown beauty salon, which is air conditioned. It's one of the most constructive steps toward comfort for us beauty seeking women the town has seen in a long time. Now won't some inventive soul step forward and do something about taking the heat out of dryers? That, plus air conditioning, would be all we could ask of any beauty salon.

Speaking of cool things, there's a little self-massage gadget out that has rather special virtues in summer for women who get headaches or who're completely enervated by the heat and humidity twins. It looks a lot like an egg cup, with a yellow colluloid base of pretty much that shape, and a round chromium ball held in the cup with a black band. There are two balls. The original idea was to unscrew one ball, soak it in hot water until it held the heat, put it back in the cup, then use it to massage cream into the face. The other ball, set in cold water, was used after the cream had been removed to tone the skin with skin tonic. It's still excellent for that, but it's a bright idea to keep both balls cold now and use them for massaging temples and wrists when you think old summer has got you.

An inexpensive but excellent summer perfume is featured in a State street store. It's got a dry, spicy odor that's just right with the pour le sport mood and costumes, a most happy thought if your other scents seem a bit cloying at the moment.

A well dressed, unidentified man of middle age died early yesterday in St. Ann's hospital, apparently the victim of a motorist who failed to stop at Crawford avenue and Division street.

PIRATES BEAT CUBS, 5-4; SOX, INDIANS SPLIT

THEVENOW HITS DOUBLE IN 9TH, SCORES WANERS

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 1.—The Cubs' winning streak was just about to stretch into nine games today when something happened. With a one run lead going into the ninth Bud Tinning weakened after flattening the first two batters. Pat Malone came dashing to the rescue, and a safe drive with the bases filled turned the decision around to give the Pirates a 5 to 4 triumph in the final of the series.

The Cubs piled up what appeared to be a fairly safe lead by pouring more grief on a left hander, in this instance Larry French. The wrong armed Californian was forced to desert the party as early as the second inning. The cause of his departure was a series of hits linked with a pass for a total of three runs. Then old man Waite Hoyt, the ex-Yankee, was summoned for service. The Cubs probably figured they'd give him a merry old ride, but all they could do in seven and two-third innings was to score one run. This one run was the Cubs' lead going into the ninth.

Those Waners Again!

The first happenings in the ill-fated final inning saw two pinch hitters set down by Tinning without much trouble. Then the Waner boys broke loose in unison for the second time during the day. Lloyd, the junior, walked, and Paul, the senior, singled to send Brother Lloyd to third. Cuyler, trying to hurry the throw-in, fumbled, and Brother 'aul used this blunder as an excuse to go to second. This was where Tinning surrendered his job to Malone.

While Malone was marching to disaster, Capt. Woody English raced down to the right field end of the grandstand. The purpose of this was to confer with Mr. Charley Grimm, the Cub manager, who was hiding in that vicinity. Mr. Grimm had been fired off the field earlier for showing displeasure over a decision by Umpire Cy Pfirman. Mr. Grimm told English that the surest way out of the situation would be to give an intentional pass to Manager Traynor. This was done, filling the bags. Then Tommy Thevenow, who was in there only because Umpire Pfirman also had chased Arky Vaughan, doubled to right center to score the Waner boys and win the game.

Waners Do Their Stuff.

The Waner boys put on another of their brother acts in the first inning and this enabled the Pirates to enjoy a one run lead for a few minutes. Brother Lloyd led off against Tinning with a pass. Brother Paul slapped a low fly to left and the ball dropped on the foul line for two bases. Lloyd scoring. Traynor was set down on a grounder to English. Then Vaughan made a bold bid to stir up more trouble, and he would have been successful if Hurst hadn't made a one handed leap for a hard line drive. The catch retired Vaughan and also resulted in P. Waner being doubled off second.

A single by Cuyler which Traynor knocked down started the second inning and also started French toward the exit. A pass to Hartnett followed. The two runners advanced when Hurst, in attempting to pull away from a pitch, accidentally bounced to Vaughan, who would have had a double play if he hadn't fumbled momentarily. Hack lined a single into right center. Cuyler scoring and Hartnett stopping at third. Tinning cracked the left field fence for two bases, scoring Hartnett and sending Hack to third. Hoyt then relieved French and a fly by Billy Herman let Hack score the third run.

Tinning Escapes Trouble.

Hurst did a good job of putting Tinning on the spot in the home second, but Bud managed to get away unscathed. Suhr opened the inning with an ordinary roller to first, but the ball slipped out of Hurst's hands and continued toward right field. Suhr made two bases on the error. Two

YOU CAN COUNT ON U. S. AGAIN IN OLYMPIC TRACK

A. A. U. Meet Reveals a New Group of Stars.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Unless the next two years takes toll, the American championships of the A. A. U. which were held Saturday afternoon in Milwaukee, were ample assurance that the United States again will win the Olympic games scheduled for Berlin in 1936. In the main, America has piled up impressive point totals in the dashes, hurdles, and field events in Olympic competition. Preponderance of power probably always will rest on these, but on the basis of Saturday's returns America may expect to extend its rule to the 1,500 meters and the 3,000 meter steeplechase.

BILL BONTHRON.

The feature of the national meet was the duel between Bill Bonthron of Princeton, and Glenn Cunningham of Kansas, who broke the world's record for 1,500 meters with Bonthron defeating Cunningham by two feet in the new world time of 3:48.8. In the 1932 Olympics Luigi Beeccali of Italy was the winner in 3:51.2 and Cunningham, who finished fourth, made the best showing of the Americans.

Manning Sets Record.

Harold Manning's victory Saturday in the 3,000 meter steeplechase was timed at 9:13.1, a new American record. He defeated Joseph McCluskey, of Fordham, who heretofore had led all compatriots in this event, finishing third in the last Olympics. The best official time for this event in the Olympics is 9:21.2. This mark probably was bettered in 1932, but a comparison cannot be made for the officials lost count of the number of laps and permitted the contestants to run 3,450 meters.

Bonthron, Cunningham, Manning and McCluskey expect to remain in training until the 1936 Olympics. Ralph Metcalfe, who now has finished his collegiate competition with the remarkable record of never having lost a National Collegiate, Intercollegiate, Drake Relay, or National A. A. U. sprint, also expects to compete in 1936. Metcalfe will continue his law studies at Marquette next year and will have advantages of training he otherwise would lack.

Plenty of Field Stars.

Outstanding field marks Saturday were made in the high jump and shot put. Cornelius Johnson, Walter Marty and George Spitz will protect the United States' record in the high jump in the next Olympics while Jack Torrance, who put the shot 55 feet 5 inches in the national games, a new world's record, and John Lyman, second with 54 feet 9½ inches, seem certain of winning in any competition.

Most prominent of the younger stars is Jesse Owens of Cleveland, O., Ohio State university freshman. Owens was beaten by Metcalfe by one yard in the 100 meter dash in which Metcalfe tied the meet record of 10 4-10 seconds. The Ohio lad broad jumped 25 feet 7.8 inches, the best record in America this year. With Owens on its team, Ohio State again will become a factor in Big Ten track.

Three teams of United States athletes will invade Europe and Japan this summer. The best of the list of national winners will go to Japan for a two months tour. Thirty-one athletes were named by the National A. A. U. track and field committee of which A. C. Gilbert of New Haven, Conn., is chairman.

Pick Team to Visit Japan.

The personnel of the team which will visit Japan, leaving from San Francisco Aug. 15 in charge of John Magee of Bowdoin college, follows:

Talking It Over

BY ARCH WARD.

THE maharajah of Rajpipias, owner of Windsor Lad, winner of the English Derby at Epsom Downs, is reported to be in a friendly mood about shipping his great 3 year old to America for a match with Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane's Cavalcade. . . . It's a chance for an enterprising race track promoter to present the biggest event of the year. . . . All of the prominent Pacific coast coaches attended a luncheon in Los Angeles last week in honor of Elmer Layden, Notre Dame's new athletic leader. . . . It remained for A. A. Stagg to pay the former full back of the Four Horsemen the finest tribute of all. . . . George Huff, athletic director at Illinois, is seriously ill. . . . Eppa Rixey, Cincinnati pitcher who voluntarily retired a few weeks ago after 21 years of continuous service in the National league, never played with a minor league club. . . . He went to the Phillies in 1912 directly from the campus at the University of Virginia and remained there, save for the war year of 1918, until 1921 when he was traded to the Reds for Jimmy Ring and Greasy Neale. . . . Luke Appling of the White Sox and Joe Medwick of the Cardinals were only 1 year old when Rixey came into the National league. . . .

Gregory Flatow, winner of THE TRIBUNE Bicycle Derby several years ago, is still in St. Luke's hospital, recuperating from a leg injury received in a motor accident May 29. . . . Six regulars from the St. John's Military academy eleven of 1932 are among the sophomore candidates for the Northwestern football team next fall. . . . They are Park Wray, tackle; Frank Riley, guard; George Wilson and Vange Burnett, ends; Robert Swisher, half back, and Don Geyer, full back. . . . Gusto, the American Derby, Arlington Classic, the Jocky Club Gold cup winner of two seasons ago, which failed to train soundly for the Ascot cup in England, has returned to this country and has been sent to a Kentucky farm where a year's rest has been prescribed for him. . . . Howard Jones, football coach at Southern California, is one of the longest driving golfers on the coast. . . . CRONIN NAMES SCHACHT COACH IN ALL-STAR GAME

Al Schacht, coach and half of the Washington Senators' comedy team of Schacht and Nick Altrock, was selected yesterday by Joe Cronin as one of his assistants in handling the American league's team against the National league in the all-star game at New York July 10.

Rexinger Wins Public Parks Tennis Title

Scott Rexinger, representing Lake Shore, yesterday defeated John Shostrom, Hamilton park, to win the public parks' men's tennis singles championship at Soldiers' field. The champion attained his title only after a hard battle by scores of 6-3, 6-1, 3-6, 2-6, 6-4.

Rexinger also teamed with Eugene Quinn, Palmer park, and defeated Ed and Leo Lejeck, Ogden park, in the final match for the doubles championship. Scores were 6-3, 6-1, 6-3.

Louise Hofmeister, Hamilton park, triumphed over Florence Schultz, Kosciuzko park, to gain the title in the final of the women's singles. Miss Hofmeister had things her own way, winning, 6-1, 6-1.

HAMMAN BEATS GOODMAN; WINS DALLAS TOURNEY

Dallas, Tex., July 1.—(AP)—Leland Hamman, an unerring little 135 pound youngster from Waco, Tex., won the trans-Mississippi golf tournament here today with a 3 and 2 victory over Johnny Goodman, Omaha, 1933 national open champion.

One under Brook Hollow's par 35—35—70 for the morning round, Hamman finished the first 18 holes 4 up. He slipped only two over par on the second round this afternoon, carding 36 to Goodman's par 35, and then losing only one shot to par on the seven remaining holes.

NOONAN LEADING ILLINOIS P. G. A. TOURNEY WITH 72

Eddie Loos' 73 Second at Half-Way Point.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

JAMES NOONAN.

At the end of the first eighteen holes, Noonan was a stroke in front of Eddie Loos, Lake Shore star, who finished with a 73 despite a sorry 8 on the deceptive eighteenth.

The only other in the field of 50 to match or better par was little Joe Palleti of the McCormick fairway, who had a 74.

Espinosa Is Fourth.

Abe Espinosa, competing unttached, took 75, while three others—Harry Cooper of Glen Oak, western and Illinois open title holder; Harry Hampton of Beverly, and Gunnar Nelson of Rockford—had 76. Herb Johnson of Butterfield was next with 77. Frank Walsh of Bryn Mawr and Dick Metz of Mill Road Farm, took 78, one less than Jim Foulis of Ruth Lake, the defending champion, and Tom Armour of Medinah.

Thirty-two of the starting fifty turned in scores, the other 18 withdrawing. They will play another 18 this morning, with a pro-amateur event scheduled for the afternoon. Not only will the individual state title be settled at the end of the morning round, but the eight Chicago qualifiers for the national P. G. A. tourney as well.

Par—Out	455	355	443—38
Noonan—Out	445	344	442—34
Par—In	453	444	345—36—74
Noonan—In	343	456	346—38—72

Noonan might easily have broken 70 had he been able to sink short putts on the 12th, 13th, and 17th, not to mention the third, where he three putted with a birdie in sight. He three putted the 14th also, was trapped at the 15th, and was over the green on the 18th. Birdies on the 2d, 5th, 6th, 9th, 10th, and 11th more than redeemed his errors.

Loos Plays Perfect Golf.

Loos played the most perfect golf of the day, matching or bettering par all the way to the home green. He was out in 34, with birdies on the 1st, 3d, 5th, and 6th. Coming home he was even with par for eight holes, missing a four footer for a birdie on the 14th and another from 14 inches on the 17th. His chip shot to the 551 yard 18th was trapped and his recovery effort sailed over the green, so that he finally took an 8, three over par.

Paletti had birdies on the 3d, 5th, and 10th to be 3 under going to the 11th, but there his third shot was over the green. He missed the 125 yard 16th with his spoon against the wind and after reaching the home green in 3, ten feet from the pin, putted too strongly, the ball going 12 feet over the cup. Scores:

In the WAKE of the NEWS

JEWISH BOXERS.

RISE of Max Adelbert Baer to the heavyweight championship and of Barney Ross to the lightweight and welterweight titles has directed attention to the many Jewish boxers who achieved renown in Fistiana.

Boswells, who germinated in profusion immediately after Maxie's defeat of Primo Carnera, have differed over the proportion of Jewish blood flowing in his veins. The more generally accepted version is 25 per cent from a father of German-Jewish antecedents and a mother of Scotch-Irish stock. Baer is the first boxer of Jewish blood to hold the heavyweight title since Marquis of Queensberry rules were adopted.

Joe Choynski, now living in Cincinnati and at one time a resident of Chicago, was a first flighter, but just short of title capabilities at the time of Corbett and Fitzsimmons. Choynski fought them all—Corbett, Fitz, Jack Johnson, Jeffries, Tom Sharkey—with varying success. He had a 20 round draw with Jeffries and a 3 round decision over Jack Johnson before these boxers became champions. Choynski's fighting weight, however, was around 165 pounds, too light for this division.

Pride in the accomplishments of these two boxers caused Seymour V. Shub, sports editor of the Daily Jewish Courier, to go back into history for a forerunner of Baer. That took him to 1786 and Daniel Mendoza, of Portuguese-Jewish stock, the greatest miller of his day.

From Mr. Shub's list and our own memory we name a few of the more recent boxers of Jewish blood:

Heavyweights—Max Baer, champion; Art Lasky, King Levinsky [Harry Krakow].

Junior welterweights—Mushy Callahan and Jack [Kid] Berg, former champions.

Junior lightweights—Jack Bernstein, Benny Bass, Lew Feldman.

Bantamweights—Charles Phil Rosenberg, once champion.

Of course there are many others who would be included if it were intended the list should be comprehensive rather than hitting only the high spots.

Modest Boxer.

Frankie Klick, who lost to Tony Canzoneri on a technical knockout last Thursday night, was training at Pompton Lakes, N. J., while The Wake was visiting Carnera's camp. He was an exceptionally fine little fellow, with high hopes of securing another match with Barney Ross through victory over Canzoneri.

Klick has been fighting for a number of years and, in fact, told of Max Baer's first appearance at a coast gymnasium after Frankie already was in the game. He impressed by his modesty when we remarked: "I suppose you should have received the decision in that ten round draw with Ross on the coast last winter." Instead of the expected vehement affirmation he replied quietly: "I thought so on my showing in the last three rounds, but the officials called it a draw and they're there to give decisions as they see them."

Incidentally, Klick might prove a good attraction for Promoter Joe Foley in Chicago. He had received overtures for a fight with Leo Rodak, former Golden Gloves boxer, but deferred an answer until after the Canzoneri battle.

Odds on Tigers to Win Pennant Reduced to 2-1

New York, July 1.—(AP)—A sharp reduction in the odds against the Detroit Tigers' winning the American league pennant marks the midseason betting prices announced tonight by Jack Doyle, Broadway commissioner.

Where Doyle quoted 15 to 1 against Mickey Cochrane's club in April, he will give no better than 2 to 1 against the Tigers now. The New York Yankees, joint favorite with Washington at 6 to 5 at the start of the campaign, still hold an edge in the betting at 7 to 5. The Senators have dropped to a third choice at 4 to 1 in Doyle's book. The Chicago White Sox have taken a terrific tumble, from 10 to 1 against in April to 1,000 to 1 against now.

AMERICAN LEAGUE—New York, 7 to 5, 1-3; 1-5; Detroit, 2-1, 3-5, 1-4; Washington, 4-1, 6-5, 3-5; Boston, 6-1, 8-5, 7-10; Cleveland, 15-1, 3-1, 8-5; St. Louis, 60-1, 15-1, 6-1; Philadelphia, 100-1, 40-1, 20-1; Chicago, 1,000-1, 200-1, 100-1.

NATIONAL LEAGUE—New York, 7-5, 1-4, 1-10; St. Louis, 9-5, 1-3, 1-8; Chicago, 2-1, 1-2, 1-6; Pittsburgh, 3-1, 3-1, 4-5; Boston, 15-1, 4-1, 8-5; Brooklyn, 60-1, 20-1, 8-1; Philadelphia, 500-1, 200-1, 100-1; Cincinnati, 1,000-1, 500-1, 250-1.

Tigers Suspend Walker for Poor Base Running

St. Louis, Mo., July 1.—(AP)—Outfielder Gerald Walker of the Detroit Tigers was indefinitly suspended without pay today by Manager Mickey Cochrane. In a game with St. Louis yesterday Walker was caught between first and second bases, forcing Greenberg at third. Later in the same game he was caught off second, and Cochrane said he had displayed poor base running in a recent series at Philadelphia. Walker left tonight for Detroit.

HOSE WIN FIRST GAME, 12-5; LOSE 2D, 4-3, IN 11TH

Single by Kamm Beats Gaston.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The revived White Sox thumped the Cleveland Indians, 12 to 5, in the first game of a doubleheader yesterday and then went down fighting in the 11th inning of the second game, 4 to 3. Fourteen thousand saw the show.

The triumph was the first Sabbath victory the Sox have won at Comiskey park this year and their second on any premises. It was a joyous affair which included an eight run second inning uprising, the features of which were a single with the bases full by Ted Lyons; a double with the bases full by Jimmy Dykes; a double by Zeke Bonura and Al Simmons' No. 13 homer of the year.

Fielding Saves Gaston.

Oral Hildebrand outpitched Milt Gaston, six hits to 13, in the second game and one of the Sox hits, which drove in two runs, was spurious. But the Sox nevertheless had the advantage most of the way because of good fielding, some defensive work by Bob Boken being spectacular.

The Sox went ahead for the second time in the seventh, but Trosky tied it up with his No. 15 homer, his seventh of the year against the Sox. The Indians won in the eleventh when Kamm singled with two out and the bases full. The setback was the Sox' fourth extra inning defeat in five days.

FIRST GAME

Both teams stayed away from the plate in the first inning, but in the second inning the Sox galloped across with eight markers. Pearson's wildness got the Comiskeys under way, but there was a lot of sound work with the bats before the session ended. Simmons and Hayes walked and moved up on Boken's sacrifice, after which Madjeski walked, filling the bases. Lyons ran the count to three balls and two strikes and then singled to right, Simmons and Hayes scoring and Madjeski stopping at third.

Swanson was called out on strikes, but Uhalt drew Pearson's fourth pass of the inning, again filling the bases. Dykes ran the count to 3 and 2, and with everybody running doubled to left center scoring Madjeski, Lyons, and Uhalt. That was enough for Pearson and Bean relieved him. Bonura doubled to left center scoring Dykes and came home himself ahead of Simmons when Al drove the ball into the right center stand for his No. 13 homer of the year. Knickerbocker threw out Hayes.

Two More for Hose.

The Sox rested up in the third, but came back with two unearned runs in the fourth, scoring without the aid of a base hit. Swanson was safe at first when Hale dropped his pop fly. Uhalt walked, Dykes moved them up a base on a sacrifice. Swanson scored and Uhalt moved to third on Bonura's liner to Rice. Uhalt scored and Simmons reached first when Knickerbocker fumbled Simmons' grounder. Hayes ended the inning when he grounded out, Burnett to Trosky.

Lyons did not allow a hit in the second, third, or fourth inning, but bogged down profusely in the fifth. Burnett opened with a single and then Holland and Pytlak walked, filling the bases. Seeds batted for Bean and lined to Uhalt, Burnett scoring. Rice singled to right, scoring Holland and putting Pytlak on third. Knickerbocker singled to center, scoring Pytlak and putting Rice on third. The runners held their bases on Averill's liner to Simmons, but Trosky singled to right scoring Rice. Hale forced Trosky to end the inning.

Boken Saves Ted.

Sox run No. 11 was registered in the fifth. Boken led off with a single to left and stole second. He moved to third as Hale was throwing out Madjeski. Lyons singled to right and Boken scored. Swanson ended the session when he grounded into a double play, Knickerbocker to Hale to Trosky.

A fine play by Boken held the Indian production to one run in the seventh. Rice walked and Knickerbocker beat out a bunt, Rice stopping at second. Averill singled to right, scoring Rice, and Knickerbocker took third. Then Trosky fanned. Hale shot what seemed a certain hit over second, but Boken speared it with one hand and tossed it to Hayes to launch a double play.

The Sox made it an even dozen in the eighth on a double by Uhalt and Bonura's second double.

SECOND GAME

A double by Averill and a single by Trosky after two were out in the first inning got the Indians off to a one run lead in the second game. The advantage did not survive the inning, however, thanks to Odell Hale and Sam Rice.

In the Sox half Uhalt walked with one out and stopped at second while Dykes reached first on Hale's fumble. Bonura flied to Holland. Then Simmons lifted a high fly which apparently was destined to come down in Rice's glove. But somehow Rice lost sight of the ball and it fell for a triple, Uhalt and Dykes scoring. Hayes fanned.

The Indians thumped Gaston in the second but could do no more than get one run to tie. Holland doubled

HOME RUNS HELP GIANTS DEFEAT DODGERS, 5 TO 4

Jackson and O'Doul Each Collect Long Hits.

New York, July 1.—(AP)—Two home runs, hit by Travis Jackson and Lefty O'Doul, accounted for all the New York Giants' runs today as the world champions defeated the Brooklyn Dodgers, 5 to 4.

Except for the home runs, the game was a pitching duel between Hal Schumacher and Leslie Munns, with the latter going the route for the first time and pitching well enough to win most games. He held the Giants to six hits, while the Dodgers pounded Schumacher for seven.

A critical error by Tony Cuccinello in the sixth started Munns' downfall. The mistake let O'Doul arrive safely at first, Bill Terry drew a pass, and Jackson came through with his home run. In the seventh Hughie Critz got a scratch hit and O'Doul followed with his homer. Score:

BRAVES WIN PAIR.

Boston, Mass., July 1.—(AP)—The Boston Braves went into fourth place in the National league today by taking a double header from the Phillies, 6 to 3 and 3 to 0.

In the first game a major league record set by the Athletics against the Yankees June 22, 1929, in a 14 inning game was equaled when not a Brave was left on base. In the second game not a Philadelphia outfielder received a fielding chance.

Rhem held the visitors to four hits in the first game and Bobby Brown, in his first appearance since his sojourn to Albany, held the Phils to five hits in the second game.

White Sox Play Exhibition Game in Flint Today

The White Sox will play an exhibition game in Flint, Mich., this afternoon. Tomorrow will be a day off and on the Fourth of July the St. Louis Browns will visit Comiskey park for a double header.

Bernie Uhalt was returned to Oakland in the Pacific Coast league after yesterday's game. The White Sox had taken the young outfielder on trial until July 1. It was send him back yesterday or else and the Sox decided Bernie hadn't yet arrived, particularly as a hitter. He batted .243 with the Sox.

Monte Pearson led the American league in effectiveness last year and has been a good pitcher most of the time this year. However, he was the starting pitcher on April 30 when the Sox won 20 to 10, and he was the starting pitcher in the riotous first game yesterday.

Owner Lou Comiskey was hiding in his office when he heard the Sox had made eight runs in the first game yesterday. He then came out to enjoy himself.

Yanks Pound 3 Pitchers; Beat Senators, 5-2

Washington, D. C., July 1.—(AP)—Fifteen thousand fans today saw the New York Yankees rap out a 5 to 2 victory over Washington, send the Senators down to fourth place, and increase their own league lead over Detroit to a game and a half.

Johnny Broaca pitched masterful ball, allowing only seven hits. New York smashed out twelve hits, including a home run by Dickey, off three Washington moundsmen.

A double by Myer and a single by Cronin sent the Senators into a 1 to 0 lead in the first inning, but New York came back in the second to tie it when Byrd walked and singles by Dickey and Hoag produced a tally. In the third, after two were out, three consecutive doubles by Chapman, Gehrig, and Byrd brought in two more for the Yankees. Another pair of runs were scored by the Yanks in the sixth on a double by Byrd and Dickey's homer. A mild stomach disorder kept Babe Ruth out of the game.

RED SOX, 10; ATHLETICS, 3.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 1.—(AP)—The Boston Red Sox drove Alton Benton from the mound with a six run rally in the fourth inning today and went on to defeat the Athletics, 10 to 3.

Up to the fourth Benton had held the Red Sox without a hit or a run. Two more runs were pounded in at the expense of Mort Flohr, former Duke university pitcher, in the fifth. Then Connie Mack sent in an untried rookie, Clarence Vaughn, recently of the battleship Oregon. Vaughn held Boston without a hit or a run until the ninth, when Bill Werber hit a homer and the Red Sox followed it with their tenth run of the day on a double by Morgan and a wild throw by Higgins.

WHITE CITY AND MARIGOLD HOLD FIGHTS TONIGHT

Christy, O'Hanion, Kennard, O'Shea on Cards.

Professional boxing shows at Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street, and White City, 63d street and South Park avenue, will be presented tonight.

Jimmy Christy, south side featherweight, will meet Oscar O'Hanion, Waukegan, Ill., southpaw, in the main attraction at White City. Sherald Kennard, Fargo, N. D., slugger, and Mickey O'Shea, north side, will clash in the windup contest at Marigold. The bout is set for eight rounds at 148 pounds.

Christy Beat O'Dowd.

Christy, stablemate of Leo Rodak, will be making his first appearance at eight rounds. He has won all but one of his matches since turning professional a few months ago. In his latest he trimmed Bobby O'Dowd at Shewbridge field. If he defeats O'Hanion, Jimmy will meet Everett [Young] Rightmeier, a leading challenger in the division, at White City next Monday.

Angelo Garlow vs. George Trapp [5], 152.
Eddie Jackson vs. Augie Mandell [4], 126.
Floyd Embrey vs. Tod Kelly [4], 120.

Genovese Faces Pahl.

Frank Genovese, Toronto, Ont., welterweight, and Al Pahl, Sioux City, Ia., will meet in a five round semi-final at Marigold, replacing the one between Mickey Beal and Jimmy Eliopoulos. Sammy Scoglio, Chicago featherweight, faces Gene Connolly, Minneapolis, Minn., for four rounds. Other matches at this distance will bring together Lou Bartel and Sammy Donnell, and Frank Schultz and Jackie Collins. Karl Von Lehman will wrestle Ralph Garibaldi.

Champion Barney Ross returned from New York yesterday, accompanied by Manager Sam Pian and Trainer Izzy Kline. He will remain in Chicago pending completion of negotiations for vaudeville, radio and other engagements. An offer to appear at a loop theater for a week has not been accepted because of financial terms. It is highly probable that the champion will engage in one or two exhibition bouts, and also appear in the rôle of referee before fighting again.

"Tony Canzoneri is Ross' outstanding challenger for the lightweight crown," Manager Pian said yesterday. "If the financial inducement is satisfactory, we can't very well refuse Tony the shot. I will have an announcement to make today."

Joe Louis, Detroit, Mich., Negro boxer, will make his professional début as a heavyweight in the six round windup bout of George Trafton's boxing show Wednesday night at Bacon's arena. His opponent will be Nick Taft of Chicago.

Chicago fans will be interested to learn of Louis' decision to open his pro campaign in this city, for it was in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S Golden Gloves tournament four months ago that he gave warning he was one of the greatest amateur light heavyweights in the country by winning a Golden Glove. He proved it in April by victories over the best of his weight in the National A. A. U. tournament at St. Louis.

Louis, like other Golden Gloves champions from Detroit and Cleveland, was ineligible to battle in the intercity bouts with New York and did not fight in the international matches against Poland at the Stadium because of being overweight. Critics say the clever Detroit battler woud have been certain to win both matches had he been allowed to compete.

Taft is expected to give Louis a hard test. Two years ago he won 17 contests in a row before losing to Baxter Calmes. Nick has fought King Levinsky three times, losing two after winning the first. He fought a draw with Emmett Curtis of Grand Rapids, Mich., at Western stadium last summer in his latest. He has won the majority of approximately 40 contests.

Drewrys Ale Once Again Oversold!

● Before these holidays are over, the supply of Drewrys Ale will again be exhausted. And we just won't water the soup.

Nobody could have anticipated the steady demand and the steadily increasing demand for Drewrys Ale. There was no way to prepare for it.

Therefore, you can well imagine, with some amusement, the cat and dog fights that constantly go on behind our own closed doors between our American selling policy constantly demanding more ale than can be supplied and our Canadian-British brewing policy sturdily and stolidly refusing to supply that demand "until the ale is thoroughly aged and mellowed and ready according to the judgment of our brewing master to be released from its vats."

Thus far, the Canadian policy has won out. And we, who are in the management of The Drewrys Limited, U. S. A., sincerely hope we have intelligence enough to see that it continues to win out.

So please order your holiday supply as quickly as possible. And please be as gracious as you can if your favorite tavern happens to run out.

Drewrys has all the alcohol that we think it should have for a summer drink. It is about as strong as a highball or cocktail. Yet the alcohol content is so mellowed into the body content of the ale that you get a cooling drink as well as a stimulant, and food as well as drink.

A bottle of Drewrys with your lunch or dinner seems to make everything very satisfactory. And a week-end or holiday picnic with plenty of Drewrys—is a picnic.

RAILBIRDS PICK LADYSMAN FOR ARLINGTON PRIZE

Report High Quest Ready to Race Wednesday.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Early railbirds, whose alarm clocks a half hour earlier had annoyingly ended their happy dreams of winning a million on an eight horse parlay just after the eighth nag wheeled into the stretch nine lengths in front, were able to draw very definite conclusions at Arlington Park yesterday morning as to the condition of Ladysman, the favorite to win the $10,000 Stars and Stripes handicap Wednesday.

A clock over in nearby Arlington Heights was chiming out the strokes of five when Ladysman, accompanied by a dozen other horses from the W. R. Coe stable, was brought out on the training track by Trainer Hugh Fontaine.

Big Crowd Lines Rail.

These horses were the first to appear during the morning, yet the crowd which lined the rail was larger than it usually is at 7 o'clock, which is the peak of the morning training activities. This might have been due to the fact that it was Sunday, which would make possible an afternoon of slumber for the early birds.

More than likely it was due to Ladysman's presence on the course. The word was already out that Equipoise would not be able to start in the Stars and Stripes and that there didn't seem to be any doubt that Ladysman would enjoy the post of honor as favorite in Arlington's big Fourth of July fixture.

He Passes Test.

It was common gossip that Ladysman had engaged in his final stiff training test 24 hours earlier, when he fought for his head every inch of the way while galloping a mile and a furlong in 1:57 2-5. Most of these railbirds were "Doubting Thomases." They knew Ladysman had been a crippled horse all last year, a circumstance which kept him out of nearly all his 3 year old engagements after he had won the Arlington Futurity as a 2 year old and had been acclaimed the champion juvenile of the year.

They wanted to look at him the "morning after" his last hard prep for the Stars and Stripes. They did plenty of looking and they discovered a Ladysman which seemed to be as hard as nails, a Ladysman which did not show the slightest evidence that he ever had been a cripple, and a Ladysman which indicated by every movement that the quicker they bring on his foes in the Stars and Stripes the better he will like it.

Speed Drill Today.

He cantered three times around the mile training track yesterday morning and that was the extent of his day's work. This morning he will be sharpened up for speed in a five furlong drill. Then he will be ready for his engagement in the rich handicap.

With Equipoise out of the Stars and Stripes, Ladysman will not only rule as the favorite but will be the top weight with 120 pounds on his back. The formidable rivals which he must outrun to take down the prize are Indian Runner and Plucky Play, each in at 118 pounds; Edward R. Bradley's brilliant mare, Barn Swallow, which will carry 112, and Inlander, last year's Classic winner, which also gets in at 112.

Among the lightweights, Mrs. Jack Howard's Advising Anna and Frank Ormont, the Sweitzer handicap winner at Washington Park, appear dangerous. Each will carry 100 pounds. Thomasville, the 3 year old in at 103, is another which appears particularly formidable.

Will High Quest Go?

Rumors were heard at Arlington yesterday that Brookmeade stable's speedy 3 year old, High Quest, may be a running companion of Inlander and that the entry might number three with Good Goods, already a winner at Arlington, as the third Brookmeade colorbearer.

Trainer Bob Smith is pointing High Quest for the Classic and the colt is so sharp right now that the mile and an eighth of the Stars and Stripes might not interfere with his training for the Classic, to be run ten days later. Should the Brookmeade entry include High Quest it likely will muster just about as many backers as Ladysman will.

Lassie Stakes Saturday.

The Stars and Stripes is the first of two of the most important Arlington stakes to be run this week. On Saturday comes the renewal of the Lassie stakes for 2 year old fillies which, with a field of 20 starters in prospect, may have a gross value of $35,000.

Heading the Arlington program this afternoon is the Hamilton, Ont., purse, which brings eight candidates for the Classic stakes into action in a six furlong battle. Patchpocket, one of the horses Cavalcade has been beating in his sweep through the important 3 year old specials, likely will rule as the favorite.

MIGRATORY BIRD BOARD TO DECIDE '34 DUCK SEASON

Shortage of Waterfowl May Cut Time.

BY BOB BECKER.

While the average outdoor fan is thinking about canoe trips in the north woods, black bass lakes and fights with muskies, waterfowl hunters can't keep their minds off the fact that in a few days the Migratory Bird Advisory board will meet in Washington. Recommendations will be made on next season's hunting regulations at the meeting scheduled for the 10th.

It is dangerous, of course, to make a prophecy about bag limits or seasons as they affect duck and goose shooting next fall. Officials down east are keeping quiet about their plans. Not a line has been issued publicly to give sportsmen a clue on what may happen.

However, any sportsman can put two and two together and see that 1934 is not going to be a boom year for ducks and geese. Therefore, our tip to duck hunters is to get ready for news from the east. It won't be very cheerful, and may be tinged with gloom.

Because waterfowl hunting with dog and gun is to us one of the most enjoyable and thrilling sports, we hate to think of a season that may have to be curtailed because of a shortage of birds.

However, with Canadian reports on duck hatches anything but favorable, and this situation appearing after several seasons of none too favorable duck hatches, we have a hunch that the 1934 hunting season may be shorter than the 1933 season. A small crop means less hunting.

CORN FEATURES GRAIN ACTION; MOVES HIGHER

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Corn crowded out wheat as the leader in the grain markets last week and was the center of speculative interest. The development emphasizes the importance which that crop is taking on this year because of the damage which has already been done to other grains. As the season progresses it is believed that corn will become even more important as a substitute with which to make up the deficiencies in the oats, barley, hay, alfalfa, and forage crops.

The trading in the corn pit overshadowed the dealing in wheat on several days during the week. Other grains appeared to turn alternately strong or weak as corn advanced or declined. It is the shortage in other crops for which corn will have to make up that the real strength in the corn price lies, rather than in the potential damage to the crop through continued high temperatures or further damage from the chinch bugs, it is believed.

Corn Outlook Good.

The outlook for corn appears good despite insistent fears that are being expressed over the lack of reserve moisture. Farmers show no inclination to dispose of their corn in a hurry and good premiums are being paid for cash corn at interior points. Purchasers were paying as high as 60 cents a bushel in Iowa last week, which is a substantial premium when compared with the Chicago price which reflects the cost of laying the cereal down here.

Corn futures closed the week from 1⅞ to 2½ cents a bushel above the preceding week's quotation, while wheat futures were showing simultaneous declines ranging up to 3⅛ cents a bushel. September corn closed the week at 61½ cents a bushel, compared with 58⅝ cents a week ago. September wheat was selling at 90⅛ cents a bushel at the close Saturday, against 93⅞ cents seven days before.

Wheat Is Erratic.

Erratic fluctuations in wheat last week reflected the thinness of the market and the absence of speculative activity. Reports on the condition of the crop in this country were interpreted according to the bias of the interpreters. Reports from the northwest spring wheat belt all carried the same refrain. In substance they declared that while the recent rains helped immeasurably and averted a potential crop calamity, they did not alter the prospect that the crop will run around 100 million bushels.

Today the private crop experts will make public their forecasts on all crops, including corn. The latter crop yield is estimated for the first time by the private and government experts at this time. Indications are that the total wheat crop will be placed between 525 and 550 million bushels. The private estimates a month ago showed 542 million bushels, and the government estimated 500 million bushels. Last year's crop was 517 million bushels.

Below Domestic Needs.

If these forecasts are borne out it will mark the second year since 1890 that domestic production has fallen short of domestic requirements. Last year is the only other year since 1890 which the records show to have shown a deficiency.

The estimate on the corn crop is expected to be somewhere in the neighborhood of last year's yield of 2,330 million bushels. Oats are expected to show about 600 million bushels against last year's crop of 772 million. A month ago the crop was forecast at 779 million and 700 millions, respectively, by the private and government estimates.

Both the Chicago and Winnipeg markets will observe holidays this week. Dominion day will be observed today in Winnipeg, and Wednesday, Independence day, the board here will close.

Heads Bankers

GEORGE W. BOVENIZER.

George W. Bovenizer, vice president of the Investment Bankers' association of America and a partner in Kuhn, Loeb & Co., New York, has succeeded to the organization's presidency to fill the vacancy caused last week by the death of Robert E. Christie Jr., while a passenger on a United Air Lines plane en route to Chicago.

Bovenizer has been active in the association for several years as a member of the board of governors and many committees. He will serve as president until the close of the next annual convention in October.

URGES CAUTION IN SEEKING U. S. BUSINESS LOANS

A warning to industry that it should proceed cautious in seeking loans from the Reconstruction Finance corporation, is given by the Illinois Manufacturers association in its publication, Industrial Review.

The article declares that the experience of several important banks with federal loans cannot be safely ignored by industrialists who seek public funds. The RFC has dictated management policies to several banks which have obtained loans from it.

Particular attention is called by the association to the regulations governing such loans, which requires every applicant to certify that he is complying with the code of fair competition of his industry.

"Any industry," the association says, "which secures a loan from the government under conditions prescribed in the Glass banking act and regulations thereunder should understand that it is relinquishing to the federal government a large measure of authority which it now has to conduct its own affairs."

PRESIDENT PICKS AYRES OF KANSAS FOR TRADE POST

Washington, D. C., July 1.—(AP)—President Roosevelt announced today the appointment of Representative W. A. Ayers, veteran Democratic member of Congress from Kansas, to be a member of the Federal Trade commission in succession to James A. Landis.

Landis was named last night to be a member of the New York Stock exchange and securities commission. Ayers was noncommittal on whether he would accept the appointment.

"I just heard about it," he said. "I will go to the White House tomorrow and see what it's all about." He said he would discuss the matter with Marvin McIntyre, one of the President's secretaries.

STEEL OUTPUT DROPS SHARPLY; PRICES LOWER

Production Is Down 13 Points to 46%.

Everything concerning the steelmakers hopped on a toboggan slide last week; included was the announcement of price reductions of $1 to $4 a ton on sheets and bars, effective July 7.

The national production average slumped 13 points, dropping precipitously from 59 to 46 per cent of capacity, according to the magazine, Steel. Highs of 62 per cent had been maintained in the two week period of June 10 to 23. Chicago operations slipped 12 points to 51, compared with a high of 70 per cent. The only exceptions to the general decline were at Birmingham, holding even at 55, and at Detroit, where a contrary rise carried operations to 93 per cent of capacity.

Predict Further Decline.

Still further decreases are forecast for this week because of the July 4 holiday. Several independent firms will be shut all week, while many have closed to resume operations Thursday.

The drastic curtailment was not unexpected, since operations during the second quarter were stimulated to the highest levels since 1930. The buying wave was attributed to strike tieup fears, announced price rises, and the flourishing automobile industry.

Although automobile production in July is expected to equal that of June, the industry will be affected by the holiday, according to Steel. The Ford and Hudson plants shut down Friday and will remain closed all week.

Third quarter prices are expected to be slightly above those of the second quarter, despite the announced reductions. The boosts of $3 to $8 per ton of April 15, now largely canceled, brought on such a rush of orders before they became effective that spot business was about the only place in which the price rises were felt, the magazine points out.

The reductions generally are regarded as a bid for business in view of the negligible backlog at present. Many leading consumers have an accumulation of stocks, and are chary of further commitments. Steelmakers may not put up prices during a quarter, under code provisions, but are under no such restrictions as to downward revisions. The industry must rely chiefly on heavier products to prop up operations, the magazine says, since orders for lighter goods are not expected until late July.

Pig Iron Movement Heavier.

More pig iron was moved from lake furnaces in June than during April and May combined, and renewed buying is not expected until August, the magazine states. Iron and steel exports for May were 20 per cent above April, while imports were up 9.7 per cent.

Structural awards last week dropped to 16,800 tons, but a number of new projects appeared over the horizon. The public works administration granted a loan for six bridges taking a total of 30,000 tons in Allegheny county [Pittsburgh], Pa. Funds have been released for 340 post offices requiring 150,000 tons. Bids on bridges taking 25,000 tons soon will be asked by the New York Central railroad. The navy will open bids Aug. 12 for 12 ships requiring 20,000 tons of steel.

Depositors Lose $1,658,800 by Savings Interest Cut

Chicago savings bank depositors will pay nearly $1,700,000 more annually for the privilege of leaving their funds on deposit as the result of reduced interest rates which become effective today.

Members of the Chicago Clearing House association as well as many suburban banks will lower the rate from 2½ to 2 per cent annually, establishing a historic low for this city.

332 Millions Affected.

Approximately 332 million dollars of savings, which the banks hold, are affected. Choked with cash for which they can find no satisfactory outlet, the step was taken as a means of cutting operating costs. It will save the bankers $1,658,800 in interest, dropping annual requirements from $8,294,100 to $6,635,300.

The reduction is the second made recently. In 1932 interest was cut from 3 to 2½ per cent. The clearing house steering committee considered recommending the latest change early in the year but deferred action in the hope that interest rates on sound loans and high grade bonds would increase and that the banks could continue with safety paying the old rate.

Yields on government and other securities declined steadily during the six-month period and the action was subsequently felt necessary.

One Bank to Keep Rate.

Only one bank in the city, the Merchandise Bank & Trust company, will still pay the 2½ per cent rate. The First National Bank of Englewood, which lowered its interest rate to 2 per cent several months ago, contending it was unable to operate profitably at the higher level, will maintain the 2 per cent level.

Consideration some time ago by the Harris Trust and Savings bank of withdrawing from the federal reserve system if the deposit insurance plan was made permanent has been dropped, it was learned yesterday, because of extension of the temporary plan.

HOG PRICES RISE MORE THAN 40% IN LAST MONTH

Hog prices increased more than 40 per cent during June, according to a review of the live stock and meat situation by the Institute of American Meat Packers. The sharp increase in hog values came as a result of an improved demand for pork products, and a substantial reduction in receipts of hogs marketed.

Wholesale prices of pork products during June increased 8 to 20 per cent from the low levels prevailing at the opening of the month. The demand for cooked hams and other summer specialty items was unusually good.

EXPAND SERVICE OF U. S. LINES TO ENGLAND JULY 21

New York, July 1.—(AP)—A new fortnightly passenger and cargo service between New York and the British Isles will be inaugurated July 21 by the United States lines, as a part of its program of expansion under the American flag, it was announced today.

The service will be maintained by the steamers American Skipper and American Importer.

Expect Large Utility Note Offering Today

New York, July 1.—(AP)—The first and largest public offerings of securities by a public utility corporation since amendment of the securities act of 1933 was expected to be made tomorrow by the Edison Electric Illuminating company of Boston in the form of a new issue of $35,000,000 three per cent notes.

The offering constitutes the largest individual issue placed for the account of a domestic utility corporation in the American investment market since June, 1931, when an issue of $35,000,000 Commonwealth Edison company bonds was sold.

Life of Issue Three Years.

The notes, priced at 100 and accrued interest to yield 3 per cent, are dated July 16, 1934, and are due July 16, 1937. The offering is based upon the prospectus as officially filed with the federal trade commission, and dated as of July 2.

Net proceeds of the issue to be received by the company will be $34,384,000, based on the price of 98.24 per cent paid by the underwriters, which include such investment houses as the First Boston, Brown-Harriman, and Lee Higginson corporations.

To Retire Notes, Pay Banks.

The company will use $25,000,000 of the proceeds to retire coupon notes due July 16, and $7,000,000 to repay bank loans maturing on the same date. The remainder will be used for general corporate purposes.

After completion of this financing the corporation will have a total funded debt of $71,000,000. Capital stock of the corporation consists of 534,875 shares of common stock $100 par value. The corporation has paid in surplus of $36,916,432.

AWAIT RESULT OF U. S. STOCK MART CONTROL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 1.—Having passed out of the era of self-regulation and private responsibility in a final week that was wholly uninspiring, the stock market tomorrow will resume business under control of the federal government.

What benefits will derive from the new setup dictated by the New Deal administration is a moot question in trading circles. However, brokers are hopeful that the supervisors will bring with them at least greater activity, now that all the uncertainty is over. But that is only a hope; there are other observers who doubt that the change will have any immediate effect on activity, or that it will help to move stocks out of the dull trading range in which they have fluctuated for several weeks.

Brokers to Coöperate.

While the government board will be in the saddle at the opening tomorrow, it is felt that until it is confronted with some violation of the rules under the new law its presence will not be felt. Brokerage houses have resigned themselves to coöperation, and while some dissenter might be moved to test the constitutionality of the law, no such move is anticipated immediately.

There was little said or done on the floor of the stock exchange to mark

BUSINESS FINDS NEW BANKRUPTCY LAW PUZZLING

75 Firms Seek Shelter Under Amendment.

Many pertinent questions but little accord on the answers have come out of three weeks of operation of section 77B, the new amendment to the federal bankruptcy act.

Business, quite frankly, is intrigued. Envious eyes are being turned toward the new act by more than one group. It is, by long odds, the most widely discussed piece of recent legislation in the legal fraternity. More customers have been attracted to the local bankruptcy court than at any time in its history. Four new referees and four more chancery masters have been named to help the judges meet this 77B onslaught.

One judge will remain on the bench all summer to handle the call. Reorganization has been asked in federal court here for 75 corporations with liabilities of nearly a quarter billion dollars.

Unwilling to Talk.

Yet few of the more conservative legal minds are willing to venture other than general opinions—for quotation—on the effects of this much discussed legislation. One federal judge is said to have been frank to admit that he did not understand provisions of the law yet.

Withdrawal of protection for dissenting minorities has brought about much of the attack directed toward the 77B amendment, but there has been little mention during all the flurry of the fact that this is not a new principle. The old composition could be confirmed with the consent of a bare majority of creditors. Plans, however, could be brought forward only by the creditor.

Under the new act, designed to conserve assets and make reorganization easier, any holders of 10 per cent in amount of claims or 5 per cent in amount of the stock may propose a plan. Approval, with consent of the judge, may be effective and binding on all parties if voted by two-thirds of each class of creditors and a majority of each class of stockholders.

Scaling Down of Debt.

Further, the plan may provide for raising of new money, scaling down of debt, shuffling claims, reducing interest, extending maturity dates of outstanding securities, mergers, and—considered most important—retention and operation of the property by the debtor. In a word, plans of effecting reorganization are elastic and complete.

Action under 77B may take a property out of receivership, maintain a status quo, and protect the debtor against harassing creditors while reorganization is pending. It permits alteration of executory contracts, providing for a discharge from leases, in which event the landlord may prove damages not to exceed a year's rent. Also, fees are kept within the jurisdiction of the federal judge, and separate appeals on amount may be taken to the Circuit Court of Appeals without involving the reorganization case.

General agreement in regard to 77B obtains on one point—the need for conservation and protection of creditors' right. Sharp controversy arises on means to accomplish this end. One school contends that the act is unconstitutional, that it does not fall properly within the meaning of bankruptcy. Such a view is scoffed at by Luther D. Swanstrom of the law firm of Johnson, Swanstrom, Wiles & Clawson, who has spent six weeks in preparing a summary of the act.

See Challenge to Bar.

But the opposing contention is that bankruptcy means insolvency. It holds that 77B is predicated on a theory of solvency—that the corporation's assets are merely frozen and that it will pay out if given time rather than being forced to liquidate.

"The most serious challenge to the act," said Holman D. Pettibone, president of the Chicago Title and Trust company, "probably will be on the ground that minority creditors are deprived of property without due process of law.

NEW SECURITIES COMMISSION TO OPERATE AT ONCE

Appointments May Hit a Snag in Approval.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., July 1.—The new securities and exchange commission, the members of which were named yesterday by President Roosevelt, will begin functioning at the earliest possible moment, Joseph P. Kennedy, who is expected to be the commission's first chairman, will arrive in Washington tomorrow morning and the first meeting will convene before noon probably in the offices of the federal trade commission.

Due to the fact that Washington is practically deserted, so far as members of the senate are concerned, there was no worth while reaction to the nominations to be had here today.

Approval May Hit Snag.

The appointments are "recess" ones and must be submitted to the senate for confirmation when congress convenes in January. Whether or not they will meet with opposition in the banking and currency committee, to which they will be referred and subsequently on the floor of the senate when they are reported for confirmatory action, is a difficult question to answer so far in advance of the meeting of the new congress.

If there is opposition to confirmation it probably will involve principally Mr. Kennedy, whose term is fixed at five years, and possibly to a lesser extent James M. Landis, the three year member who, according to some administration critics, is a member of the so-called "brain trust," which in their opinion warants close scrutiny of the nomination before confirmation is moved in the senate.

In the case of Kennedy his troubles, if they develop, will be the result of mentioning his name as a participant in a syndicate which last summer operated in common stock of the Libbey-Owens Ford Glass company on the New York Stock exchange. About 1,000,000 shares of the stock were involved. The participants, in addition to Kennedy, were Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Hyva corporation, Walter P. Chrysler, Lehman Brothers, Wright & Sexton, all of New York, and Bell & Beckwith of Toledo, O.

Issue a "Repeal Stock."

Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass was one of the so-called "repeal stocks," transactions which featured hearings before the senate banking and currency committee in January and February of this year. Kennedy was brought into the picture Feb. 21, when Henry Mason Day of Redmond & Co., New York, was testifying concerning a syndicate which operated under an option of 145,000 shares, the optioner being the Libbey-Owens Security Corporation of Delaware.

Ferinand Pecora was the cross-examiner who brought out facts of the syndicate transaction, the purpose of which was, according to Day, to "distribute the shares of Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass and make some money." The optioners had agreed, Day testified, not to sell any stock except at higher than market prices, while the option agreement was in operation from June 1 to Oct. 2, 1933. The stock was distributed by Redmond & Co. with Day as chief manager.

CHANGES NARROW ON CURB MARKET; VOLUME IS LIGHT

New York, July 1.—(AP)—Activity on the curb exchange remained at an extremely low ebb last week and price changes generally were confined to a narrow range. Metal stocks displayed a firm tone and led the balance of the market in a mild rally during the middle of the week, only to lose most of the gains in the succeeding sessions.

A pronounced increase in volume developed in the final hour of trading Tuesday, following extreme dullness earlier, and active issues closed fractions of a point or more higher on the day. These gains were extended to as much as three points on Wednesday.

With the exception of a few specialties, such as New York, Honduras and Rosario, Pittsburgh and Lake Erie, and Aluminum company, the majority of issues yielded each day and by the end of the week were about where they were at the start. Oil shares and utilities were without special feature.

Boost Interest Payment on Soviet Bond Issue

Coupons covering the regular quarterly interest due July 1 on the 7 per cent gold bonds of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics will be paid at the rate of $1.51 per 100 gold ruble bond, the Chase National bank, fiscal agents, announced. This is an increase of 40 cents over the indicated value of the coupon at the time the bonds were issued, due to the reduction in the gold content of the United States dollar.

National Sugar Exporting corporation has invited tenders for the sale to it of Republic of Cuba Sugar Stabilization sinking fund 5½ per cent secured gold bonds, at a price not exceeding the principal amount and accrued interest to date of purchase, sufficient to exhaust the sum of $300,000.

Make Partial Payment on Peoples Light Issue

WORK FOR 5 MEN

WAS USED BY THIS COMPANY IN 1923—I WAS ONE OF THE MEN WHO ANSWERED THAT AD. TODAY I OWN MY OWN HOME—HAVE MONEY IN THE BANK, AND A VERY RESPONSIBLE POSITION WITH A COMPANY THAT MANUFACTURES ELECTRICAL HYGIENE UNITS. AIR-CONDITIONING, CONCEALED HEATING AND OTHER IMPORTANT ITEMS. AGAIN THIS AD APPEARS AND I WILL OFFER TO 5 MORE MEN THE SAME OPPORTUNITY TO SET THEMSELVES UP IN

A BUSINESS OF THEIR

INVESTMENT.

This is not work in a shop or a factory, but a business of your own, a permanency of at least five years for the right man.

If you are ambitious to have a business of your own, that is paying a percentage profit to many men all over the world of from $40 to above $100 a week—investigate promptly at 10 to 10:30 a. m. Monday.

We will give one example of last week. Mr. D. in his first seven days with us has earned a percentage profit of $194.00. The above inspirational example is only one of many that will be shown to you. Four other men earned in the last period [4 weeks] over $800, EACH IN THEIR OWN BUSINESS.

Our Company is rated in the millions and offers to a sincere man a wonderful connection. This kind of an ad is not written to attract office men or mechanics, but to attract men with imagination who have health, vitality and the creative mind to build for themselves and our company a permanent business.

Many men are finding a great deal of happiness and money with us—numbered among our representatives are doctors, mechanics, clerks, lawyers, ministers, in fact, a former prohibition commissioner of the United States, Roy T. Haynes. All of these men are attracted by one thing—BIG MONEY, honestly, with a new idea.

Interviews between 10 and 10:30 a. m. and 2 and 2:30 p. m. Monday. Application must be presented in person at the above hours—NO OTHER TIME.
